OUR TOTAL IS SCALED DOWN

One Estimate Is That We Will Receive $425,000,000 Instead of the $600,000,000 Asked.

America Is Faring Better Than Others in the Settlement Made.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The American delegation to the Allied Financial Conference received this morning instructions from Washington to accept the agreement reached between Winston Churchill and Colonel James A. Logan for the settlement of the United States claims for war damages and the cost of the army of occupation.

At a meeting of the heads of the delegations this afternoon the other Allies agreed to the arrangement and it is expected to be formally adopted in the form of a resolution at the plenary session of the conference tomorrow afternoon.

Inasmuch as no one knows for how long nor how well the Dawes plan will work, no one can tell now the capital value of the payments America will get. But it is estimated that she will get at least $100,000,000 less than if the war damage awards had been met out of the German property sequestered in the United States.

Aside from this material side of the matter the chief significance of the arrangement lies in the United States being associated with the Allies for the forty or fifty years the Dawes plan is expected to run. From the moment the United States undertakes to collect war damages through the Reparation Commission her interest and, it is held by European diplomats, her responsibility, become involved in the relations between the Allies and Germany. Added significance is given to this feature of the situation by the fact that the agreement will be signed by Ambassador Kellogg, shortly to become Secretary of State.

What the United States Will Get.

In the agreement the American claims are separated into two categories:

First, army of occupation costs and, second, war damage awards. Under the arrangement America gets 55,000,000 gold marks annually for seventeen years, beginning two years from now, and agrees to cancellation of the Wadsworth agreement, negotiated with the Allies in 1923.

These payments enjoy second priority, coming after the service of the German loan to start the Dawes plan, which has first priority. Seventeen years' payments are accepted as wiping out the army cost claim of $240,000,000, the difference between that sum and the original claim of $255,000,000 being covered by $15,000,000 the Belgians will pay.

The war damage claims are met by allowing the United States 2¼ per cent. of general reparation payments after the reduction of all priorities, which amount to about 20 per cent. of the sums Germany is supposed to pay under the Dawes plan. This percentage is limited to 45,000,000 gold marks in any one year. If the Dawes plan works over the forty or fifty years the capital value of its yield as put by the allied experts will be 32,000,000,000 marks after deduction of priorities. Two and a quarter per cent. of this equals $180,000,000 recompense against the American damage claims of $350,000,000.

Under the Wadsworth agreement the United States was to have received $20,000,000 yearly over twelve years dating from 1923, with any arrears in the first four years being added to the last eight years' payments. Inasmuch as there will be no considerable cash payments from Germany for the next two years this would have meant that the United States could claim $30,000,000 yearly for eight years, beginning two years hence.

Will Actually Get $25,000,000 Yearly.

Under the new agreement the United States will receive 55,000,000 marks plus 45,000,000 marks, or $25,000,000 annually.

If the present value of the American percentage is worth $180,000,000 and if calculation is made of the value of the seventeen annual payments of 55,000,000 marks, it would seem that the United States will receive the theoretic capital value of about $425,000,000 for her $600,000,000 claim—$250,000,000 army cost claim plus $350,000,000 damage claims. But at that the American claims will fare better than the allied claims. Of course if the Dawes plan does not work or if transfers cannot be made the United States will get nothing.

The Allies, except the chronic kickers, are pretty well satisfied and two of their diplomats told me today they thought they had paid a cheap price to tie up the United States to enforcement of German reparation payments.

Numerous last moment changes have been made in the details of the American settlement. The delegation at first agreed to a twenty-four-year period for army cost payments. Washington objected and seventeen was the compromise.

Instead of taking the American share from the reduction of the Belgian pre-

Sarcophagus for Wilson Will Be Erected This Week

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The sarcophagus which will be the resting place of Woodrow Wilson in the Bethlehem Chapel of the National Cathedral arrived in Washington today and the work of its erection will commence tomorrow. It was said at the office of Bolling & Clark, engineers and builders, this afternoon, that the details of construction and design would not be available until about the end of the week, when it is expected the tomb will be completed.

The memorial consists of the sarcophagus proper, a canopy and a grill. It was stated some time ago that a Crusader's sword would be carved in relief on the slab of the sarcophagus.

It is not believed that Mr. Wilson's body will be removed to the sarcophagus until after the main part of the cathedral is finished, when the sarcophagus will be set in the north transept.

FARM AID SESSION IS URGED BY BORAH

NOT SURE OF DAWES PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—In a fighting and at times ironical address, Senator Borah told the Senate today that the Republican Party would be guilty of repudiating its platform and the promises made by speakers and other workers during the last campaign unless farm relief legislation was adopted at the present session of Congress or at an extra session called to consider the agricultural measures.

The last election, Senator Borah declared, was decided largely by the vote in the Middle Western and Western States, and he expressed doubt if the result would have been the same had the Republican Party told the farmers that their economic condition was satisfactory, and that no action to aid them would be taken by Congress. He came out openly for a program which would include immediate legislation for Government direction of the cooperative marketing movement.

Senator Borah, who is Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, also expressed himself upon the Dawes plan. Its adoption, he said, undoubtedly was a great factor in temporarily stabilizing conditions abroad and in increasing the demand for American farm products, but he expressed doubt concerning its success until the ultimate amount which Germany must pay shall have been definitely established and German industries are taken out of the control of foreign interests.

The present increased price of farm products, Mr. Borah said, was due almost solely to the Dawes plan and the failure of foreign crops, while the fundamental faults which had depressed agriculture still remained.

Puts Blame on Propaganda.

The Senator declared that he was particularly concerned by propaganda that there is no longer need for Government aid in effecting a cure of farm ills, since the farmer is held down by an ever-increasing burden of taxation and by inability to obtain a rightful share of the cost of the farm's production to the consumer. Statistics compiled by an expert, Mr. Borah said, showed that in 1922 the consumer paid out $22,500,000,000 for these products and that the farmer obtained only $7,500,000,000, while the middlemen got $14,500,000,000 and the railroads $500,000,000.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States was assailed by Senator Borah as a leader in spreading the propaganda. He expressed the belief that a majority of the Government officials appeared to be in a mood to fall in with the same line of thought. It was an entirely different situation, Senator Borah said, than that during the last campaign, when large sums were being expended by the political parties to get the message to the farmer that relief was on the way and that there would be quick action by whatever party was put in power.

KANSAS GOVERNOR ARRESTED IN COURT; AVOWS INNOCENCE

Speaks to 8,000 at Inauguration of Successor, Defending Pardon Record.

BAIL FOR FATHER AND SON

ANOTHER OFFICIAL ACCUSED

Attorney General Charges Banking Commissioner With Demanding $4,000 for Parole.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 12.—One hour after he and his son had answered in court to warrants charging them with accepting a bribe in return for a pardon for Fred W. Pollman, paroled forger and bank wrecker, Governor Jonathan M. Davis stood before an audience of 8,000 people this noon, and, while retiring from office, asserted his innocence.

The county authorities had refused to delay the serving of the warrants for two hours until Governor Davis had relinquished his office to Ben S. Paulen, the new Republican Governor chosen at the November election, and the retiring Executive, who had been nominated for President at the National Democratic Convention in New York last Summer, took part in the official ceremonies inaugurating his successor with the stigma of arrest clinging to him.

Davis Asserts Innocence.

Turning from the manuscript of his farewell address, Governor Davis, without wavering, faced the crowd that packed the auditorium and uttered his defense.

"The happenings of the last hour have compelled me to ask you to indulge me in a prelude to my formal address," he said. "Two years ago I took the oath as Governor of Kansas, entering an atmosphere prejudicial, at least in some regards, to a farmer as well as to one of my political faith. Now, because of the enemies I have made, I feel called upon to make this statement.

"I have committed no offense. I have violated no law. I have committed no crime. I have neither solicited nor accepted any bribe. In my official acts I have an ear for the poor and the down-trodden of the State. I have made the best fight I could.

"A great newspaper in search of prestige and influence has sought to besmirch me. They have invaded the sanctity and privacy of my home and sought to enlist the efforts of criminals and those of low character. The people of Kansas will resent such attempts.

"I have had bitter and unreasoning opposition. It may be that I had hoped for and attempted too much."

Promises to Shock State.

Before his arrest this morning Governor Davis wrote a letter to be delivered tomorrow to the two branches of the Legislature urging an immediate and thorough investigation of his parole and pardon record, which, he asked, should be compared with the records of his two immediate predecessors, former Governor Henry J. Allen and Senator Arthur Capper, both Republicans.

The Governor and his son did not wait for warrants to be served on them but walked to the Court House. The warrants were served in the courtroom.

These letters will be read to the Senate and House probably tomorrow afternoon, and it is stated that immediately a joint committee will be chosen to go into every detail of the Davis pardon and parole record.

It is State-wide talk that several prominent Democratic politicians and office-seekers will be involved in the alleged barter of pardons and paroles.

Attorney General C. C. Griffith announced tonight that he had been assembling evidence of the sale and barter of pardons and paroles by prominent Democratic politicians which would shock the State when it is made public. He said all the evidence in his possession was being collected and would be turned over to the Legislature.

It is stated that by the time of the preliminary trial of Governor Davis and his son on Jan. 23 the parole and pardon storm will break and that it will be the beginning of a sweeping investigation of all public offices and institutions that have been under the control of Governor Davis.

This may include an investigation into the manner of and reasons for the discharge of Chancellor E. H. Lindley of

Plan Four Airplane Crashes To Find Causes of Accidents

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Four airplane crashes are to take place at Wilbur Wright Field this week, McCook officers announced today. The crashes are to be tests and are believed to be the first of their kind.

Four old planes and four old motors are to be used. The planes will be stripped of their wings and placed on a yard skidway. When the motors have reached their maximum the planes will be cut loose. For 100 yards they will dash down the skidway. At the end of this run they will have reached their maximum speed and there they will hit a concrete wall.

Moving picture cameras will be trained on each crash and a record for close examination will be made. The crash will be observed through field glasses and other instruments.

It is hoped through these experiments to discover causes wherein death occurs to the pilot and to guard against them. Another purpose is to determine what methods can be best employed to prevent airplanes from catching fire during accidents. A full load of gasoline will be placed in each plane.

MORGAN SETS FORTH ETHICS OF BANKING

'There Are No Safe Short Cuts,' He Says, 'in Piloting a Business or a Ship.'

EULOGIZES GEORGE F. BAKER

Veteran Banker's Early Life Described at Dinner Held in His Honor.

J. P. Morgan and Andrew W. Mellon Secretary of the Treasury, led in voicing the tributs paid to George F. Baker, 84-year-old banker and philanthropist, at the testimonial dinner into which the New York State Bankers' Association turned their twenty-seventh annual banquet last night.

At the close, with the 500 bankers on their feet cheering the guest of honor, Mr. Baker, in a voice scarcely heard, for his emotion, said:

"What shall I say? All I can do is to ——"

When it seemed he might not go further he straightened up determinedly.

"Is to thank you from the bottom of my heart. A little while ago I tried to tell some young men to conduct their lives to gain the love and affection of their fellows. I can only say the same thing again."

Then he concluded:

"I have had a long service, as you know. I have crossed over the summit of life's hill. I am wandering down the downward slope. I never shall forget. I can only thank you, again and again—and say 'God bless you'!"

In one of his rare public utterances Mr. Morgan held up Mr. Baker as the embodiment of banking ethics and he laid down a code for bankers to follow.

J. P. Morgan Speaks.

In his address Mr. Morgan said:

"This meeting in honor of Mr Baker is a great event in the history of banking in New York. We are so apt to get on with the day's work and forget what we owe our teachers and our friends; tonight gives us a chance to stop for a moment and tell at least one of them that we are grateful to him and that we honor him in our hearts.

"And in addressing this meeting I feel myself to have a special right to speak, because I have the unusual privilege of speaking for two generations of admiring and affectionate friends of Mr. Baker. Therefore, though conscious of my inadequacy as a speaker, the thought that I am representing my father and his feeling for Mr. Baker, as well as my own, gives me courage.

"For a great part of my father's life he and Mr. Baker were close friends and associates in many matters. Father's experience with Mr. Baker was that of all of us, an experience of unfailing friendship and cooperation in many different ways.

"I well remember, after the panic of 1907, when my father was telling me the story of those anxious and agitated days, during which I had been absent, that he said, by way of summing up what he had been telling me:

"'Of course, you see, it could not have been done without Mr. Baker; he is always ready to do his part—and more.'

"That, I think, expresses as well as could be the first point I want to make in regard to our chief guest. He is always ready to do his part—and more.

"That is what makes him such a strong helper—he does not measure his help by what he may think that others would expect him to do, but he helps in a way to be effective, regardless of what others do.

Cites Help in War.

"And when, after my father's death and just before the war, very heavy responsibilities were thrown on me and there were many puzzling questions to be dealt with, not my father himself could have been kinder or more considerately helpful than Mr. Baker was. But here I am touching on too intimate personal feelings, and will pass on.

"In the first place, he knows more about business, from experience over a longer time, than any of us, and he has besides, to a degree unique in my experience, that invaluable quality of vitality, of youthful-mindedness, which enables him, while still keeping to the old fundamental principles with which he started his business life, and which he has carried all through it, to appreciate and make good use of the changes of method which are necessary in business, as in any other profession.

"He teaches us by example how to do things. He very seldom delivers lec-

As Much Mystified by Hughes's Sudden Retirement as the Public.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The mystery of Secretary Hughes's unexpected resignation and the equally surprising selection of Ambassador Kellogg to succeed him as Secretary of State remained as deep as ever today. When the Senate and House met at noon it was apparent that Senators and Representatives generally were as much in the dark as they were late on Saturday afternoon when they learned of the White House announcement of the impending changes.

What disturbed Senators most, especially Republican Senators, was that President Coolidge did not feel called on to consult them with regard to choosing a new head of the State Department. Some of them were inclined to see in this an intention on Mr. Coolidge's part to act with complete, or almost complete, independence of the Senate in making selections for important offices. The manner of the selection of Mr. Kellogg as Secretary of State emphasized in their minds the information that had been imparted to the Michigan delegation in Congress by the President that in choosing Charles Beecher Warren of Detroit for Attorney General without asking the opinion of the delegation, and in the face of the delegation's known opposition to Mr. Warren, he had acted on the principle that the choice of a Cabinet officer was the President's personal affair, and not to be regarded as having any connection with State patronage.

Butler Is Said to Have Known.

Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, Mr. Coolidge's campaign manager and close political adviser, is credited with having known that the retirement of Mr. Hughes was impending, but he appears to be the only member of the Senate who had advance knowledge of the prospective Cabinet change. Some Senators were trying to recall today how and when they had first heard a report that Mr. Hughes had determined that he would not continue in the Department of State during President Coolidge's new term. Statements that Mr. Hughes would retire in March were circulated immediately after the November elections, but up to very recently those close to the White House had said that no member of the Cabinet, with the exception of James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, had even intimated to President Coolidge that he desired to quit office. These statements bore the stamp of authority and were accepted as correct.

The whole tone of conversation among Senators today indicated that the announcement of Mr. Hughes's resignation was as much a surprise to them as it was to the rest of the country.

Senators and others found an interesting topic today in speculation on the new Ambassador to Great Britain. There was a very general opinion that Alanson B. Houghton of New York, Ambassador to Germany, would be transferred to London. For some time past the understanding had prevailed in informed Republican circles that Ambassador Kellogg intended to resign and that Mr. Houghton would be his successor. Other names had been mentioned, especially those of Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois and Solicitor General James M. Beck of New York, but since Saturday's announcement that Mr. Kellogg would return to become Secretary of State, the inclination of many Senators has been to believe that Mr. Houghton would be transferred to London.

Without indicating that President Coolidge had given any clear intimation that he intended to offer the London Embassy to Mr. Houghton, Senators created the impression today that Mr. Houghton was in the President's mind.

GOVERNOR ASKS FOR AN EMERGENCY ACT FOR BOARD TO NAME HULBERT SUCCESSOR; REPUBLICAN LEADERS HOLD UP MEASURE

Hulbert Moving Out of His City Hall Office; Collins Again Refrains from Taking His Chair

Murray Hulbert began yesterday moving out from the suite of offices which as President of the Board of Aldermen he has occupied on the first floor of the eastern wing of the City Hall. He did not appear there to supervise the work in person. With Francis T. McEneny, Mr. Hulbert's Chief Examiner and formerly his private secretary, in charge and the clerical force cooperating, many of the books of his library and a considerable quantity of other personal effects were loaded into motor cars and transferred to the private law office of the ousted Aldermanic President at 165 Broadway.

William T. Collins, Vice Chairman of the Board of Aldermen, who according to Controller Craig and those who support the Controller's interpretation of the law, is heir to Hulbert's vacated office, has taken no step to assume this position. Like Mayor Hylan he is marking time, awaiting the filing of the opinion interpreting his status, which the Mayor requested last week from Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson. Mr. Nicholson is preparing that instrument with the utmost caution. To inquirers yesterday he said he was not prepared to say just when it would be delivered to the Mayor. In the meantime Mr. Collins again refrained yesterday from occupying a seat in the meeting of the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate and again, as last week, the chair of the Aldermanic President remained vacant.

FREES 4 POSTMEN WHO STOLE TO LIVE

BIDS THEM GO TO PASTORS

On the ground that they were scandalously underpaid, that their long service records were exemplary and that confinement might make them members of the criminal class, Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow freed four letter carriers yesterday who had confessed small peculations.

After he had taken that action in court, virtually at the instance of the prosecuting attorney, Judge Winslow made it clear that he neither had intimated that ill-paid men, in the Post Office Department or elsewhere, were generally dishonest nor that he regarded underpay as an excuse for dishonesty.

The Court not only freed the defendants; he promised to help them get jobs, advised them to go to the pastors of their churches and recommended the consolation of religion. Their bail of $500 each was continued until June 1, when they must come into court for sentence and show that they are leading honest lives. Federal procedure does not allow of suspended sentences and the Court did not indicate what his final action would be. Friends of the men hoped he would recommend pardons for them.

Confessed Using Canceled Stamps.

The men had confessed that they had used canceled stamps on parcel post packages and had kept the money paid for new stamps. Assistant United States District Attorney John M. Blake related the story of the crime, and dwelt on the long service of the defendants and their previous good records.

Twice before within a week Judge Winslow had sentenced letter carriers to prison for trifling thefts from the mails, and the recurrence of a similar arraignment appealed to his sympathies enough to induce him to express himself in strong terms. He questioned Mr. Blake and learned that most mail carriers receive an annual salary of $1,800, that the defendants had been employed in Station K and that they had been pilfering by using canceled stamps for about a year. The total amount gained by them was about $100 each.

The men were Charles Huber, 30 years old, in the Postal Service seventeen years, a bachelor with a mother, 71 years old, dependent on him; Joseph Connelly, 42, in the service eighteen years, who has a wife and four children, the youngest a week old; Arno Scheller, 46, in the service eighteen years, who has a wife and six children, and William Gallagher, 60, who has been

SMITH OPPOSES AN ELECTION

SENDS BILL TO LEGISLATURE

Senate, However, Asks Ottinger for His Opinion as to Need for the Law.

ACTION UNLIKELY THIS WEEK

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Governor Smith sent a message to the Senate and Assembly tonight urging enactment of legislation to enable the Board of Aldermen to elect the successor to Murray Hulbert, ousted as Aldermanic President through a decision by Supreme Court Justice Proskauer.

Should the measure recommended by the Governor become a law, and should Mr. Hulbert resign his State office, the Board of Aldermen would have power to re-elect him President.

The message was accompanied by a bill that had been prepared for the Governor and embodied his views regarding the proposed act. The Governor's message was read in both branches of the Legislature but the bill came too late to be introduced in the Assembly, which had adjourned for the day. According to Maurice Bloch, minority leader, it will be presented to the House tomorrow.

Smith Confers With Leaders.

The sending of the message followed a conference between Governor Smith, Lieutenant Governor Lowman and Senate Leader Knight, who said they were willing to cooperate with the Governor to clear up the tangle resulting from the ousting of Mr. Hulbert.

They left the Governor's presence, however, undecided regarding the best method and at a subsequent conference between themselves and the leaders decided to ask Attorney General Ottinger for an opinion.

While no official statement defining the attitude of Mr. Ottinger could be obtained tonight, unofficially it was said he was not at all certain any legislation was needed and inclined to believe that Governor Smith could appoint a successor to Mr. Hulbert under powers vested in him under the Public Officers act. Governor Smith is understood to have been advised that his powers under this statute would be subject to serious doubt.

Text of Proposed Measure.

The bill proposed by the Governor follows:

Section 1. The Greater New York Charter, as re-enacted by chapter 466 of the laws of 1901, is hereby amended by inserting therein a new section, to follow Section 23, to be Section 24, to read as follows:

Section 24. Election of President of Board of Aldermen, upon the failure to fill a vacancy in the office of President of the Board of Alderman by election at the general election heretofore or hereafter held at which such vacancy is authorized to be filled; the office shall be filled by election by a majority of all the members of the Board of Aldermen; and the person so elected shall hold office until the commencement of the political year next succeeding the first annual election thereafter.

The Governor's message reviews at some length the situation growing out of the Proskauer decision, and cites statutory and constitutional provisions relating to the filling of the vacancy. It was accompanied by another, required under the Home-Rule law and certifying to the necessity of the proposed legislation. Accompanying these there was also the usual so-called emergency message to make it possible to cut legislative red tape and dispense with the waiting periods incidental to ordinary legislative procedure.

The Governor's Message.

The Governor's message follows:

To the Legislature:

An emergency has arisen in the Government of the city of New York. By a decision of the Supreme Court it appears that the duly elected President of the Board of Aldermen forfeited his office in April, 1924, under the previsions of Section 1,540 of the Greater New York Charter, by qualifying as a member of the Finger Lakes Park Commission. There is a serious legal question as to the proper method of filling a vacancy which has thus occurred in 1924, but was not judicially determined to exist or be recognized until 1925. It is vital that this doubt be dispelled so that no possible claim of invalidity can be made on this ground as to the acts of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The doubt arises from the language of Section 23 of the Charter, which provides:

"Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of Mayor or whenever, by reason of sickness or absence from the city, the Mayor shall be prevented from attending to the duties of his office, the President of the Board of Aldermen shall act as Mayor, and possesses all the rights and powers of Mayor during such disability or absence. In case of a vacancy he shall so act until noon of the first day of January succeeding the election at which the Mayor's successor shall be chosen. The Board of Aldermen shall elect a Vice Chairman, who shall preside at its meetings, who shall possess the powers and perform the duties of the President of the Board of Aldermen

HYLAN REFUSES TO REPLY

But Assails Controller in Statement—$25,000,000 City Plan to Come Up in March.

When an appropriation of $25,000,000 to enable the Department of Plant and Structures to go into the bus business came up again yesterday in the Board of Estimate, Mayor Hylan charged that Controller Craig was abetting the traction interests by his ouster of Aldermanic President Murray Hulbert, and that the Controller's municipal bus bills were designed to achieve the same end. After this the Mayor issued a statement admitting that the board was in a "blind alley," so far as buses were concerned, and adding that a legal attack on Mr. Craig's bills would put off bus operation for a long time.

Mr. Craig retorted that if his bills went down to defeat, there are "certain persons lurking in the bushes who will get a $50,000,000 bus system" through the Mayor's practice of granting private bus franchises.

"And you know who they are," said the Controller, looking at the Mayor.

"I am not going to answer you," said the Mayor, "except to say that I have given out a statement telling about your little game in this matter. I know something about it, too."

The Mayor said that delay on the municipally operated bus relief measures was inevitable because of "the obstructive tactics of Controller Craig," and expressed fear that a hostile Republican Legislature would fail to appropriate at least $10,000,000 for municipal bus operation here, though it would be asked to do so, probably in March.

The Mayor pointed out that if the Controller continued his opposition and the Hulbert vacancy remained, the Board of Estimate would be two short of the twelve votes necessary to grant private bus franchises.

Sees Long Court Fight.

The Mayor's statement, part of which he read at the meeting, follows:

"In the first place, when the bills introduced by Craig to operate buses municipally are passed, an attack will be made on this legislation and the right to act under it. It will be held up, as Craig well knows, for a year or two before we get a final decision from the courts. The corporation counsel and leading lawyers of the city contend that there is no right under the Home Rule law for the city to own and operate municipal buses. On the other hand, we are endeavoring to get more definite legislation from the Republican Legislature again this year, as we have for the past four years, for the right to own and operate buses, which right, if made definite by legislative enactment, cannot be questioned.

"Such legislation can be put through in less than thirty days at Albany. We can appropriate by the second day of March at least $10,000,000 to purchase and operate municipal buses if the Republican Legislature will take immediate action. By the first day of May we can have hundreds of buses on the streets of this city for the benefit and convenience of the people, and just as rapidly as possible we will add additional buses.

"If Craig's proposition is tied up in the courts and the Republican Legislature refuses to give us the right to own and operate buses, and the injunction obtained by the traction interests is put into force and effect, no permits can be given to operate additional buses; and the fact is that practically every bus now operated in the city will be discontinued, and there will only remain one method of putting buses into operation, namely, to give temporary franchises. But with the Board of Estimate lacking a full vote, and with Craig playing into the hands of the traction interests by obstructing every move made for the benefit of the people, no temporary franchises can be given and no additional buses will be placed upon the

Horse Falls on Opera Star in Rehearsal, Crushes the Foot of Mme. Larsen-Todsen

By a costly slip of both the singer of Brunnhilde and her horse, Grane, in preparing for the coming Wagner "Ring" cycle at the Metropolitan yesterday, Mme. Nanny Larsen-Todsen, the new Swedish soprano, was laid low with a crushed foot in the last moments of the rehearsal of "Goetterdaemmerung." So painfully was the prima donna hurt that, although an X-ray examination later showed no bones broken, her physicians absolutely forbade her plucky offer to attempt making her American début as announced in tomorrow's "Tristan." In her place, General Manager Gatti-Casazza let it be known that Mme. Florence Easton would sing the season's first Isolde.

Mme. Larsen-Todsen, who is in the vigorous thirties and noted abroad for her alert and graceful carriage, was entering the stage for the scene of Brunnhilde's immolation on Siegfried's funeral pyre. That episode has often enough proved treacherous in public view when the horse that the human Valkyrie is supposed to ride through clouds and fire becomes dazzled by stage lights and flashes of flame.

The animal employed yesterday was no novice, however, but a seasoned equine actor from the Ben Hur Stables at 322 East Thirty-eighth Street. As the singer led him on, the black horse skidded on an iron seam in the stage floor. In falling the horse's weight flung Mme. Larsen-Todsen also to the floor, catching one of her feet before she could spring aside.

Dr. Hugh Kidder of 218 West Fifty-ninth Street was summoned to the opera house, where he found the singer in great pain. She was able to be removed to her apartment at the Hotel Marie Antoinette, where the X-ray examination was made in the afternoon. Her foot was badly swollen through the crushing of the blood vessels, but it was believed that she would be able to walk as usual within a week.

Should no more serious consequences develop, it was said that Mme. Larsen-Todsen's début would be deferred no further than next week's performance of another of Wagner's works, "Die Walkuere," to be sung for the first time this season on Wednesday, Jan. 21. In the same performance will appear another new soprano, Maria Mueller, as Sieglinde.

Man Who Never 'Watched the Clock' Gives Six Employes His $7,000,000 Business

Almerindo Portfolio, who came to this country from Italy when he was a boy and amassed a fortune in the cloak and suit industry, retired yesterday at the age of 47 and turned his business over to six of his employes as a gift.

Mr. Portfolio, trading at 1,333 Broadway under the name of A. Portfolio & Co., started with nothing and relinquished a business which, it was said yesterday, had a $7,000,000 turnover last year. In giving it away he told his employes "not to watch the clock." He then left for the West Indies on a vacation.

It was about four months ago that Mr. Portfolio began to think of retiring. Some time afterward he called into his office six of his employes who had been most active in building up the business.

"Boys," he said, "I'm going to retire and rest." And when there were expressions of regret he added: "What's more, I'm going to give the business to you."

One of the six was Portfolio's brother, Pasquale. The others were Samuel A. Goldman, Milton Sheck, Edward E. Nathan, Samuel E. Pasternak and Bernard Scully. They had been with Portfolio, some for sixteen years.

Yesterday the six formed a new organization, with Pasquale Portfolio as President and Treasurer and Goldman as Secretary, to continue as A. Portfolio & Co.

After he had turned over his business Mr. Portfolio said:

"These men are receiving only what they have earned by enthusiastic work and loyal service. Opportunities for success are more numerous now than ever. The field is widening, not closing. Opportunities are multiplying, but only for the youth unafraid of toil and study. To the man who becomes so engrossed in his work that he forgets the clock there is assurance of great success. But let not his efforts be merely selfish. Let him remember in his advance that the heights of success are not achieved by spoliation of others but rather by helping others to help themselves."

Born in Italy in 1878 Portfolio came to America at the age of 10 with his father and a brother. He went to the public schools and at the age of 15 became an errand boy at $3 a week with the Mercantile Cloak Company. Portfolio was remembered as the boy who did not watch the clock. At the age of 20 he was general manager at $35 a week.

when the President is sick, absent or under suspension, or while the President of the Board of Aldermen is acting Mayor, as when a vacancy occurs in said office, and who shall, during such time, be a member of every board of which the President of said Board of Aldermen is a member by virtue of his office."

Governor Cites Precedent.

It was held in Schwab vs. Doyle, 176 Appellate Division 442, that the assumption of power by the Vice Chairman under this section constituted an appointment within the meaning of Article 10, Section 6, of the Constitution, which provides:

"The Legislature shall provide for filling vacancies in office, and in case of elective officers, no person appointed to fill a vacancy shall hold his office by virtue of such appointment longer than the commencement of the political year next succeeding the first annual election after the happening of the vacancy."

The question then arises whether the Vice Chairman of the Board of Aldermen, having been legally appointed to the powers of the Presidency of that board since April, 1924, even though he may not have known it or exercised such powers, is not prohibited from exercising such powers after Dec. 31, 1924, and whether, therefore, a second legal vacancy in the office did not occur on Dec. 31, 1924.

Another view is that the Governor has the power to appoint under Section 43 of the Public Officers law because of the occurrence of this possible second vacancy.

The interests of the city and the public welfare demand that these doubts be set at rest. Accordingly, I recommend the passage of an emergency statute in the form submitted herewith, providing that such vacancy, in the office of the President of the Board of Aldermen be filled until Dec. 31, 1925, by the vote of a majority of the members of the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York.

To the end that speedy relief may be brought for this unusual situation, this message is accompanied by the formal message of emergency from the Governor under the so-called Home Rule section of the Constitution and an emergency message obviating the necessity for laying on the desks of the members for three days the bill in final printed form.

Immediate Action Unlikely.

According to the legislative leaders the Governor's bill cannot be acted upon for at least a week. Two-thirds majority in each house will be necessary to enact it, and it is not expected that a sufficient number of members will be in attendance at any time during the week.

In the Senate, Leader Knight added formality to the request made by the Republican leaders on the Attorney General by introducing a resolution which, in a series of preambles, defines the Hulbert situation and asked for an opinion on these questions:

First. The officer, if any, by whom the powers and duties of the President of the Board of Aldermen shall be exercised and performed, if the continuing vacancy in such office be now existing.

Second. The power of the Governor under Sections 42 and 43 of the public officer's law to either call a special election to fill the vacancy or appoint a person to execute the duties of the office.

Third. The power of the Municipal Assembly to adopt a local law providing for filling the vacancy.

The resolution was adopted without dissent.

Senator James J. Walker, leader of the Democratic minority in the Upper House, introduced the Governor's bill and moved for its immediate advancement to the order of third reading. Senate Leader Knight objected, saying nothing could be gained by advancing it, inasmuch as he intended to wait for an opinion from the Attorney General. Senator Walker then said the Board of Estimate found itself seriously embarrassed owing to the absence of the three votes cast by the Aldermanic President.

Says Board Can't Function.

"The Board of Estimate can't function," Senator Walker declared. "It may be two or three Administrations before we get an opinion."

Senator Knight said that in his opinion the public officer's law gave the Governor power to appoint a successor to Hulbert or to call for a special election, and that under the circumstance the proposed legislation was necessary.

"Suppose the Attorney General should render an opinion and the Governor refuse to follow it," queried Walker.

"Anyway, why wouldn't the Governor follow it?" asked Knight.

"Because the Governor believes it is not his prerogative to fill it," Senator Walker replied. "We don't want this to become a habit, this vacating of the office of President of the Board of Aldermen.

"It's not the purpose of the majority to delay action," Senator Knight then said. "But it seems to me we should not place ourselves in the position of passing needless legislation."

The Governor's bill was then sent to the committee in the usual way.

Three Methods Discussed.

Three methods of dealing with the situation were discussed at the Governor's conference with the legislative leaders.

One contemplated the calling by Governor Smith of a special election to fill the vacancy.

Another was that the Governor should appoint a successor to the Aldermanic President, acting under powers vested in him by the Public Officers act.

The third proposed to make permanent provision for such an emergency and was the method accepted by Governor Smith and incorporated in his bill.

The Governor and the Republican leaders it was doubtful whether he could act under a clause in the Public Officers' act, which vested in the Governor power to fill vacancies in office when no other provision had been made in any other statute. Where a ready remedy was at the command of the Legislature, the Governor was unwilling to invite litigation that might bring his own power as well as the official acts and votes of his appointee into question before the courts. He felt that with special legislation to cover the case there would be no danger of the validity of an election of a successor to Mr. Hulbert by the Board of Aldermen being disputed.

The suggestion that a special election be called was not met with a friendly reception in the Executive chamber. In the first place the Governor felt that the financial expenditure—from $300,000 to $250,000—would not be justified when the Legislature could meet the emergency effectively and more quickly without any expense either to the State or the city.

Furthermore, if he can avoid it, the Governor is not anxious to have the city go through the turmoil of an election for a city office, with a municipal election so near. He does not believe that any useful purpose could possibly be served by such a procedure.

Situation Full of Politics.

No one in Attorney General Ottinger's office was willing to discuss the subject tonight, but in Democratic circles there was much unfavorable comment concerning the Senate resolution.

It is fully realized here that the situation is replete with politics. William T. Collins, Vice Chairman of the Aldermanic Board, who already has been receiving congratulations upon his elevation to the $15,000 job vacated by Hulbert, has a host of friends and admirers in Tammany Hall and other Democratic organizations throughout the city.

But Mayor Hylan is not among the number. He has been pulling every wire at his disposal to keep Alderman Collins out, and has made it plain that he was preparing to contest his right to cast the three votes of the Aldermanic President in the Board of Estimate.

Then there is Controller Craig, whose views in this particular matter happen not to run counter to those of the Mayor, with whom he has been at war perpetually for almost all of his present administration. The Republicans realize that if the Governor were compelled to assume the responsibility for filling the vacancy, he would almost certainly run the risk of making enemies in either the Collins or the Hulbert camp, and any little bit of Democratic trouble that might brew out of the situation, of course, would be as much grist for the Republican mill.

With the home rule amendment to the State Constitution in effect it will require a majority vote in both branches of the Legislature to enact a special law for New York City during the year. Democratic members naturally would be reluctant to lend their votes to the Governor's bill, and, in the absence of Republican leaders, this condition will not form an obstacle the moment a decision has been reached with regard to what ought to be done.

One thing that was emphasized here after the conference with the Governor was that any measure adopted should be proof against attack by the Controller, who is looked upon as chiefly responsible for the emergency which has arisen.

ACTS ON HULBERT'S OUSTING.

Board of Estimate Names Miller Sole Courthouse Commissioner.

What might be considered the first official consequence of Murray Hulbert's deposition as President of the Board of Aldermen was taken by his colleagues of the Board of Estimate at its meeting yesterday, when it became necessary for the board to take action concerning continuance of the commission which has had in its charge the completion and equipment of the new $11,000,000 County Court House.

That commission's tenure of office expired with the close of 1924. Mr. Hulbert, after the removal of Controller Craig from the post, had been its Chairman, with Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan, as its additional member. When the question came up for action, Mayor Hylan stanced at Hulbert's seat while and then on the Mayor's initiative, Borough President Miller was constituted a committee of one to look after the Court House.

Governor Smith's suggestion that a special city election as a cure for the present unprecedented situation would be a costly expedient was borne out by estimates roughly made by John R. Voorhis, President of the New York City Bipartisan Board of Elections. Mr. Voorhis, who for years had been Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, said the cost probably would not fall far short of $500,000.

Commissioner Voorhis in this connection made public a suggestion received from Senator Schulz, Secretary of the Milwaukee Board of Election Commissioners, in which that official suggested that a special election might be economically conducted by mail at a cost of only about 8 cents a voter. Such a method, Mr. Schulz said was in use in Wisconsin and worked satisfactorily. Commissioner Voorhis replied to the letter asking further particulars. He said he expected to bring the suggestion up for consideration at the meeting of the local Board of Elections next Monday.

Controller Craig has not swerved from the opinion he expressed when after Justice Joseph M. Proskauer handed down his decision. Despite the conviction of Governor Smith and his advisers that the sole remedy lies in remedial legislation, Mr. Craig and his associates still regard William T. Collins as the legally qualified successor to Mr. Hulbert.

Friends of the Hylan Administration and of Mr. Hulbert, on the other hand, and the forthcoming opinion of Corporation Counsel Nicholson is expected to sustain their view—are equally firm in the belief that whatever title Mr. Collins held expired with the termination of 1924.

CRAIG CALLS MEETING TO END PAY HOLD-UP

Summons Sinking Fund Commission—Former Calls Ignored by Other Members.

Controller Charles L. Craig at 5 o'clock last night dispatched notices to Mayor John F. Hylan and other members of the Sinking Fund Commission instructing them to attend a special meeting today at noon to fix rates of interest on the $10,000,000 worth of assessment bonds authorized by the Board of Estimate last week, so that 3,000 Highway Department employes and many contractors who have not been paid since late last month could receive their salaries.

The order of the Controller has developed another interesting situation between the Mayor and the Controller, in the opinion of officials, since Mayor Hylan has ignored former calls to attend similar meetings issued by the Controller, maintaining that he is the only person with authority to summon the members of the Sinking Fund Commission to a conference. On one occasion, say Administration leaders, Controller Craig waited two hours in solitary state, after having summoned members of the commission to a meeting, which was ignored by the Mayor and the other commissioners. Afterward the Controller declared the commission had held up official city business by its action.

A singular phase of the sudden action of the Controller, say city officials, is that he sent one of the notices to Alderman William T. Collins, Vice Chairman of the Board of Aldermen, addressing him as "Acting President of the Board." In doing so political observers see a willingness on the part of the Controller to welcome Alderman Collins as the successor to Murray Hulbert.

Demand for an immediate meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission arises out of the non-payment of salaries to approximately 3,000 employes of the Highway Department and failure to advance moneys due contractors. These salaries and bills have not been paid since late last month.

Before these obligations can be met the Sinking Fund Commission must fix rates of interest on the $10,000,000 worth of assessment bonds authorized by the Board of Estimate a week ago. The next regular meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission is scheduled for Jan. 22, but it had been expected yesterday that a special meeting would be called to make possible payment of obligations by fixing the interest rate.

FRANCONIA ARRIVES BATTERED BY STORM

Reaches Port Twelve Hours Late After Buffeting Gale for Three Days.

The Cunarder Franconia was the most battered of the three Atlantic liners that arrived yesterday, several hours late, from European ports. According to the officers, the starboard lifeboat was carried away, eleven ventilators on the forward deck smashed and a teak gangway door leading from the "B" deck forward to the "C" deck on the port side and a heavy storm door on the port side, which protected the inner door to the main companionway to the saloon, were stove in. Harvey Sandy, a steward, received a broken leg when the Franconia was twelve hours late. The liner's ensign and house flag were at half mast as a token of respect to the thirty years' faithful service of Thomas Milligan, an oiler, who died yesterday morning of heart disease.

The officers said that the gale commenced on Wednesday night and reached its height at 5 P. M. on Thursday, when the vessel encountered cross seas from the southeast and the northwest which struck the Franconia with terrific force and compelled Captain G. W. Nelson to reduce her speed to five knots. The weather did not moderate until early Friday morning. From noon Thursday until noon Friday the Franconia only made 221 miles.

Among the first-cabin passengers were five representatives sent by the Soviet Government from Moscow to inspect the working of the gold mines in California, where they will confer with the executives of the Union Construction Company and other corporations. The delegates were Peter Dronglioff, N. Kousmin, S. Podiaknoff, Alexis Smolnikoff and A. Petrovsky.

Others on the Franconia were Major A. C. Fuller and Captain H. M. Airy of the British Air Ministry, who have come over to study wireless development and will be the guests of John Hays Hammond Jr.

The American liner Mongolia arrived twenty-four hours late from Hamburg with the starboard side of her bridge stove in and some of the ladders washed away. The Cunarder Antonia, another liner to arrive, also was twenty-four hours late. She had a stormy passage all the way from Southampton and was forty hours in Ambrose Channel.

STATE GETS FACTS ON TRANSIT HERE

2,672,940,000 Persons Carried in Year, Says Commission's Report to Legislature.

LAY SUBWAY DELAY TO CITY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 13—The fourth annual report of the State Transit commission was handed down in the Senate and Assembly tonight and referred to committees. In it the commission calls attention to the fact that home rule legislation has bereft it of most of the functions vested in it by the Transit Commission law.

Citing an enormous increase in passenger traffic last year in New York City, the report attested the need for more transit facilities. According to the commission, the transportation facilities of the city for the year ended June 30 carried 2,672,940,000 passengers, an increase over the preceding year of 109,680,000, and "while the transit lines groaned under the added burden, they managed to carry it without impairment of service."

Steps taken by the State regulatory body to improve service on the transit lines, especially in the subways, were outlined in the report, which, disclosing a continued financial improvement by the companies, reported the operating revenues of all companies as showing an increase of more than $6,000,000 over 1923. The increase, however, was almost wholly on the rapid transit lines, as the surface lines showed a total decrease of $157,000 in the same period.

Notice was taken in the report of the opposition of the Board of Estimate to the numerous subway routes approved and put before the board by the Transit Commission, and the subway system of 1913 was characterized as "outgrown," with new lines urgently needed. Only one fare increase was granted during the year. This was to the receivers of the New York & Queens Railway Company, permitting an increase from 5 to 6 cents.

The remarkable growth of traffic at certain points on the subway systems was treated at length in the report, notably at Times Square, where 121,000,000 persons used the Interborough and B. M. T. trains.

Only three accidents of major proportions occurred on the systems under jurisdiction of the commission last year. Prompt cooperation by the companies with regard to safety measures suggested by the commission was assigned as the cause that kept down the number of accidents.

Dealing with another phase of its work the commission reported that the number of railroad commuters entering and leaving the city on the various railroad lines during 1923, the only available figures at the time the report was composed, indicated the urgent need of the submarine loop subway, suggested by the commission some time ago.

"The general condition of the transit situation," said a summary of the report, "remained much the same as in 1923, except that with the steady normal increase the pressure of traffic became appreciably stronger. To some extent this increased congestion and added to the discomfort of travel during the rush hours. Extreme conditions of increase were prevented by the measures taken by the commission and the operating companies to take care of the additional traffic. These greatly alleviated the situation.

"By the addition of 235 new cars which were placed in service on various lines during the year, the equipment was sufficiently reinforced to enable the companies to care for the increase in traffic.

"The commission exerted its influence to prevent any deterioration in service. The New York & Harlem Railroad Company, which operates the Fourth and Madison Avenue surface lines, asked for permission to discontinue service during the early morning hours from 1 to 5 o'clock, on the ground of slight demand during this period. The commission denied the application. The Long Island Railroad Company filed a tariff making a 20 per cent. increase in commutation fares. The commission promptly suspended this tariff and held hearings to determine whether the proposed increase was justifiable. The hearings are still in progress and the matter will go over for determination to the new year. The Pennsylvania Tunnel and Terminal Railroad Company, which controls the Pennsylvania Station, and the Long Island Railroad Company asked the commission's approval to an increase in the rental paid by the Long Island for the use of the station from about $300,000 to more than $1,000,000 a year. The commission held hearings to ascertain the facts and the case is now under advisement.

"Only two companies went into the hands of receivers—the New York and Long Island Traction Company and the Long Island Electric Railway Company. These companies operate surface car lines in Queens Borough and are owned jointly by the Long Island Railroad and the Interborough companies. The receiverships are regarded as steps toward reorganization.

"Generally speaking, the financial condition of the companies continued to show improvement. Operating revenues of all companies amounted to $143,515,000 for the fiscal year, an increase of more than $6,000,000 over 1923. The net corporate income, that is, the actual profits, of all companies was $1,502,626, an increase of $647,146 over 1923."

Regarding grade crossings the report says work involving an expenditure of about $5,000,000 was under way under supervision of the commission during the year.

THUGS HANDCUFF JEWELERS

Get Gems Worth $40,000 in Store at New Rochelle.

Two armed hold-up men stole several trays of jewels last night from the jewelry store of Isaac Krititsin at 16 Mechanics Street, New Rochelle, and escaped in an automobile after placing handcuffs on the wrists of the jeweler and his assistant. The store is directly opposite the City Hall and about a block from Police Headquarters. The jeweler said the loss was about $40,000.

Through the robbery of a safe early yesterday morning in the Lygros Restaurant at 149 Amsterdam Avenue, the police became aware of the presence in this city of another "Jimmy Valentine" who can open strong-boxes by manipulating their combination knobs. The safe was robbed of $1,000 and some jewelry belonging to the wife of the owner, George Cadanam, 148 Amsterdam Avenue.

Richard Luby, 22 years old, of 2,452 Second Avenue, was identified last night in the East Sixty-seventh Street Station by Jacques P. Rosenberg, 65 years old, a broker, as one of the three men who waylaid him and his wife in the lobby of their home at 820 Park Avenue at 8 A. M. Dec. 6 and robbed them at pistol point of jewelry worth $4,000 in value.

It became known last evening that early Sunday morning two robbers attacked Harry Rosenwald in his brother-in-law's grocery at 576 Blake Avenue, Brooklyn, where he was employed, and after beating him unconscious with his fists escaped with $160 from the cash register. Rosenwald gave good descriptions of the two thieves.

Three men who were arrested in Montreal, Canada, in connection with the theft of $15,000 in gems from the home of Thomas J. Regan at 18 West Forty-seventh Street last Christmas Day were held without bail for the action of the Grand Jury when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Max Levine in the West side Court. They were Sam and John Archer, brothers, and Samuel Davis. The police say John Archer had been a butler in the Regan home.

SHEEHAN SEES BAN ON TRANSIT FACTS

Complains He Was Not Called at McAvoy Inquiry, as Requested by the Mayor.

Cornelius H. Sheehan, Deputy Commissioner of Water Supply for Brooklyn, made public yesterday copies of letters exchanged between him and Henry L. Sherman, counsel to Supreme Court Justice McAvoy in the transit investigation, in which Mr. Sheehan complained that he had not been called as a witness.

The city official, pointing out that his presence on the stand had been requested by Mayor Hylan, said that he had intended to testify "in relation to Commissioner Hartness's financial interests in the Brooklyn City Railroad Company." He asserted his belief that there was public suspicion that "the investigation did not wish to reveal the facts" about Hartness's alleged connection with the transit company.

Walter A. Hirsch, partner of Mr. Sherman, informed that the letters had been made public, declined to issue copies from his office. He said that it was "not the practice of this firm to reply to persons through the newspapers." Mr. Hirsch said that he knew of the exchange of letters, but had no more than a fleeting glimpse of them.

Mr. Hirsch pointed out that the investigation was not officially closed, and that Mr. Sheehan could file a brief with the investigators setting forth whatever facts he might care to. The attorney pointed out that the brief would be in accordance with Justice McAvoy's statement when the hearings ended, when he gave the attorneys a week or ten days in which to put in their briefs.

In a letter on city stationery, enclosing the correspondence, Mr. Sheehan informed newspapers:

"I inclose herewith copy of a letter received from Mr. L. Sherman, assistant counsel to Commissioner McAvoy, and copy of my reply thereto, and call your attention to the fact that, despite the fact that the Board of Estimate had made charges, Commissioner McAvoy, through his assistant, refused to call witnesses to prove said charges."

In his letter to the Deputy Commissioner, Mr. Sherman apparently replying to a previous communication, said that interest had been compiled by Mr. Sheehan and handed by him to Mr. Nehrbas, would be sent to Commissioner McAvoy to be considered by him in solving the questions involved.

In his answer Deputy Commissioner Sheehan, besides his allegations about Mr. Hartness, charged that he had been requested by Mayor Hylan to appear before the commission and that failure to call him as a witness must be construed as an unwillingness to admit and receive evidence detrimental to the viewpoint of those conducting the investigation.

Mr. Sheehan said he assumed the investigation was being conducted under the Moreland act and was not a re-enactment of the Spanish Inquisition, where statements could be made in private without the persons interested or affected having a chance to hear and rebut the same.

35 MILES FOR SPEED LIMIT.

Proposed New Auto Laws Also Prohibit Highway Petting.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Eight of a series of thirty bills carrying out recommendations of the special legislative committee which investigated operation of the motor vehicle law enacted last year were introduced tonight. They are sponsored by Senator Fearon and Assemblyman Stapley of Livingston, Chairman of the Assembly Motor Vehicle Committee.

About a dozen more will be put in at tomorrow's session and the final batch probably on Wednesday.

One of the more important of tonight's bills would increase from thirty to thirty-five miles an hour the speed at which an automobile may be operated on State highways, without affecting limits in cities, towns and villages.

An anti-petting party bill was also introduced. This would prohibit the parking of a car on the improved surface of a highway, except in cases of an emergency.

Another measure would prohibit passing a car on a curve or near the top of a hill. Passing an automobile on a railroad crossing or within fifty feet of a crossing is made a violation in another provision and the carrying of luggage on the left hand running board so that it projects beyond the fender would be prohibited by one of the bills.

The sale of a second-hand automobile would have to be reported to the State Motor Vehicle Bureau within forty-eight hours after the sale under another bill.

COMMITTEE LISTS CAUSE ALBANY STIR

Democrats Protest Against the Smallness of Representation in Assembly.

DOMINATED BY REPUBLICANS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—The lists of standing committees which will first consider all measures introduced at the 1925 session of the Legislature, were announced in both houses tonight.

Democrats in the Assembly protested against what they called a usurpation of their rights by Speaker McGinnies in the small representation he allowed them in the committees of the lower house.

New York City fared as well, if not better, than in other years in committee chairmanships. Only a small number of Republican legislators, however, come from there and most of the chairmanships went to up-state members.

All the Republican Senators, with the exception of three, Wendell of Amsterdam, Wales of Binghamton and Williams of Troy, were selected as Chairmen. There are only twenty-six committees in the upper house. The three who did not receive chairmanships are new men.

It was pointed out that one of these three was Senator Wendell, who comes from Amsterdam, the home of George K. Morris, Republican State Chairman. Senator Wendell did not vote for Senator Knight for majority leader in the contest with Senator Fearon of New York City.

Senator Charles J. Hewitt of Locke was appointed Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate. He served in that capacity before the Democrats gained control of the Senate two years ago. The name post in the House went to Assemblyman Eberly L. Hutchinson of Fulton-Hamilton.

Senator Leonard W. H. Gibbs of Buffalo was named Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Senator Fearon of Syracuse heads the Committee on General Laws.

Senators John L. Karle of Ridgewood and Cortlandt Nicoll of New York City received committee chairmanships, Senator Karle heads the Committee on Public Health while Senator Nicoll is the Chairman of the Civil Service Committee.

The memberships of all the Senate committees with the exception of Judiciary, Finance and Internal affairs, were reduced by Senator Knight. The Internal Affairs Committee was increased from fourteen to sixteen members.

In the Assembly the chairmanship of the Committee on Cities went to Walter F. Clayton of Brooklyn. This is the first time in some years that the chairmanship of this important committee has been awarded to a member from Greater New York. Assemblyman Joseph F. Riecs of Kings was made Chairman of the Committee on Claims. Assemblyman Edmund B. Jones of Broome again holds the chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee in the lower house. Virtually all the other important committees of the Assembly are headed by the Chairmen of last year.

Bloch Protests for Democrats.

Maurice Bloch, minority leader of the Assembly, found fault with the representation allowed Democratic Assemblyman on the standing committees. He said:

"On behalf of the minority I must object to the committee assignments given to the minority. The minority represents more than one-third of the elected members of this house, but on committee assignments we have been neglected and I might say our privileges abused. We should have greater representation on committees. We feel that on all committees we should at least have one-third of the representation. It is a burlesque on representative government to have only three members of the minority out of thirteen on a committee.

The Committee on Ways and Means in this house would not follow recommendations made by the Board of Estimate and Control. This board has recommended that the capital expenditures of this state for the coming year will be approximately $18,000,000. On this all-important Committee on Ways and Means, which consists of fifteen members, and passes on the appropriations in behalf of this Government, only three places have been assigned.

"It surely is usurping our rights by failing to give us greater representation on committees. We are helpless and we are bound to submit to the rule of the majority, but do want the record of this house to show the dissatisfaction of the minority members."

CALL FOR LABOR INQUIRY.

Republicans Propose Investigation of Delays in Compensation Cases.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—A resolution providing for a legislative investigation of delays in the settlement of workmen's compensation cases was introduced tonight by Senator Knight, Republican leader of the upper House, and Assemblyman Miller, Chairman of the Assembly Committee on Labor and Industries. It will be read tomorrow, but probably will not be acted upon before next Monday night.

The resolution carries out a recommendation made by the Republicans in their legislative program. For this reason it is expected that it will be adopted in both Houses.

Governor Smith and the Democratic leaders insist there is no reason for the proposed investigation. They say the delays in the settlement of the compensation cases are due to the fact that the appropriations for the Labor Department are not sufficient to employ enough referees and other persons properly to handle the cases.

GEN. BULLARD HONORED BY 107TH INFANTRY

Armory Is Crowded in Tribute to Retiring Officer — Regiment Parades for Miss Bullard.

A military tribute by the 107th Infantry of the New York National Guard to Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, Commander of the Department of the East at Governors Island, who will retire on Friday, took place last night in the Seventh Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street, in addition to the military display a great crowd of civilians filled the galleries and overflowed to every other available part of the Armory.

Preceding the public ceremony General Bullard was the guest of the commander of the regiment, Colonel Wade H. Hayes and staff, in the officers' mess. General Bullard spoke briefly of the long career and services of the regiment, first as the "Famous Seventh," and its more recent history as the 107th Infantry in the World War.

For the first time in ten years, or since the World War, the rank and file of the 107th Infantry turned out in the colorful uniform of the old Seventh, the gray garb of the West Point cut, with white belts and straps, or what was formerly known as the full-dress dress.

With General Bullard at the review of the regiment was Rear Admiral C. P. Plunkett of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Major Gen. George W. Burr, Commander of the National Guard of New York; Miss Rose Bullard, daughter of General Bullard, and others.

Following the review by General Bullard and an exhibition guard mounting by Company F, Captain Otto Prior, commanding, there was a parade of the entire regiment in honor of Miss Bullard.

Some of the guests present were: Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Auchincloss, General and Mrs. Avery D. Andrews, Colonel and Mrs. Delancey Jay, Judge G. A. Carden, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Dykman, General and Mrs. Oliver B. Bridgman, General and Mrs. Charles W. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Trubee Davison, Mr. and Mrs. William Fahnestock, General and Mrs. M. S. Grevatt, Colonel and Mrs. David M. Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. William Brevoort Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Parker D. Handy.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Jay, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Iselin, Colonel and Mrs. Benjamin B. McAlpin, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William T. Manning, Mrs. Nathan L. Miller, General and Mrs. John F. O'Ryan, General and Mrs. Frank Parker and Mrs. General Pershing, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Penfield, Colonel and Mrs. Herbert Parson, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Shipman, Herbert L. Satterlee, General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Colonel and Mrs. J. Mayhew Wainwright, Colonel and Mrs. C. W. Wickersham.

ENRIGHT HOME AGAIN FROM SOUTH AMERICA

All Welcome Plans Called Off Owing to Late Arrival of the Liner.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright returned last night from a two months' visit to the South American republics on the Grace Line steamship Santa Ana. Arrangements had been made to take the Commissioner and his party off the liner at Quarantine and bring them to Pier 35, Brooklyn, at the foot of Hamilton Avenue, on the steamer Manhattan, with the Police Band and Glee Club, but they were canceled because of the late arrival of the vessel.

Commissioner Enright sent a radio message in the afternoon to Police Headquarters here stating that he would remain on the liner and land at the pier.

The Commissioner said he had thoroughly enjoyed his trip. He found the police systems entirely different in South American cities, he said. In the big cities the police are under the Minister of the Interior and in the towns and villages they are under military control. The officers carry swords and the policemen have carbines.

The Commissioner said he would be back at his desk tomorrow morning.

streets for the benefit and convenience of the people.

"The traction financiers and manipulators are gloating over the disorganization of the Board of Estimate, which has been brought about by Controller Craig playing right into the hands of the traction manipulators by his persistent obstruction.

"Driven Into a Blind Alley."

"The traction manipulators want to continue their monopoly on transit in this city by controlling additional subway lines and bus franchises. We have defeated them on the question of tying up further subway lines, constructed with the people's money, with the present lines operated by the B. M. T. and the I. R. T. We are now planning, and are well on the way, to constructing independent rapid transit lines to be built with the people's money and to be operated by the people for their own benefit and convenience.

"Because the Board of Estimate has been, or is now, driven into a blind alley by Craig on the question of buses, the traction companies are in high glee. They see a chance to secure the new bus franchises and to tie up the new rapid transit lines with the lines they operate. They know that unless we can have a full board, properly organized and functioning, save one obstruction, we will not be in a position to give the people additional bus service before next year.

"The B. M. T. and the I. R. T. know that the policy of the city is not to give them any further privileges of the city because they are not operating the existing subway lines, built with the people's money, in a way to give the people decent service. They are turning trains back, running shuttle trains, operating as few trains as possible and crowding and jamming the people in a most disgraceful manner. If they can hold up these franchises until after next election they hope to have an amenable Mayor and other members of the board who cannot withstand the methods resorted to by 'Jerry' Dahl and the traction manipulators, and they will then get not alone the bus franchises but the privilege of operating the independent subway system which we are now constructing.

"If the traction interests and their friends and sympathizers can continue this vacancy in the Board of Estimate so that we cannot give relief to the people by providing them with the lines of buses, municipally operated or otherwise, they feel that the people will turn against the present officials and drive them out of office, and then, with a new Mayor and other officials on the Board of Estimate, they will be able to continue and to extend their monopoly of the transit facilities in this city, to continue and extend the crowding and jamming of the traveling public, to continue and extend their Wall Street manipulations and extortion of large profits."

At the suggestion of the Mayor, the $35,000,000 appropriation ordinance was put over until March. Controller Craig casting the only negative vote.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners Association, told the members of the organization, which met last night at the Hotel Astor, that there was nothing "in all the talk of the city operating a bus system." He predicted that the buses would be owned and controlled by a private corporation, saying that plans to this effect had already been formed out.

MEANS TRIAL OPENS; KLAN ISSUE RAISED

Judge Lindley Applies New Rule to the Questioning of the Veniremen.

HARDWICK AN ATTORNEY

Col. Felder, a Codefendant, Says Citizens of Georgia Retained Him as Counsel.

The trial of Gaston B. Means, former Government agent, and Colonel Thomas B. Felder, a lawyer, on an indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct justice, began yesterday before Federal Judge Lindley, who put into effect, for the first time, the new rule, suggested by Chief Justice Taft, requiring judges to question the veniremen, and to permit no question by counsel except through the court. The first suggestion came from Frank P. Walsh, of counsel for Colonel Felder, who asked the court to ask each juror whether he had any prejudices against the Ku Klux Klan. Mr. Walsh explained his reason for the request by saying that the defense intended to introduce a document relating to the activities of the American Unity aLeague, an organization antagonistic to the Klan. Thereafter the question was asked of each juror.

After the jury had been completed and sworn in former Judge Johnstone, one of Colonel Felder's counsel, moved to dismiss the indictment on the ground that it was insufficient, and that it did not mention a single fact indicating that any alleged agreement had been made to obstruct justice through the bribery of former Attorney General Daugherty, District Attorney Hayward, or the latter's assistants, Major John Molley Clark Jr. and Peter J. McCoy. A similar motion made by Abraham I. Menin, counsel for Means, was made. Both motions were denied.

The two defendants, along with Elmer W. Jarnecke, once a secretary to Means, were charged with attempting to procure the dismissal of an indictment charging several defendants with using the mails to defraud investors in a glass casket concern. It was alleged that these defendants had paid Colonel Felder $85,000, which was to be used by the Colonel and Means to procure favorable action in behalf of the glass casket defendants. All of the latter were convicted and an action was instituted for the recovery of the money. Jarnecke pleaded guilty and is expected to testify for the Government.

Besides former Judge Robert S. Johnstone and Mr. Walsh, Colonel Felder is represented by Thomas W. Hardwick, former United States Senator and former Governor of Georgia, who Colonel Felder said had been retained for him by the citizens of Georgia. Means pleaded that he was without money to employ counsel and Abraham I. Menin was assigned by the Court to defend him. Hiram C. Todd, a special assistant to the Attorney General, represents the Government.

The jurors chosen are:

Edwin L. McCanaughy, flag merchant, 1,210 Clay Avenue, the Bronx; David L. Schiff, importer, 507 West 134th Street; Charles H. Gillespie, architect, 215 West Ninety-second Street; Jacob H. Adler, shoe dealer, 210 West Seventieth Street; Samuel Golden, clothing merchant, 551 West 170th Street; William McDermott, clerk, 1,475 Grand Concourse, the Bronx; David Arm, insurance broker, 2,522 University Avenue, the Bronx; Joseph R. Romeo, food products, 165 West Fifty-eighth Street; Edwin W. Hoff, salesman, 206 West 104th Street; Gilbert Williams, checker, 547 West 142d Street; Emanuel Feilman, real estate, 19 West Eighty-seventh Street, and George Breuer, salesman, 765 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx.

STONEHAM FIGHTS JURY RULE.

Opposes Regulation That Only the Judge May Question Veniremen.

After many delays the trial of Charles A. Stoneham and others, charged with fraudulent use of the mails, was begun yesterday before Federal Judge Winslow. The other defendants indicted with Stoneham are his brother Horace, his brother-in-law, Ross F. Robertson; Leo J. Bondy, his lawyer; the defunct brokerage concerns of Stoneham & Co. and E. D. Dier & Co.; Elmore D. Dier, head of the Dier concern; Fred Andrews, cashier of the firm and the latter's son Bernard, a clerk, and August Stroh, son-in-law of Andrews, who was assistant cashier of the Dier firm. Victor House represents the Government.

The new rule adopted at the suggestion of Chief Justice Taft that Federal Judges question veniremen and that questions which counsel desire to ask shall be asked through the Court was put into effect. The counsel representing the defense are Herbert C. Smyth, Edward P. Colladay, Charles McCarthy of Washington, ex-Judge Nash Rockwood, Max Ornstein, Martin Conboy, Edgar Hirschberg, Charles H. Tuttle and Millard H. Ellison.

As soon as Judge Winslow had filled the jury box Mr. Smyth objected to the rule permitting only the Court to question jurors. A motion that Mr. Smyth be permitted to question all of the jurors personally in behalf of all of the defendants was denied. An exception was taken. The jury was excused until this morning and the motion of Mr. Smyth was argued.

ARRESTED ON ORDER SIGNED 4 YEARS AGO

Artist and Collector Accused of Abandonment by Woman He Met in Holland.

An order of arrest signed in March, 1921, by Supreme Court Justice Erlanger was served yesterday on Constant Lucas Fliermans, artist and collector, formerly of The Hague, Holland, in the suit of a woman who calls herself Henrica B. Fliermans. She says that she became his wife at The Hague in 1914, when he put a ring on her finger and told her they were married. A woman who was asserted by Fliermans to be his wife, and with whom he has been living at the Hotel Theresa, in West 125th Street, accompanied him to the Sheriff's office when he gave $5,000 bail as surety that any alimony that may be awarded the plaintiff in the present action will be paid.

When the plaintiff applied for the order of arrest in 1921 she asserted that she had borne Fliermans two children, one of whom had died, and that the other, Constant Lucas Fliermans 2d, born in 1917, was the subject of proceedings for the boy's custody in 1920. She said that Fliermans was worth $200,000 and had an annual income of $10,000, and that after the birth of the two children he told her in Holland that they were to be as strangers thereafter and he would not provide for her. She said she was obliged to accept employment at $4 a day to maintain herself and son and asked that Fliermans be compelled to pay her $100 a week alimony.

The arrest order was never served because she lost sight of Fliermans. For some years she has been living at 209 West 125th Street. While walking recently on that street she said she saw Fliermans, and followed him to the Hotel Theresa, where she found he had been living for some time. She notified her attorney, who revived the arrest order and gave it to Deputy Sheriff Goldstein to be served.

AMERICA ACCEPTS PARIS SETTLEMENT

portion, which would have brought accounting complications, the American share will be sliced off the Allies' share, France's part being, for example, cut from 52 to 50.8 per cent and so on. Two years from now the Belgian 8 per cent. share is to be cut 3½ per cent. and that difference is to be split between England and France over four years.

Washington Accepts in Principle.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Informal announcement was authorized at the State Department today that the American Government had accepted in principle the arrangement at Paris but had not yet received details of the plan.

In the absence of Secretary Hughes, who will not return from the South until Wednesday, State Department officials refrained from comment beyond stating that there was no departure in it from the American policy with respect to collection of claims from Germany out of the Dawes plan payments.

Secretary Hughes has been willing from the outset to have these collections made in a manner that would not burden the Allies.

DAWES PLAN WORKING WELL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Seymour Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparation Payments, is making a second report on the operation of the Dawes plan to the Reparation Commission this week. The results up to date, he says, are completely satisfactory and the terms laid down by the experts have been scrupulously executed by all the contracting parties.

M. Leverve, Controller of the German railroad system, has also reported to M. Clementel that the working of the railroads is already sufficiently remunerative to allow the issue, at once of 1,000,000,000 marks of railroad bonds. It is stated here that American financiers have been insisting that this operation should be carried through, but the Finance Minister, after consultation with the other Finance Ministers here, considers that the American conditions are not completely satisfactory.

It has been decided to adjourn emission of the bonds to a later date, when, it is expected, they can be issued on better conditions, even at par.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—All the organizations provided for under the Dawes plan are gathering in Paris for what promises, to use the words of Seymour Parker Gilbert Jr., Agent General for Reparations, who arrived in Paris today from Berlin, "one of the most important weeks in the execution of the Dawes plan since it went into force."

The Dawes plan will take the centre of the reparations stage immediately the Finance Ministers make their exit from the scene. The first meeting of the Dawes plan officials has been called for Wednesday, when all the commissioners and trustees appointed under the plan will meet under the chairmanship of Mr. Gilbert.

On Thursday Mr. Gilbert will preside over the meeting of the Transfer Committee, which includes Joseph E. Sterrett of New York, representing the United States. The trustees of the German loan, Mr. Gilbert, Dean Jay of the Morgan-Harjes Bank in Paris, and M. Terneulen of Holland, will meet later in the week.

The Coordinating Board, when it meets on Wednesday, expects to have before it the official protocol of settlement concluded by the Conference Finance Ministers and to study its adaptation to the future execution of the Dawes plan.

TALKS ON DEBTS CONTINUE.

Churchill Discusses Question With Clementel and Loucheur.

PARIS, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—Conversations on war debts between Great Britain and France continue intermittently. Mr. Churchill this evening dined at the residence of M. Loucheur and went over the question with him, and also had a talk with M. Clementel during the day. He and M. Clementel will have another meeting tomorrow, at which Premier Herriot will be present, unless prevented by work in connection with the reopening of the French Chamber.

No attempt has been made thus far to take advantage of the new situation created by the appointment of Mr. Kellogg as Secretary of State to bring America unofficially into these discussions.

KANSAS GOVERNOR ARRESTED IN COURT

Governor and Son in Court.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—Governor Davis and his son, Russell, waived reading of the complaint when they appeared in court here this morning to answer to warrants sworn out by County Attorney Tinkham Veale charging them with accepting a bribe.

The charge read that "Jonathan M. Davis and Russell Davis did intentionally and knowingly conspire together and did assist, aid and abet with each other in the receiving and accepting of a certain bribe." It further alleged that Jonathan M. Davis, as Governor of Kansas, "accepted, through his agent, his son, Russell Davis, $1,250 under a certain agreement between his son, Russell, and Fred Pollman," and "that he, the said Jonathan M. Davis, would grant a pardon to one Fred Poliman, who had been committed to the penitentiary and who was then on parole, in consideration of the payment of $1,250 to the defendant, Russell Davis, his said agent, as aforesaid."

The bond for each defendant was set at $1,000 and a hearing was set for Jan. 23 at 10 o'clock. Bondsmen included R. T. Kriepe, a manufacturer and Deputy Bank Commissioner; S. L. Courtney, a merchant; Robert L. Hendericks, a retired farmer; W. H. Kemper, a capitalist; C. B. Merriam and J. R. Burrows, bankers, and William Quail, retired.

Hendericks called the proceedings an "outrage," designed to humiliate the Governor on the last day of his Administration.

Asks Legislative Inquiry.

In a letter to the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate, which convenes tomorrow, Governor Davis wrote:

"There has been much criticism and comment in the public press concerning the exercise of the pardoning power granted by the Constitution and the law to the Governor.

"I am sure that a close examination of the files will disclose not only that proper care has been exercised in the securing of information and evidence in every case, but that a proper basis exists for the granting of clemency in every case where such grant has been made.

"An examination in the facts and circumstances surrounding the administration of the parole will be helpful in determining what, if any, changes should be made in the law.

"Personally I desire a full and complete investigation, because I want the opportunity to show that I have given careful, attentive consideration to the administration of this law. I also want the opportunity to show that there is no warrant for the belief that I have been influenced in my decisions upon cases brought before me by any other motive than that of administering the law in the spirit in which it was enacted.

"I believe an examination of the records and files will show my administration of the parole law in a very favorable light, when compared with previous administrations. Let me suggest that I think if an investigation is to be undertaken precaution should be taken at once to protect the files from being interfered with by any other than the properly constituted authorities. I am sure this precaution will suggest itself to you if you take the trouble to become acquainted with the nature of the files and how they are kept."

Pollman Spurns Pardon.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 12.—Fred W. Pollman, to whom Russell G. Davis, son of former Governor Davis of Kansas, delivered a pardon after receiving $1,250, will go to Topeka tomorrow and ask Governor Paulen to cancel the pardon, says a copyrighted story in The Kansas City Journal.

In a signed statement tonight Pollman said that "at no time have I relied on the pardon issued by Governor Davis under such circumstances as any of my friends with whom I have worked the last few weeks will testify."

ACCUSES DAVIS APPOINTEE.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—Attorney General Griffith this afternoon demanded the resignation of Carl J. Peterson, State Bank Commissioner, appointed by Governor Jonathan M. Davis, says a special dispatch to The Kansas City Star from its Topeka Bureau.

Attorney General Griffith took action on the strength of an affidavit made by A. L. Oswald, a lawyer, of Hutchinson, in which it is charged Peterson demanded $4,000 for the parole of Walter Grundy, Hutchinson bank wrecker, now serving a term in the Kansas Penitentiary. The Star dispatch says.

Peterson Denies Charge

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—Carl J. Peterson, State Bank Commissioner, declared tonight that he would resist any ouster proceedings. He denied the truth of allegations made in an affidavit by A. L. Oswald, a Hutchinson attorney, charging the commissioner with soliciting money for a parole for Walter Grundy.

Peterson said Oswald has proposed to advance some money to free Grundy but that he turned him down. His term is for four years, of which he has served two.

"There was one matter of $400," Peterson said, "that I told Oswald would have to be paid by Grundy. That was $400 which had been advanced by the bank to hire detectives to locate Grundy when he wrecked the bank. As for accepting any money to free Grundy, I absolutely did not nor did I agree to."

BRINGS IN CREW OF WRECKED SHIP

FIRED VESSEL AT SEA

Portuguese Craft Lost Three Sets of Sails in a Succession of Storms.

After being within twenty-five miles of Philadelphia on Nov. 28 last and being blown away to the southward of Cape Hatteras and left to drift sailless and waterlogged, the captain and crew of fifteen men from the Portuguese four-masted schooner Manuel Caragol were landed at Pier 13, Staten Island, yesterday morning by the United States Shipping Board freighter Kenowis. The rescue was made Saturday morning 350 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras and the derelict schooner, which had twelve feet of water in the hold, was set on fire to prevent her becoming a danger to navigation.

Captain Joseph Mogano and his fifteen men had been living on what sailors call one pantile, or hardtack, per day for eleven days washed down with a pannikin full of rain water. Most of them had received bruises through being tossed around the decks by the seas, but none was injured. They had saved their few belongings in canvas bags which they carried when they went ashore at 1 o'clock yesterday with the Portuguese Consul.

Captain William P. Humphried, the master of the Kenowis, which arrived here seven days late from Antwerp through the continuous stormy weather, said that the Manuel Caragol was sighted at 4 A. M. Saturday from the bridge by G. Darbell, the chief officer, about 250 miles southeast of the Ambrose Channel Lightship. The vessel had been fired by the crew when they saw the lights of the steamer approaching, and the sixteen men left her in a motor boat with a lug sail hoisted and the propeller unshipped, as they had no gasoline.

"The schooner had only a forestaysail set," said Captain Humphries, "and it looked as if all her other canvas had been blown away. She was practically awash. After bringing the rescued men to the ship and making a trip to the derelict to make sure that she would continue to burn, we hoisted up the lifeboat and resumed our course for New York at 8:55 A. M. The boat belonging to the Manuel Caragol was cast adrift.

"The cook gave the sixteen men a good, hot meal in the dining saloon with plenty of coffee, which put life into them and they enjoyed a cigarette before turning into their bunks to have a good sleep, which was the first they had had for more than a month. The chief officer, Mr. Darbell, had a good look at the schooner before leaving to see if she might be worth salvaging. The cargo of bones was valued at $5,000, but with the damaged condition of the schooner it would not have paid to bring the derelict into port."

Captain Mogano said the Manuel Caragol sailed from Montevideo, Uruguay, for Philadelphia on Aug. 5 with a cargo of bones and during her voyage to New York had three sets of sails blown from the bolt ropes in the various gales and hurricanes the vessel encountered. On Sept. 27 the craft put into Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to refit after the first set of sails had gone and to get fresh supplies. Leaving Rio on Oct. 21 the schooner sailed up the coast and reached the mouth of the Delaware River Nov. 25. The crew were so sure of landing in Philadelphia the next morning that they got their tobacco and advance money accounts ready to draw from the captain. At 9 that night a terrific gale came out from the Northwest and the schooner was stripped of her canvas and driven 185 miles to the southward. The third and last set of sails was bent by the crew and by skilfully tacking the schooner once more stood in toward her destination until Dec. 23, when another northwester blew the craft away again. On Christmas Eve she was stripped of her canvas and lay helpless in the trough of the sea. The crew managed to save the fore staysail from being blown from the bolt ropes and it was kept set to prevent her from drifting further away. On New Year's Eve the schooner had crept up toward Philadelphia, when she was again driven away. By that time the water was twelve feet deep in the hold, which made the vessel unmanageable. From that date until picked up, eleven days later, the disabled schooner drifted to the southward.

EIGHTH AVENUE ORGANIZES.

Calls Itself "New York's Fastest Growing Street."

Merchants and property owners organized the Eighth Avenue Association yesterday and announced that they would take action to obtain better traffic conditions on the avenue and protect business and property interests during the construction of the proposed subway.

A pamphlet, entitled "Let Us Make New York Better Acquainted With Its Fastest Growing Street," invited merchants and owners to an organization meeting at the Oyster Bay Restaurant, 674 Eighth Avenue, yesterday. About thirty representative business men and real estate owners were present and elected the following officers: President, John C. Forster, real estate; Vice President, William H. Behrens, jeweler; Secretary and Managing Director, James W. Danahy, editor of "Sales"; Treasurer, William J. Koepchen of the Longacre Bank. FRENCH SEE NO GAIN IN HUGHES RETIRING

FEAR INFLUENCE OF BORAH

Newspapers Now Declare That Hughes Was a Good Friend and Did Much for Europe.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Conversations with Senators and Deputies gathering in Paris today for the opening of Parliament tomorrow show an inclination to regard the appointment of Ambassador Kellogg as Secretary of State as promising closer cooperation between Britain and the United States, which the French naturally think will not greatly benefit them, especially since the two countries whose close collaboration is expected here are the two great creditors of France.

Beyond this development the French do not see any prospect of Mr. Kellogg altering American foreign policy in the direction Europeans would like, namely, toward full cooperation in world affairs.

Europe's experience with Secretary Hughes brought the conviction that he is a forceful man, and those who did not agree with the policies he carried out admired his virile action. There is a deep-set idea in Europe that Mr. Hughes himself favored a much greater degree of American cooperation in external business than he was able to exercise because of the constraint of the Senate, and regarding Mr. Hughes's departure as increasing the power of the Senate in foreign relations, the French do not see in the accession of Mr. Kellogg a strong probability of Washington swinging away from the nationalism which holds sway in the Washington upper house.

In view of the frequent criticisms made of Mr. Hughes, the great praise given to him by the French press is surprising, and brings the belief that after all, the mean things said about Mr. Hughes were meant indirectly for the Senate of the United States, and that the retiring Secretary of State was used by French editors only as a sort of reflector. Indeed, one can almost arrive at the conclusion that the French are sorry that Mr. Hughes is stepping out, which would mean that they do not expect better luck with Mr. Kellogg.

Marcel Ray, political editor of the Petit Journal, sees significance in President Coolidge's choice of the Ambassador, who has been working toward cooperation between London and Washington, and says:

"We have just seen in the financial conference a result of this effort and we shall see Anglo-American cooperation develop when Mr. Kellogg sits in Mr. Hughes's chair."

M. St. Brice, in the Journal, thinks that Mr. Hughes is getting ready to run for President. Reviewing his record the editor says:

"As Secretary of State Mr. Hughes had two great ideas, the Washington Conference and the Dawes plan. On naval disarmament American illusions are fast disappearing. An enormous movement has developed in America to denounce the inferiority of the fleet and to demand a change in gun elevation which would amount to a flagrant violation of the naval treaty. On the contrary, the Dawes plan is still on full honeymoon. Americans think they have found a way to put their hands in the European machinery without the risk of having their fingers caught in wheels. There again they will be deceived. Some of these days the dollar will see it is only working for the pound sterling so long as the American Government is not disposed to put its real strength into the battle. Mr. Hughes is intelligent enough to foresee the day of international reckoning."

M. Saint Brice explains at length how Mr. Hughes sees in Senator Borah's policies endless complications for the State Department and prefers to allow some one else to hold the bag.

Pertinax, in the Echo de Paris, thinks that Mr. Kellogg is not strong enough to combat the Senate, even if he wished, and therefore that the change means greater control by the Senate in the conduct of foreign affairs unless Mr. Kellogg is merely a stopgap, preceding another change. He sees a further vanishing of the European picture of American idealism.

The Temps tonight devotes its leading article to the retirement of Mr. Hughes.

"Mr. Hughes is a first-class man whose personal influence has counted for much in the past three years," it says. "If little by little the Washington Government has altered its policy of having nothing to do with Europe it is largely due to Mr. Hughes. His work on the reparations plan showed his disposition to have America cooperate in world affairs, even if only unofficially. If in recent months a grave situation between the United States and Japan was avoided, that was the work of Mr. Hughes."

If it is true that Mr. Hughes quit because of differences with Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Borah, the Temps does not see any gratification for Europe in the change in the State Department. The Temps sees in Mr. Borah a deadly opponent of the League of Nations, an apostle of isolation and a friend of the Soviets, and adds:

"From a European point of view this change means that we must henceforth count on Mr. Borah's influence."

It makes complimentary remarks about Mr. Kellogg's career, concluding that it remains to be seen whether he will make a good Secretary of State.

BERLIN SEES NO CHANGE.

Newspapers Do Not Expect Any New Policies From Kellogg.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Great interest is shown here in the resignation of Secretary Hughes. The newspapers devote columns to it, but publish mostly long dispatches from their correspondents in America and London, without adding much independent comment of their own. What comment they do make is varied. Some writers do not see in Mr. Hughes's departure from the State Department any sign that the American attitude toward Germany and Europe generally will change, while others think it presages a different American policy toward the Old World.

The Vossische Zeitung, which strongly champions the execution of the Dawes plan, believes no change in the Washington policy is coming, especially regarding the Dawes plan, since, it points out, General Dawes remains Vice President. The same paper attributes Mr. Hughes's resignation to the forthcoming Anglo-American policy of rapprochement with Soviet Russia, which Mr. Hughes under no conditions could countenance.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says: "Mr. Hughes's resignation is an important event of the greatest possible significance in world politics, the basic reason for which cannot be given in a few words."

The American correspondents of the Berlin papers make much of the reported antagonism of Mr. Hughes and Senator Borah, drawing the conclusion from the former's resignation that henceforth Mr. Borah will contribute considerably toward shaping American foreign policy. They also tell their German readers of the belief among many Americans that President Coolidge wishes to be his own Secretary of State, wherefore he has appointed in Mr. Hughes's place a man who will be docile in carrying out his wishes.

Several Berlin commentators on Mr. Hughes's resignation also emphasize the belief that Mr. Hughes's Japanese policy was partially responsible for his retirement.

A striking comment is that of the Tageszeitung, which, though Nationalist and unfriendly to America, nevertheless declares that, while Mr. Hughes was not a friend of Germany, a certain relief of tension between America and Germany was achieved during his term of office. He is also credited with certain services in consolidating the situation in Europe through the plan which came from him of having Germany's ability to pay reparations estimated by experts and the reparation question finally settled by them.

The paper construes Mr. Kellogg's appointment as indicating a sharper orientation of America toward England.

LONDON AWAITS KELLOGG.

Embassy Officials Expect Him to Sail for Home Early Next Month.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The date of Ambassador Kellogg's return from Paris depends upon the progress made in the Paris conference, but it is expected at the embassy that he will be back by the middle of this week. Until he returns, nothing can be said definitely about his departure for the United States, but it is presumed that as he must be in Washington by March 4 and will naturally desire to confer with Secretary Hughes before taking over the reins of office, he is likely to leave here before the middle of February.

There is little of importance pending at the moment between Britain and the United States. A treaty concerning the rights of American citizens in countries under mandate, such as Togoland, is in process of negotiation. No hitch of any kind has arisen, but there have been suggestions of verbal alterations which may cause some delay through the necessity of referring the British suggestions to Washington.

Considerable personal regret at the departure of Mr. Kellogg is expressed in official circles. His dealings with British officials have been pleasant and cordial, and they will regret the day when he presents his letters of recall.

The London Times pays warm tribute to Mr. Hughes on his resignation. It declares that the features of American foreign policy which are now most familiar to the world are those with which Mr. Hughes was particularly identified and adds:

"To understand the great American nation, with all its conflicting impulses and tendencies, had not been altogether easy for foreigners during the years when the actions of America were of particular importance to the whole bewildered family of nations. Mr. Hughes, at any rate, was intelligible. The workings of his able mind had become familiar. It was possible to depend upon his interpretation of that great force which was America. He knew his America and he knew the world. He also understood as perhaps no one else did during a very difficult period the nature of the relations between a changing America and a world that was changing still more swiftly. He knew moveover—and this is his chief title to fame—how to interpret these unstable and uncertain relations in a policy that was at once coherent and convincing to people at home and to people abroad.

"He maintained the balance. He was neither retrograde nor Utopian. He knew exactly how far he could go at any given moment. He was acutely sensitive to the confused impulses of the great nation which he represented, and at the same time acutely aware of the crying needs and inveterate rivalries of the great world outside. He succeeded in conveying to the world in speech and in action and in the manner of his restraint something like the exact attitude of America to the chief world problems."

JAPANESE REGRET RESIGNATION OF HUGHES

They Praise His Friendship for Them—Would Have Preferred Warren as His Successor.

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Jan. 12.—The news of the resignation of Secretary Hughes has been received here with great regret, as it is felt that he is a friend of Japan and that in his handling of the various questions which have arisen he has consistently shown a favorable attitude toward this country. His opposition to the manner in which Congress excluded Japanese immigrants and his recent message of welcome to Ambassador Matsudaira are considered substantial evidence of his friendliness.

An official circle sought tribute is paid to the conciliatory attitude which Secretary Hughes has shown toward Japan on all questions. It is felt that Secretary Hughes and President Coolidge have at all times shown an understanding of the Japanese attitude, and whatever resentment there may be against the United States is directed at Congress and not the Administration.

It is feared that the appointment of Ambassador Kellogg to succeed Mr. Hughes foreshadows greater attention on the part of the United States to European affairs than to Far Eastern questions, although from the Japanese viewpoint there are pending questions between the United States and Japan requiring the most careful handling. The immigration question is still considered outstanding and some apprehension is still being felt over the American naval maneuvres plan. Every move of the United States is being criticized by a suspicious public.

If another disarmament conference is called by President Coolidge within the next year it is believed that Secretary Hughes, who so successfully handled the last conference, would have inspired great confidence among the nations taking part.

Ambassador Kellogg personally is virtually unknown here and there is a keen desire to find out more about him, while the hope is expressed in official circles that he may continue the policy of Secretary Hughes.

The appointment of Charles B. Warren as Attorney General is welcomed here, as he left many friends after his stay as Ambassador. He is known to be friendly to Japan and it is hoped that his inclusion in the Cabinet will wield a sympathetic influence. It is certain that Japanese officials would have preferred to see him made Secretary of State, where he would have been directly concerned with the conduct of foreign affairs.

Nichi Nichi, commenting upon the resignation of Secretary Hughes, regrets that he is leaving office at a time when relations between America and Japan are strained.

"Mr. Hughes made every effort to maintain amicable relations between America and Japan," Nichi Nichi says. "He made possible the success of the Washington Conference and when the Japanese exclusion clause came before Congress last year he tried his best to prevent the enactment of that injurious law. The relations between America and Japan are again becoming strained, and indications point to a second disarmament conference. The resignation of Secretary Hughes at this time is a great loss."

The Jiji will say tomorrow:

"We greatly regret the resignation of Secretary Hughes, who brought the Washington Conference to a successful conclusion and devoted himself to the maintenance of friendly relations between America and Japan, and we extend our thanks to him for what he accomplished during his term of office.

"We hope Ambassador Kellogg will pursue the same policy that Mr. Hughes has in his conduct of foreign affairs."

Senate Judiciary Committee Decides to Hear Further Witnesses on Ownbey Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Confirmation of Attorney General Harlan F. Stone as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court was held up again today, this time by the full membership of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate after a favorable report was made by a subcommittee of three, of which Senator Sterling is Chairman. It was reported that the vote in the subcommittee was two to one, with the one member taking the position that other witnesses be examined before final action is taken. The full committee will give further consideration to the nomination on Thursday.

Delay on the nomination of Mr. Stone has been due to the protest made by James A. Ownbey of Boulder, Col., who charged that he had been made the victim of a conspiracy by which coal properties valued at about $400,000 in Colorado and New Mexico were taken away from him by those in control of the estate of the late J. P. Morgan. Mr. Ownbey said that Mr. Stone had been of counsel for the Morgan interests.

Former Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware, who had been of counsel for the Morgan interests in the Delaware courts and before the Supreme Court, appeared before the Judiciary Committee today and gave his version of the transaction involved. It is probable that other witnesses will be called, and some members of the committee are reported as urging delay until the records of the Colorado courts are inspected. The subcommittee and the full Judiciary Committee have held only executive sessions, and there has been no formal statement in regard to the developments.

The appointment of Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan as Attorney General to succeed Mr. Stone has been referred to a subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee, of which Senator Borah of Idaho is Chairman. There have been reports that the connection of Mr. Warren with large sugar interests would be brought up during the consideration of his nomination.

HOUGHTON IS SLATED TO SUCCEED KELLOGG

They mentioned also that Secretary Hughes had a high opinion of Mr. Houghton's ability as a diplomat and that he had worked for the election of Mr. Coolidge in last year's campaign. In all the circumstances a considerable number of Senators were inclined to believe that Mr. Houghton stood an excellent chance of obtaining the Ambassadorship to Great Britain.

There are some important Republicans who think that Senator McCormick will be appointed Ambassador to London. He is a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations. He has made a study of international problems. He has a wide acquaintance with leading statesmen of Europe, and as the son of a former Ambassador to Russia and France, lived abroad in a diplomatic environment for years. The feeling exists that if Mr. McCormick is not offered the British mission, he will be asked to accept the Ambassadorship at Berlin, granted that Mr. Houghton goes to London, or at Rome. The mention of Rome in this connection with Mr. McCormick arises from reports that Henry P. Fletcher, the present Ambassador, may go to Berlin. Mr. Fletcher has had long experience in diplomatic offices and is credited with having the complete confidence of Secretary Hughes.

Senators Praise Hughes's Service.

The gathering of Senators today for their first session after Saturday's announcement emphasized the deep feeling of regret that the nation was about to lose Mr. Hughes's services. When Mr. Hughes was appointed Secretary of State by President Harding some Republican Senators were inclined to be provoked for party reasons, but the manner in which he has conducted the foreign relations of the United States has won the admiration even of those who did not look with satisfaction on his designation for the chief office in the Cabinet. Differences between Mr. Hughes and Senators of his party since he became Secretary of State seemed to be forgotten in the general expressions of regret over his retirement.

Nothing came to light today to indicate that other Cabinet changes are impending. The request of Secretary Davis to retire from the Department of Labor at the beginning of Mr. Coolidge's new term is understood to have been brought from the President a pressing invitation to him to remain. Reports that Secretaries Weeks and Work and Postmaster General New would not be in the new Cabinet were not confirmed in anything that developed today. The understanding prevails that President Coolidge has not intimated to any of them that his resignation, which will be tendered at the end of the present Presidential term, in accordance with tradition, will be accepted.

The Post of Secretary of Agriculture will become vacant on March 4, when the present Secretary, Howard M. Gore, becomes Governor of West Virginia. President Coolidge has been anxious to find some man of ability to undertake the duties of Assistant Secretary of Agriculture in the understanding that he would be promoted to the Secretaryship when Mr. Gore retired, but apparently has been unable to carry out that desire. In political circles the belief prevails that the next Secretary of Agriculture will be Robert D. Carey of Wyoming, now head of the President's Agricultural Commission.

HUGHES WANTS TO GO HUNTING

Plans to Have Time Now for Himself and His Family.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 12.—Secretary Hughes made it plain here today that he has retired from politics for the time being, at least, and that in all probability the remainder of his years will be devoted to private life.

He refused to discuss national and international problems in any phase, and devoted his time entirely to sessions of the Executive Committee of the American Bar Association, which were featured by selection of Detroit as the 1926 meeting place, and discussion of legislation to remedy abuses of the bankruptcy laws.

Mr. Hughes stated that he was tired of the long strain of public life and desires a rest, and that after a short period of recreation he would return to practice with his old law firm in New York City.

He was asked if he plans to run for President again four years from now, but replied he had no further political ambitions. As to his resignation, all he would say was that his letter to the President was self explanatory and that there was no need to add more to it.

The Secretary is keenly interested in hunting and indicated that as soon as he is free from office, he intends to devote some time to it. At a reception given here in his honor he told one of his hosts that he had heard there was some good bird hunting near Atlanta and inquired as to the chances during his stay here. He wanted to know if the weather would be favorable and was told that the chances for a day with the dogs and a gun were good.

"After a good many years of public service, I am going to have some time to devote to myself and to my family," he said. He declared that when he left Washington he left affairs of office behind and was not going to spoil his trip by any statements for public consumption.

The principal feature of entertainment provided for today was a banquet at the Piedmont Driving Club tonight, at which Hughes made a short address. The gaiety of the occasion was dimmed by the fact that just before the banquet began Alex W. Smith, a leader of the Atlanta Bar, dropped dead. He and other lawyers were waiting the arrival of Mr. Hughes, and as the Secretary came into the club and the march to the banquet room began, Mr. Smith collapsed of apoplexy.

HUGHES LAMENTS ADVANCE OF CRIME

LAW-ABIDING SPIRIT NEEDED

But He Holds the Supreme Court Is Secure for a Time From "Politicians."

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—The one great need of the world is "not some formula or rule, but a law-abiding sentiment throughout the land—the disposition to be reasonable, to be fair, to settle things according to available standards of justice, to enforce the conceptions of justice against the demonstrations of brute force," Secretary Hughes declared in an address here tonight.

Mr. Hughes's address was delivered at a banquet given for him and other members of the Executive Committee of the American Bar Association. He made no reference to his recent resignation from the Cabinet.

"I am not going to discuss any great world problems, whether recent or old—though I might remark that most of our recent problems are old problems," Mr. Hughes said in his opening remarks, and throughout the address he held principally to a discussion of the standards of the legal profession.

After discussing the several methods that the Bar Association was employing to maintain the "tone and standards of the profession," Mr. Hughes said the organization was attempting to make specific advances by obtaining definite reforms.

"In this, we have to encounter the legislative barriers—not avenues, but barriers to success," he said. "And sometimes it seems as though what we desired was so simple, so easily to be demonstrated to be necessary, that we should have our legislative brethren standing outside of the chambers of legislation hailing us with delight that we had already prepared bills that all they had to do was to pass.

"But our experience is sometimes the contrary, and when we get the entire Supreme Court at times to endorse a bill, it still takes time to get it through. While we are somewhat disheartened by dilatoriness in procedure, and by the terrible advance crime makes, because our people do not seem intelligent enough to rally their forces to their command to punish the guilty, yet even then we should remember that perhaps the best thing we can do in our organization is to create and devise the law-abiding sentiment.

"I would not speak here of anything controversial, but I am glad to feel that in this country, for a time at least, we have the Supreme Court of the United States secure from the attacks of politicians."

He was interrupted by applause, and when he resumed it was with the statement that throughout the country the people who made the nation, who served it, the people who were intent upon all the progress which could be rationally obtained, were those who were determined to protect our courts from the assaults of demagogues.

All the plans of the Association for Law and Order and Peace rest on the law-abiding sentiment, Mr. Hughes declared.

"It is useless to be an apostle of truth throughout the world unless you are an apostle of truth at home," he continued. "It is useless to talk of the great institutions of justice throughout the world unless you have them at home. "This great institution, the American Bar Association * * * is devoted to that end, to take all obstacles from the complete adoption of justice; to have crime punished and rights vindicated, and to have one word which will rally all the people around the standard regardless of all other differences, so that they will support any proposition to that end any man can bring forward—and that word is justice.

"I wish all our people would think of law as the expression of the democracy will—not something imposed from above but think of it as the expression of the will of the people—the well-thought-out well-considered will of all the people and not something having mere temporary partisan or political advantage. These are our aims; these are our securities."

CAPT. HIBBEN HEARS OBJECT OF INQUIRY

Question Is if Association With Communist Agency Unfits Him for Reserves.

Definitions of the object of the investigation of Captain Paxton Hibben by an Army Board of Inquiry, of which Captain Hibben says he hitherto has been unaware, were given last evening at a hearing by the board in the Engineering Societies Building in West Thirty-ninth Street. One definition was contained in a letter said to have been written by Secretary of War Weeks to Senator George W. Norris in response to a request for information. The other was given by Major Thomas L. Heffernan, an advisory member of the board.

"It is a good thing to have the issue in this case defined at last, after all these months," commented Captain Hibben after the hearing.

The quotation from Secretary Weeks's letter follows:

"A reserve officer, except when on active duty, is not subject to the Articles of War which govern the armies of the United States, and it is not and never has been the policy of the War Department to prevent in any manner the expression of his views or to limit his activities. Should any such activities proceed to the point where they may be inimical to the constituted Government or be of such a nature as to cause scandal or disgrace to the uniform, no alternative is left but to cause an investigation of the facts to be made with a view to ascertaining the suitability of the officer in question to retain his appointment in the Officers' Reserve Corps."

Major Heffernan declared that the issue for the Board to consider seemed to be whether Hibben's association with an agency of Communists "was such as to unfit him to be an officer of the Reserve Corps."

Adjournment was taken to this afternoon.

GETS THREE MONTHS FOR RADIO TUBE FAKE

Seller Is Accused of Misbranding Bulbs—Prosecutor Says Thousands Were Distributed.

A sentence of three months in the workhouse was imposed in Special Sessions yesterday on Joseph Haberman, 20 years old, of 217 East 182d Street, the Bronx, on his conviction by Justices Herbert, Petterson and Voorhees of offering for sale under misrepresentation "booties" radio tubes. The tubes, it was charged, were in cartons marked "Radio Corporation of America." It also was alleged that the corporation's name was stamped in the brass base of the tubes and circulars and pamphlets about the corporation's name had been placed inside the carton.

Assistant District Attorney Emory Weller told the court that information had reached him that the plot had been in existence for at least eight months, and that during that period about 10,000 of the spurious tubes had been sold daily throughout the country.

MAN AND WIFE ADMIT MURDER IN BUDAPEST

Lured Victim With 100,000,000 Crowns to Flat, Where Body Was Cut to Pieces.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—The horrorful details of the murder of one Kondelka, a sausage manufacturer, in Budapest, by Lieutenant Lederer of the gendarmerie and his wife, have been revealed by a full confession of the guilty couple.

According to the concurring confessions, made separately, the couple lured the manufacturer to their flat, asking him to bring along 100,000,000 Hungarian crowns to be invested in a dollar transaction. The Lieutenant beat out the brains of the victim, carved the body into small pieces and packed them into suit cases, while his wife washed out blood stains which covered everything in the rooms.

The story of the man and wife substantially agree on these details, the only difference being that the man insists that he committed the deed only on his wife's urging. "I did it because I was terribly in love with her," the Lieutenant told the authorities.

Frau Lederer denies that she was the sole instigator, and says the plan was concocted jointly.

Lederer's brother, a bank clerk, is also under arrest, having received 5,000,000 crowns hush money from the Lieutenant.

IBANEZ WELCOMES TRIAL IN FRANCE

Declares He Will Call Witnesses to Prove Charges Against King Alfonso.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The trial of Blasco Ibañez promises to be as interesting as the pamphlet assailing King Alfonso of Spain for circulating which the famous Spanish author is being prosecuted.

Ibañez declared today that he not only does not fear the coming trial but welcomes it. The opportunity will be given him, he says, to summon eminent and indisputable witnesses with whom he can prove all the charges made in his "Alphonso XIII. Unmasked."

The exact date of the trial is not known. Two summonses were issued before the writer reached Mentone. He first telegraphed that he would arrive in Paris on Monday to answer the charges, but today stated he had instructed his attorney, Deputy Moutet, to request three or four days' adjournment for time to prepare his case.

In discussing the prosecution Ibañez stated that while he has no fear he hopes the French will not forget how staunch a friend he has been and will accord to him the courtesy due to a writer who for five years has actively carried on propaganda for France.

GLENN FRANK SPEAKS.

Century Editor Discusses the 100 Per Cent. American.

"What is 100 Per cent. American?" was the subject of an address yesterday by Glenn Frank, editor of The Century Magazine, before the League for Political Education at the Town Hall. There are three groups of professional patriots, said Mr. Frank, who have been responsible since the World War for most of the catchword variety of patriotism.

"The first group," he said, "is that body of citizens who have honestly but irritatingly appointed themselves as guardians of our American institutions. Another group may be called profiteers of patriotism those who have sought by their 100-per-cent. talk to distract the public attention from their own anti-social policies and practices. The third group is the rank and file of reactionary politicians who have made of 100 per cent. Americanism a convenient smoke screen for their bankrupt political intelligence.

"Every good citizen is interested in loyalty and patriotism, but these three groups of professional agitators have during the last six years been most in evidence. And some of us have been growing more and more dissatisfied with their ideas and policies. I refuse to measure a man's patriotism by his flag-waving and his catchwords and slogans. The neurasthenic fear of all change is characteristic of this type of man, who sees something sinister in spelling reform and Esperanto, and who thinks the millennium will be here when school children will memorize the Federal Constitution and look upon it as God-inspired."

CURBS STATE POWER OVER MOTOR TRAFFIC

MICHIGAN CASE INVOLVED

Decision Is Held to Have a Wide Application on Motor Truck Business.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—A decision affecting State regulation of motor vehicle traffic over public highways was handed down today by the Supreme Court in a case brought by the Michigan Public Utilities Commission and others against the Duke Cartage Company.

In declaring invalid sections of the Michigan law of 1923, as applied to the cartage company, which make common carriers of those engaged in motor vehicle transportation for hire over public highways, the Court, affirming a decision by a lower court, held in effect that States cannot compel a private carrier by motor vehicle to engage in public traffic for hire. Maryland and Washington have similar questions at issue before the Court.

The Duke Cartage Company is engaged under contract in the transportation by motor trucks of automobile bodies from Detroit to Toledo, using in part the roads of Michigan. The effect of the laws under challenge as applied to the Duke company, the Court stated, would make it a common carrier and require it to serve all to the limit of its facilities, which would be unlawful, because it would prevent the company from using its trucks exclusively to perform its private contracts and would impose a burden upon interstate commerce. The company also would have been required under the provisions to furnish an indemnity bond to insure shippers against loss.

Justice Butler, in delivering the opinion of the court, declared that in the absence of Congressional legislation a State may legally prescribe uniform regulations found necessary for public safety upon those operating vehicles on its highways, even though the traffic is moving in interstate commerce, and that it may also impose reasonable, graduated license fees on motor vehicles engaged in interstate commerce.

To do either or both would not impose an unlawful restraint upon that commerce, he stated, adding, however, that a State had no power to fetter the right to carry on interstate commerce within its borders and cannot impose conditions or regulations which are unnecessary and pass beyond the bounds of what is reasonable and suitable for the proper exercise of its powers.

It was clear, the Court held, that the State's traffic requirements under attack "have no relation to public safety or order in the use of motor vehicles upon the highways or to the collection of compensation for the use of the highways."

"The police power does not extend so far," it continued, adding that it was also beyond the power of a State to issue a legislative fiat to convert property used exclusively in the business of a private carrier into a public utility.

Pointing out that the Supreme Court of Michigan had not passed upon the question as to whether the law contravenes the State Constitution, Justice Butler said that phase of the controversy would not be ruled upon but that it must be held that the enforcement of the act against the company would deprive it of rights it was entitled to under the Constitution.

The Michigan case involved in addition to the direct question of interstate commerce that section of its regulations which requires all engaged in auto traffic for hire to carry insurance for the protection of persons and property transported. In the Washington case Federal control was made more imperative, said those attacking the State regulations, by the fact that the controversy arose over the use of the "Pacific Highway," a Federal aided Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah, Virginia and Wyoming all intervened through their regulatory commissions in the Washington case, as friends of the court, pointing out that they had similar laws.

LIMITS FRANCHISE TAX.

Supreme Court Holds It Invalid When Put on Interstate Commerce.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—A decision by the Supreme Court today denying the constitutional validity of the franchise tax of Missouri levied upon corporations engaged in interstate commerce was given out today.

Under the State law the Tax Commission sought to collect an annual franchise tax equal to one-tenth of 1 per cent. of the par value of the capital stock and surplus employed by corporations engaged in interstate business within the limits of the State of Missouri.

ASKS FEDERAL MOVE TO GET DIRIGIBLES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Speaking in the Senate today, Senator Copeland of New York urged that the Government seek to have the Council of Ambassadors modify the restrictions which prevent the manufacture of dirigibles of large size by German interests for the United States. Once the restrictions were changed, he said, it would be possible for this country to obtain the great airships without long delay and at a fraction of the sum it would cost to manufacture them here.

"Transatlantic air mail service is undoubtedly coming. American business men already have taken the necessary preliminary steps to inaugurate its actual operation. They are deterred only by immediate inability to buy their prospective fleet at reasonable prices," said Senator Copeland.

Senator Copeland said that Rear Admiral Moffett recently revealed that the navy-built Shenandoah cost $1.37 per cubic foot, and that the Admiral advocated the construction of a 6,000,000-foot dirigible rigid airship to cost $6,000,000.

"In this connection," said Senator Copeland, "it is interesting to observe that the German-built ZR-3 was delivered to our Government at a cost of less than 35 cents per cubic foot. Its builders profess to be anxious, if permitted, to deliver additional craft at the same figure.

"Aeronautic progress and the welfare of the world demand the resumption of airship construction. Apparently the Zeppelin organization is almost or quite the only one of proved ability to build safe craft and to build them economically. Our own Government recognized this in arranging for the purchase of the ZR-3, and when previously it contracted to buy a 3,500,000 cubic foot ship which was to fly around the world without stop. Contracts were signed by our then Secretary of War. The Zeppelin Company bought $50,000 worth of materials, construction was about to start when orders direct from Washington countermanded all previous orders from the same source and declared the deal off. Because the Allies objected, and for that reason alone, our contract, written and signed by the two parties, became a scrap of paper.

"It is our right to know why we are deprived of the freedom to buy airships from the best source; why the Council of Ambassadors has not kept its promise to revise the restrictions on Zeppelin-built airships for commercial purposes, if and when the council intends to make this promise good; why a peaceful commercial industry should continue to be under allied political ban, at great cost to Germany, to reparation payments, to aerial progress, to the United States and to the world at large."

ISLIP PARK HEARING DEFERRED BY COURT

Opponents of Plan Get Two Days' Delay but Judge Will Not Bar the Public.

TO HEAR CASE TOMORROW

Opposition to State's Taking Old Taylor Estate Also Voiced by Township Board.

Decision on the temporary injunction obtained by wealthy residents of Islip, L. I., to prevent the Long Island State Park Commission from appropriating the old Taylor estate, near there, for a park was postponed yesterday when counsel for W. Kingsland Macy, who is leading the fight against the park, asked for an adjournment.

The temporary injunction was granted by a local Judge after State troopers were put in possession of the property by the commission, which discovered that the estate had changed hands. It was obtained by the Pauchogue Land Corporation, which was formed to buy the land for $250,000 and other considerations, after it was learned that the commission was negotiating with the heirs for its purchase.

Yesterday the matter came up for hearing before Supreme Court Justice James C. Van Siclen in Long Island City. Postponement of two weeks was asked on the ground that Charles Tuttle of the firm of Davies, Auerbach & Cornell, representing the Pauchogue Land Corporation, was engaged elsewhere in court. Theodosius Stevens, counsel for the commission, pointed out that he appeared specially on constitutional grounds and that in agreeing to an adjournment he did not wish to waive any of his rights.

Another request was made by counsel for the corporation, that the matter be heard in chambers, but to this Justice Van Siclen would not agree. He put it over until tomorrow afternoon at 4, when it will come up in open court.

Robert B. Moses, Chairman of the commission, said yesterday that the fears of wealthy residents of the vicinity that the park would injure their holdings were groundless.

"Parks enhance the value of adjacent property," Mr. Moses said. "Central Park is a striking example, and yet when Central Park was proposed similar objections were raised."

Mr. Macy yesterday drew attention to the fact that opposition to the park project did not centre alone in a little group of wealthy residents of the locality.

"The Town Board has gone on record as opposing it," Mr. Macy said. "The storekeepers do not want it and the residents generally do not want it."

The action of the Islip Town Board was taken at a special meeting called after the State appropriated the property. At that meeting the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"Whereas it has been brought to the attention of the Town Board of the town of Islip, Suffolk County, L. I., that steps are being taken by the State Park Commission to obtain title to the George C. Taylor estate at Great River, Suffolk County, N. Y.; and

"Whereas the acquiring of said property for a State park would seriously interfere with the peace and well-being of the great majority of the citizens of Islip, as well as take away approximately $325,000 of town assessment; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by the Town Board of Islip, that this board protests against such action by the State Park Commission."

DOG JOINS THE SMITH 'ZOO.'

Governor Will Call Family Co ference to Name His Eskimo Pup.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—An Eskimo dog has been added to Governor Smith's "zoo" at the Executive Mansion. The Governor brought this latest pet here yesterday when he returned from New York.

The Smith family will hold a conference in the near future to choose a name for the pup, the Governor said.

The "zoo" already is the home of a pony, pheasants, a fawn, a Great Dane dog, monkeys, a bear, a raccoon, a small alligator, a bullfrog, a mud turtle and other small animals and birds.

Asks Dismissal of Water Power Suit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Government asked the Supreme Court today to dismiss the suit brought by the State of New York and others to enjoin the Power Commission from enforcing within that State the Federal Water Power act. The State contended that the act was unconstitutional. The court took the motion under advisement.

ELECTORS CERTIFY PRESIDENTIAL VOTE

Meet in All States—New York's 45 at Albany Record Choice of Coolidge and Dawes.

ROOT SERVES AS CHAIRMAN

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Simultaneously with meetings of Presidential Electors in every State of the Union to cast their votes formally today, the forty-five New York members of the Electoral College met in the Senate Chamber today, elected Elihu Root as Permanent Chairman, canvassed the State's popular vote and then unanimously certified the choice of Calvin Coolidge for President and Charles G. Dawes for Vice President.

This marked the first appearance in some time of Mr. Root as the presiding officer of a public assemblage. He was warmly applauded by the other members of the College as he was escorted to the rostrum.

Several hundred persons gathered in the Senate galleries to watch the Electors perform their official duties. A large bouquet of roses was presented to Mr. Root.

Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, called the session to order. C. R. Barber of Rochester was then selected as Temporary Chairman. Warren B. Ashmead of Queens and May M. Gooderson of Kings acted as Secretaries.

Ernest L. Woodward of Genesee was elected messenger to carry the vote cast by the Electors to the President of the United States Senate at Washington, and Nellie Wilson of New York City was named messenger to inform the Judge of the United States District Court at Utica of the vote. This was in conformance with the law followed out in all of the States. The vote of the Electors will be opened at a joint session of the Senate and House on Feb. 18.

Copies of Ballots for Souvenirs.

A request made by one of the electors that the members be permitted to keep the ballots they cast as souvenirs was rejected by Mr. Root, who held that it would not be proper. Mrs. Knapp said she would see that each member received a certified copy of the ballot he cast at today's session.

"This is one of the most interesting proceedings historically which occurs in the entire course of the life of our Government," said Mr. Root upon taking his seat as presiding officer.

"The Constitution invested the persons elected to the Electoral College in each State with most vital and momentous discretionary powers. In the course of but little more than a century, custom, without any changes of the Constitution or law, simply the custom of the people of the United States, has changed the office from one of discretion and authority to one purely ministerial under all ordinary circumstances.

"It remains that if death or disability shall overtake one of the persons in favor of whom the Presidential Electors received the majority of votes between the election day in November and this second Monday in January, the discretion will still be found to exist and the members of the Electoral College will still be found to exercise it.

"Enthroning Republican Rules."

"We have, happily, only the ministerial duty to perform, but it is not for that reason to be considered an office of slight consequence or trifling responsibility.

"The device of the Electoral College probably secures with the greatest possible certainty the communication of the will of the people of the State in respect to the Presidency to the Government at Washington with promptness and accuracy.

"We are taking part in filling a throne, making a republican ruler, doing the thing for which were during the greater part of human history have stained almost every country's soil with blood.

"We are performing a necessary duty in the great process of peacefully changing kings, and it is of vital importance that every step shall be performed with scrupulous accuracy and fidelity.

"It is necessary that the States shall vote within themselves for the President, that the effect of the ballots cast shall be limited to the proportional share of the population of the State, and that being so, some machinery must be provided for accurately recording and truthfully reporting to the general Government the will of the people as it is declared.

"We are that machinery. Let us congratulate ourselves upon being a part of this great process by which a hundred million people govern themselves in peace and order and respect for law and humanity."

Five Women in List of Electors.

The five women among the Electors were Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, May M. Gooderson, Nellie Wilson, Marie V. Wilde and Helen F. Rothweiler, all of New York City.

Other Electors present included Alexander Wolf, Jacob Rosenberg, Max H. Shivitz, Henry L. Stoddard, Samuel Strasbourger, Charles Novello, Philip J. Curry, Wilbur J. Murphy, John Wynne, of New York City; Warren B. Ashmead, of Jamaica; William H. Wade, Richmond Hill; Horatio J. Sharrett, Port Richmond; Charles Woodruff Halsey, Bronxville; Wilson P. Foss, Upper Nyack; John H. Morrison, Middletown; Robert McCarthy, Troy; William B. Charles, Amsterdam; Farris J. Meigs, Tupper Lake; Holley R. Cantine, Saugerties; Arthur W. Elting, Albany; Harold O. Whitnall, Hamilton; Abram V. Brower, Utica; David F. Wilbur, Onsonta; Huntington B. Crouse, Syracuse; Ieuan Harris, Geneva; Charles D. Marvin, Owego; Charles R. Barber, Rochester; Ernest L. Woodward, Leroy; William L. Marcy, George F. Urban, Edward J. Meyer, Buffalo; Albert T. Sancher, Salamanca; Frederick A. Kahl, Philip Gottfried, Gilbert H. Thirkield, Solomon Fromm, Richard E. Weber, Isaac Allen, and Edward P. Morse, of Brooklyn.

Vacancies were filled by ballot, according to Federal statutes cited by Mr. Root, instead of by aye and no vote as previously ruled by Temporary Chairman Barber.

First Women Messengers Chosen.

Special to The New York Times.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Mary H. Adams, Assistant Clerk of the Bennington County Court and the first woman made a Presidential Elector by a Vermont Republican Convention, was today chosen the messenger to carry the vote of the President's native State to Washington in February. Mrs. Adams is the Bennington member of the Women's Committee of Bennington County and took an active part locally in the recent campaign.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Elizabeth C. T. Miller of Cleveland, selected by Ohio's electors today to carry their vote to Washington, is the first woman in the State's history to be the official messenger.

'WHISKY MONOPOLY' TRAILED BY COUZENS

OWNERS COMPLAIN OF LOSS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Whether a "whisky monopoly" is getting control of the supplies remaining in warehouses, the chief source of medicinal alcohol, is a subject of inquiry by the Couzens special committee which is conducting an investigation of the Prohibition Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Members have instructed assistants to the committee to prepare financial data concerning the whisky on hand, the disposition of permits, prices charged and other data that would show whether the customer is paying more for his prescription than formerly.

John S. Pyle, of counsel for the committee, during an inquiry today as to the financial status of the whisky stocks, referred to the need for inquiry into the holdings, saying:

"I think if this is becoming a monopoly in the hands of a few, who can fix their own prices without competition, that ought to be brought out."

"I think you will find that that is the case," said Senator Couzens.

"Of course," agreed Senator Watson, Republican, of Indiana, "because they are buying up these certificates. These certificates merely represent the stocks in the warehouses."

Senator Couzens at this juncture directed that a financial statement on the subject be prepared for the committee. Senator Watson said it was reported that whisky was being withdrawn night after night and that barrels were being filled with water.

Total Supply Cut in Half.

It was recalled before the committee that Commissioner Haynes recently estimated that stocks of whisky in warehouses amount now to about 30,000,000 gallons. This is less than one-half the total held in them when the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect.

James J. Britt, of counsel for the Prohibition Unit, has presented a plan for the Government to take over the warehouse stocks in order to conserve the rapidly diminishing supplies and to do justice by the owners, who have been required to pay taxes while stocks were evaporating. It was stated, furthermore, that banks carrying paper of owners of the whisky have been anxious as to payment.

The committee today heard George W. Storck, its special investigator, tell of what he had found in the Fleischmann Company case, in which a permit was revoked some months ago. Senator Couzens, Chairman, said the testimony would be made public tomorrow morning.

Saturday's testimony was given out today. H. P. Loveland, associate head of the Permit Division, explained the system followed in granting permits to manufacturers or others entitled to alcohol. Members of the committee specifically inquired as to why two sets of permits are required. Mr. Loveland had explained that a "basic" permit is issued for the use of so much alcohol quarterly. The local director is then asked for a permit to withdraw.

Mr. Britt told the committee that the purpose of this was part of a "checking up" system of the bureau and that double permits made it possible to keep better track of what the alcohol is used for.

The hearing turned into a discussion of complaints by owners of whisky stocks, who had borne the burden of heavy taxes after the prohibition law went into effect.

"They complained that they were compelled to pay a very heavy annual revenue tax to the Government, and as they were unable to dispose of their liquor under any circumstances, it was a loss on their hands, and they did not know what to do with it," said Senator King, Democrat, of Utah.

Proposes Government Possession.

Mr. Britt entered the discussion at this point, saying:

"I think there is a great deal of truth in that allegation, Senator, so much so that many who have given it thought think the Government ought to take it over absolutely. I for one think that and have said so publicly and privately.

"In some sections, but not generally, they were not consulted as to what the feeling of the country was as to the Eighteenth Amendment. Of course, it came up very suddenly, with the approval of people who think as I do, but that has nothing to do with the question of sheer justice at all. It is now continually subjected to loss in various ways.

"My own view is that, both in the interests of prohibition and in justice to the rights of the holders, the Government should issue some sort of certificates or bonds, which would ultimately not cost it a penny, to take over the product and protect the holders, since it has, in effect, taken charge of the disposition of it."

Senator Ernst, Republican, of Kentucky said he thought that that was the solution of the question.

Mr. Britt added that banks, to a large extent, now hold liquor certificates.

In a discussion as to the contents of the warehouses at the present time it was brought out that a fifty-gallon barrel of whisky as of January, 1920, would now hold but about thirty gallons.

Fines Four Bootleggers $800.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 12.—Following out a new policy of heavy assessments in bootlegging convictions, Judge W. R. Heady of District Court, imposed fines today totalling $800 in four such cases, and remained obdurate in the face of arguments of Joseph Bistany and his wife that they would have to sell their home to meet fines totalling $300. Mrs. Mary Lussier was fined $300 and Michael Siano $200.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 12.—Henry C. Wallace, who died while Secretary of Agriculture, left an estate valued at $166,499 in addition to $49,610 in life insurance. The obligations and debts were approximately $126,000, according to the preliminary report of the administrator, filed in District Court today.

so much dependence is made now for the farmer," said Senator Borah, "this mention might also be made in connection with the crop failure abroad of what is known as the Dawes plan. It gave a certain tone of confidence to the situation and undoubtedly contributed to some extent to the betterment of conditions so far as the foreign market for farm production was concerned, but while I do not disparage the value of the Dawes plan, yet if I owned a farm and its value depended upon the ultimate success of that plan without some other things of very great moment being done, I should be willing to part with my hogs at the first opportunity.

"That plan is already imperiled and unless other steps are taken by which to clear the way for its operation, in my opinion, its effect upon the farm products of this country will be as temporary as the crop failure in Europe.

"Until the final and ultimate amount which Germany must pay has been settled, and settled within reason, the Dawes plan can never, in my opinion, be permanently beneficial. So long as that problem is unsettled it can only have a temporary and passing benefit. It had the great virtue of bringing France and Germany into contact and of opening the way, it is hoped, for the adjustment of these other problems. In that respect its value was very great, but if conditions come about by which we are deprived of the fruit of that contact and the ultimate amount which Germany is to pay remains unsettled, I do not think that any one feels that the Dawes plan can operate successfully for any considerable length of time.

Doubts Germany's Industrial Future.

"Again, the great vital principle of this proposition is that it gives over to the management of foreign powers, or foreign agencies, the industrial and physical policies of a great people. That may be all well enough and probably was the very best that could be done for the time being, but as a permanent policy it can only be successful while foreign Governments are willing to loan their money to the nation thus managed; in other words, if a program is not so arranged that those people themselves can work out their salvation and they themselves rebuild their economic system and their industrial life necessarily the management of foreign agencies will in a short time break down.

"I mention this not in the way of criticism, but of a suggestion that those who believe that the farm question in this country have been settled either by the crop failures abroad or the Dawes plan alone, it seems to me, have made the serious mistake of attributing to temporary relief that which we would hope might ultimately become permanent relief."

Senator Borah then attacked the United States Chamber of Commerce for advising President Coolidge that no extraordinary session of Congress would be necessary to enact legislation for relief of the farmers and that there was a growing belief that the continued improvement in agriculture will preclude any need of legislation until the Sixty-ninth Congress convenes next December.

"Why next December?" demanded Senator Borah. "If the conditions are improving as indicated they will certainly be infinitely better off next December than they are now.

"But I wish the United States Chamber of Commerce would take to the President the information, first, as to how many farms were abandoned in 1924; also as to the number of farms that are now being foreclosed and what proportion of these foreclosures in ratio have been begun since the third of November, 1924, and what amount of interest is unpaid upon American farms today.

"I wish they would take to the President some of the country weeklies throughout the great agricultural regions of the West, in which three and four pages are filled with tax sales, and see if that did not have a different impression upon the President of the United States than the theories of men who look at the farmer through the Pullman car window as they speed from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Points to the Tariff Policy.

"Then they say there is another reason, and that is that this so-called relief for the American farmer is a mixture of politics and economics which is always bad when applied to a particular class of individuals. Let me ask what is the protective tariff system except politics and economics. Why do the great manufacturing establishments of the United States come to Congress and say: 'We cannot pay our taxes; we cannot pay our interest; we cannot maintain our institutions unless the Government interposes protection between us and those who manufacture abroad?'

"And so the Government—and I am not now discussing the wisdom or unwisdom of it—interposes in behalf of the American manufacturer by stopping the natural flow of products into this country by the barrier which the Government raises and thereby protects the manufacturer.

"When the railroads get into trouble, as they did at the close of the war, they came to the Government for aid and they received material benefit. While it may be said that the railroads are public utilities and possibly stand in a different attitude than that in which the farmers stand, there is no more necessity for maintaining railroads in the country than there is for maintaining agriculture. Agriculture has come to be just as much a part of the life of this nation as our transportation system. I have observed that there is never any denunciation, particularly upon this side of the Chamber, of economics and politics when these institutions or these interests are involved.

"The farmer is asking the aid and direction of the Government in the marketing of his products. Owing to the widespread scope of agriculture, it is impossible for the farmers to organize and direct their affairs alone, and that must be done, in my judgment, under the operating direction of the Government of the United States."

Senator Borah went at some length in an ironical vein into the promises made to the farmers by the Republicans as well as by the Democrats in the last campaign, when, he said, "the most specific pledges" were made.

Demands Action Now for Farmers.

He read from a newspaper the statement that while some Republicans wanted a special session, many feel that the improved condition of agriculture made an extra session unnecessary.

"That seems to be the attitude that is being assumed by a majority of those in power," Mr. Borah said, "that as conditions are improved, the farm problems can be put aside until next December. In my opinion, the fundamental problem is not changed at all and the better conditions in some localities are due to transient causes."

The real farm problem was not temporary or local, Mr. Borah added, but had become national. The tax burden of the farmers, he said, had increased from $824,000,000 in 1913 to $1,700,000,000 in 1922, and was increasing at the rate of 8 per cent. a year. While this was due largely to the activities of State Governments, he felt that the national Government should do what it could to discourage this exploitation of the farmer. The farmer was not in a position to conceal his profits, Mr. Borah added, and taxes were 11.6 per cent. of income in the farming districts, as against 4 per cent. in the rest of the community.

The Senator said he believed in a "thorough system of marketing, not voluntary, but in which the Government of the United States may have a directing hand." That would reach down to the fundamental problem, he explained, and until it was worked out the condition of the farmer would be very little better than at present.

"The rise in the price of wheat," he continued, "may enable the farmer to get by for the moment, but it will not enable him to get on that side of Easy Street where he will be able to face the crisis which may come."

Senator Borah was asked if he had worked out any specific plan and replied that a bill had been submitted in the House which might be made the basis of legislation and that plenty of suggestions had been made which could be worked out.

The time to "make good" on promises, Mr. Borah said, was immediately after the election, as political expediency would be certain to play a part in anything which was accomplished if Congress waited until 1926, when another election that would decide the complexion of Senate and House was approaching.

Senator Bruce, Democrat, of Maryland said that the trouble with the Western farmers was that they did not do enough for themselves and were too dependent upon paternalistic legislation. To this Senator Borah replied that more appeals had been sent to him for a special session by Maryland farmers than by the farmers of any of the other States, except those of the West.

It has been generally accepted in official circles in Washington that President Coolidge is opposed to a special session for the consideration of farm legislation. In a recent address to a farmers' cooperative organization the President said that the success of the cooperative movement must depend very largely upon the efforts of the farmers.

HOPE TO RAISE $4,160,000

Executives Want Additional Endowment to Make Place a Model for the World.

Dr. Frederic S. Lee, research professor of biology at Columbia, who was re-elected President of the Board of Managers of the New York Botanical Garden yesterday, advocates the exclusion of automobiles from the roads in the garden.

In his annual report Dr. Lee says: "The automobile is one of the enemies of beautiful territories and—what was not foreseen when its present road system was planned—the garden has now become one of the great highways of motor car through traffic. Making the garden merely a convenience in enabling the motorist to arrive at his destination is wholly contrary to its spirit and meaning. Through traffic should be either excluded from it altogether or relegated to its extreme borders."

"Interior roads are necessary for the convenience of visitors," Dr. Lee adds in his report, but certain of the existing interior roads may well be eliminated and the ground now occupied by them be restored to its original natural beauty."

To carry out its plans of expansion, aimed to make the garden a world model, the Executive Committee has voted upon a campaign to raise $4,160,000 during the coming year and increase the garden's endowment to $7,000,000.

The report of Dr. Nathaniel L. Britton, Director of the Board of Managers, showed that the out-door floral displays had excelled those of all previous years. The out-door collections of tulips, irises and roses were especially satisfactory. Last spring 80,500 tulip bulbs, the gift of the Dutch Bulb Growers' Association, were planted and 1,200 varieties of iris were shown. Dr. Britton emphasized the necessity of additional equipment and funds for experimental studies.

Vice Presidents for 1925 elected were Henry W. de Forest and F. K. Sturgis. John L. Merrill is the Treasurer and Dr. N. L. Britton Secretary. Dr. Britton is the director in chief of the garden. The corporation again named for terms of three years each the following as members of the board: Henry De Forest Baldwin, Paul D. Cravath, Childs Frick, Joseph P. Hennessy, Adolph Lewisohn, Barrington Moore and W. Boyce Thompson.

Scientific directors for the year are Professor R. A. Harper, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Professor William J. Gies, Professor Herbert M. Richards and Dean Henry H. Rusby, all of Columbia University; George J. Ryan and Dr. Lee. Dr. Harper, head of the Department of Botany at Columbia, is Chairman of the scientific directors, who have planned an elaborate program of research.

BEGGONOFF'S LIFE SPARED.

Governor Commutes Sentence on Petition of 15,000 Persons.

Governor Smith yesterday commuted the death sentence of Frank Beggonoff to life imprisonment after reading petitions bearing more than 15,000 names collected by the New York Russian anti-Bolshevist daily newspaper, The Russian New Word. Beggonoff was convicted of first degree murder in Rochester on July 7, 1924, in connection with a robbery in Rochester on Jan. 5, 1924, in which Samuel Kobuk, a Ukrainian, was killed. Two other men were implicated in the murder and escaped. Beggonoff has maintained from the first that he was innocent.

Among those who signed the petition were Count Ilya Tolstoy, Anna Pavlowa and numerous theatrical people in this city, including Will Rogers, actors of the Moscow Art Theatre, and many Russian writers, artists and sculptors.

FREES 4 POSTMEN WHO STOLE TO LIVE in the service thirty-one years, and has a wife and four children.

Mr. Blake explained that Gallagher earned $2,000 a year, but that each of the others despite his long service received only the usual pay of $1,800.

"These men," Mr. Blake explained, "were arrested May 31 last by postal inspectors who had been watching the station where they were employed. The inspectors, Hoffman and Busch, suspected them, accused them, and two of them confessed and accused the other two, who also confessed.

"In their confession they offered as an excuse their small pay which they said was insufficient to enable them properly to care for those dependent upon them, mainly because of excessive rents. All of them said they were deeply in debt and were getting in worse all the time."

Questioned by the Court, the men made similar statements and then Judge Winslow said:

"This is a most tragic thing. These men evidently do not belong to the criminal classes. It may be that I will be misunderstood, but I shall not send them to prison where they may learn to become members of a criminal class. Their record, while in the Government service, was exemplary.

"It might be well if some of our welfare societies would study the condition of some of the postal employes instead of attempting to reform habitual criminals in Sing Sing and other prisons. The pay these men have been receiving is scandalous."

Some of the afternoon papers yesterday quoted Judge Winslow as having said that the pay received by postal employes was scandalous and "virtually compels them to be dishonest." When Judge Winslow saw this published statement attributed to him he asked United States District Attorney Hayward to institute contempt proceedings against those responsible for it. Afterward he told the reporters that he had never said anything resembling a statement that small pay made criminals of the postal employes, and that he had not said anything reflecting on the postal employes or any other class of men working for small compensation. It was suggested at the time that the contempt proceedings would not be pushed.

One of the letter carriers referred to who was sentenced to a prison term by Judge Winslow last week was Irving I. Peril, accused of having withheld a letter containing $4.50 addressed to Miss Rose Haggerty of 274 East Forty-ninth Street. He was arrested last November in the Grand Central postal station where he was employed. He made no effort to defend himself. Assistant District Attorney Isaac Gutman, who talked with him, said that Peril expressed a willingness to make a confession and it was prepared and signed. Part of it reads:

"I have from time to time unlawfully tampered with letters entrusted to me for delivery. In some instances I destroyed letters but I am positively certain I never took in all previous to this date, more than $20."

Peril also said his wife was ill and that he did not have money enough to pay her doctor's bill. He is 28 years old and had been in the postal service three years. Judge Winslow sentenced Peril to ten months in the Westchester County Jail.

Louis F. Mazzucca of 73 West Bradford Avenue, Flushing, was less fortunate than the Manhattan offenders, when he was sentenced yesterday to serve a year and a day in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta because he stole three boxes of cigars from the mails three days before Christmas. Mazzucca was a clerk in the General Post Office at Long Island City. He pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Inch in Brooklyn yesterday.

J. P. DAY RADIOS RULES FOR SUCCESS

"Use Imagination" and "Never Stop Smiling," Among Ten Precepts Broadcast.

LASTLY, "NEVER GIVE UP"

Instead of Letting Opportunity Knock, "Meet Him Half Way Up the Block."

Ten rules for success were elucidated last night by Joseph P. Day, the real estate auctioneer, in a radio speech from Station WNYC. While there was no formula for success, Mr. Day explained, his ten rules of life would help, if followed carefully. They are as follows:

"First—Be honest in all things, in business and in personal matters.

"Second—Work hard, physically and mentally. Make every task, no matter how great or how small, a personal test.

"Third—Live cleanly and avoid illness. Remember that a healthy body is a great asset. Eat wholesome food and build up your strength. Think wholesomely, too, for to the mind wholesome thoughts are what wholesome food is to the body.

"Fourth—Take some recreation. Have a hobby, but do not let your recreation or your hobby interfere with your business, and don't make your recreation lopsided. The brain needs exercise and pleasure just as much as your body does.

"Fifth—Use your imagination. The radio, on which you are now listening in, is the child of imagination. The steam engine, the telephone, the telegraph, the phonograph, in fact the very country in which you live, are all the products of some one's imagination. The man without an imagination can never succeed.

"Sixth—Interest yourself in public affairs and do your part in both civic and charitable work. Charity is a great stimulus to both the heart and the head.

"Don't Stop Studying."

"Seventh—Do not feel that you are overeducated. No matter what your education has been, don't stop studying. There is much knowledge in the world, and even the most learned can, in a lifetime, only scratch the surface. Read good literature.

"Eighth—Never let success turn your head. Success is only relative. There is no human accomplishment that cannot be improved upon.

"Ninth—Never stop smiling. The smile is a great maker of friends in business. Remember that your frown never put wrinkles on the other fellow's forehead.

"Tenth—Never give up. The world is big, but has no place for quitters."

Mr. Day said the great difficulty with ninety-nine out of one hundred people was that they "will not go out of their way to gain success." Instead of waiting for opportunity to knock on the door, he went on, they should "be half way up the block to meet opportunity when he comes along."

It is "pure hunk," according to Mr. Day, to say that the age of opportunity has passed. "There always are and there always will be opportunities," he added.

To See Friends by Wire.

Mr. Day said that the world is in its infancy both as to opportunity and invention. Within 100 years, he predicted, persons telephoning each other will be able to see each other, regardless of distance. Electricity, he went on, will be "the Aladdin's Lamp of the future." He foresaw an age when "you press a button and the entire contents of your home will slide out into the van, instead of being carried out piece by piece," and "when a touch of the electric button will perform the labor now done by half a dozen servants."

"The airplane and the automobile," he continued, "will be operated by electricity or radio, as will the boats and railroads. Right now engineers of our Navy Department are working on the problem of radio energy for planes."

In 100 years, Mr. Day added, New York will have a population of 30,000,000; will have 100-story skyscrapers, with roofs equipped for aerial landings; airplanes will blacken the sky; and the traffic problem will be solved by underground and overhead streets.

WORK TO AID LEPERS.

Mission Estimates There Are 2,000,000 in the World.

The American Mission to Lepers at its annual meeting at 156 Fifth Avenue yesterday answered questions concerning the disease so that the public might know what leprosy was and what was being done in the world-wide effort to eradicate it. The mission, with offices in New York and London, has direct supervision over ninety-five centres for lepers in thirteen countries.

There are said to be at least 2,000,000 lepers in the world. Some estimates put the number at 3,000,000, or one person in every 600 of the earth's population. There are from 500 to 1,000 lepers in the United States. In the last twelve years one or more lepers have been found in thirty-two different States. According to the mission, there is no cause for alarm that leprosy will spread in this country. If the disease is increasing here it is doing so slowly. Many of the cases have developed among the foreign born. South China and India, as well as parts of Africa, have the largest numbers of lepers.

TO DISPLAY THIERS PEARLS.

Cartier's to Show $658,000 Necklace as an Aid to Charity.

The famous Theirs pearl necklace, sold at auction in the Louvre for $658,000, will be shown for charity beginning next Monday by Cartier, 653 Fifth Avenue. Pierre C. Cartier yesterday confirmed the report that the famous necklace was now in New York.

An admission fee of $1 will go to the Big Sister movement, of which Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt 2d is Honorary Chairman, and the necklace will be on display until Jan. 24.

It was reported that with the duty of 20 per cent. on unstrung pearls, the 17 per cent. tax paid to the French Government and other necessary items the cost of the famous strands of three rows of pearls mounts to more than $1,000,000.

The official receipt of the French Government and the customs papers show that the only name appearing in the transaction is the firm of Cartier's. It was said that nobody had joined with Cartier's in the purchase of the pearls and that they had not yet been resold.

SUSPENDS WARDEN TYNAN.

Governor Sweet Acts Against Head of Colorado Penitentiary.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 12.—Governor Sweet today suspended Thomas J. Tynan as Warden of the Colorado Penitentiary. He appointed Sheriff C. R. Glasson of Fremont County temporary Warden.

Early today, when Sheriff Glasson, accompanied by Under Sheriff John Donahoe, went to the penitentiary gates and asked for Tynan, the Warden told them he would not permit them to serve papers on him. The two officers then nailed the eviction orders on the prison gates and left.

Later Glasson, accompanied by Fred S. Caldwell, former Assistant Attorney General and Sweet's counsel, appeared in District Court seeking a writ of mandamus.

Tax Publicity Case Is Advanced.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The test case against Walter S. Dickey and Ralph Mills of the Kansas City (Mo.) Journal-Post, to determine the right of newspapers to publish income tax payments, was advanced today by the Supreme Court for hearing on April 13.

EDITH GOULD'S HEIRS OPEN $1,000,000 SUIT

QUOTE LATE GEORGE GOULD

Acquaintances Say He Declared He Was "Only a Boarder" There, as All Belonged to Wife.

Another law suit involving the property of the late George J. Gould was brought yesterday in Newark by the heirs of his first wife, Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould, before Vice Chancellor John H. Backes. Its object is to determine ownership of paintings and house furnishings valued at more than $1,000,000 which were in the Gould home at 857 Fifth Avenue before Mrs. Gould's death in 1921. The hearing was discontinued yesterday to be resumed March 18.

Testimony was introduced by the plaintiffs that George Gould had frequently said everything in the home belonged to his first wife. Mrs. Gould owned the home, which was left to George Gould during his life unless he remarried. Gould married Mrs. Guinivere Sinclair in 1923.

Some of the articles in dispute are still in the Fifth Avenue home, while others are at Georgian Court, Lakewood, N. J., and the remainder are in storage.

George Leland Hunter of New York City, a lecturer on art, testified that the first Mrs. Gould had been his student and that he had known both Mr. and Mrs. Gould through their interest in art. Hunter declared that George Gould told him that he was "but a boarder in the Fifth Avenue home," as his wife owned everything there.

Mrs. Lillian Hamilton of 177 East Sixty-fourth Street, New York City, a cousin of Mrs. Edith Gould, testified that Mr. Gould told her that all of the property in the Fifth Avenue home belonged to Mrs. Gould and that he had offered his wife Georgian Court and all of its furnishings in exchange, but that she had refused. Mrs. Emma Jourdain of 324 Lexington Avenue, a language teacher, gave similar testimony.

L. Carroll Wainwright of Coscob, Conn., a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Gould; Mrs. Annunciato Gould, a daughter-in-law, and the wife of Kingdon Gould, and Mrs. Gloria Gould Bishop, a daughter and the wife of Henry A. Bishop, all testified that they heard Mr. Gould say that Mrs. Gould owned the property and that he had made out to her a bill of sale.

The taking of testimony in the suit brought by the heirs of Jay Gould over the accounting of his $80,000,000 estate is nearing the end, it was intimated by Referee James A. O'Gorman in the session yesterday in the offices of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, 165 Broadway.

Yesterday Referee O'Gorman said the hearing would be adjourned until next Monday at 10:30, to let counsel clear up odds and ends of their evidence. At this point Otto Hack, of counsel for the Jay Gould estate, said he expected to file particulars as to the claims of infants who have been born to heirs of Jay Gould since the suit started.

It was indicated in the hearing yesterday that the so-called "marriage restraint" clause of Jay Gould's will would be contested at some future time.

It was brought out that Justice Aaron J. Levy of the Supreme Court has already granted an order that the right of the children of Guinevere Sinclair Gould to share in the residue of the Jay Gould estate be determined before Referee O'Gorman in a separate hearing. Attorneys stated, however, that the case was to be reopened before Justice Levy today, and should he reverse his previous opinion the facts might have important bearing in the accounting suit.

BOARD ASKS O'SHEA TO NAME CHIEF AID

Ryan Wants Nominations for Associate Superintendency Ready for Election Tomorrow.

George J. Ryan, President of the Board of Education, made public yesterday a letter he had written to Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools, asking that Mr. O'Shea make his own nominations for the Associate Superintendency, made vacant last May by the elevation of Dr. O'Shea to his present post. The election has been deferred at every meeting of the Board of Election ince May.

The procedure now suggested by President Ryan was urged, he says, by field surveyers and survey consultants. It had long been advocated by those familiar with school problems. Dr. William L. Ettinger, whom the Board refused to reelect as Superintendent last April, asked for the change, but the Board of Education refused t oaccede. The letter of President Ryan amounts to a reversal of policy.

Mr. Ryan points out that the board is not legally bound to consult the Superintendent and that it still retains the power of election. He asks that Dr. O'Shea be prepared to nominate, perhaps, as many as ten candidates, in case the Board of Education cannot agree on his first nominations.

The election of an associate superintendent is scheduled as the first matter of business at the meeting of the Board of Education tomorrow afternoon.

HEAR VETERAN DOCTOR.

Dr. Bulkley Says Regular Hours Make for Longevity.

A group of prominent physicians gave a testimonial dinner to Dr. L. Duncan Bulkley last night at the Hotel Astor on the occasion of his eightieth birthday and to commemorate his fifty-six years of practice of medicine. Dr. Bulkley, who is a noted cancer expert and senior physician to the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, in a brief talk said that he felt more like 50 than 80, and ascribed his health and vigor to a simple life.

He said he adhered strictly to a vegetable diet, went to bed at 10 o'clock and got up at 7. Regular hours, very little wine and avoidance of too much excitement were his explanations of happiness and longevity. "People as a rule eat too much," he declared. "We live on two-thirds of what we eat," he said, "and the doctors live on the rest."

BONUSES FORM TRUST FUND

Two Veterans to Give Money From Government to Disabled Soldiers.

Two veterans of the World War are having trust agreements drafted directing the payment of their Federal bonus to the Coal and Iron National Bank, as trustee for the New York Community Trust, Harold C. Knapp, Trust Officer for the bank, said yesterday. The income will be left to the discretion of the Distribution Committee of the Community Trust, except that the soldiers expressed the request that it be used for the benefit of disabled soldiers so long as any of these remain.

tures, but he has been before us for many years, always in the front rank, active, industrious, helpful and sympathetic, and has taught us a great deal without talking much about it.

"In every profession also there is and must be a code of ethics, the result of years of experience. I take it that the newer the profession the more difficult it is to formulate its ethical code, for the experience has not been sufficient. Were I required to state an ethical code for our profession, I think that I would say the first rule should be: 'Never do something you do not approve of in order more quickly to accomplish something that you do approve of,' for there are no safe short cuts in piloting a business, or a ship.

"Mr. Baker believes not only in example as a teaching force but also in the explanation of examples. Most of you have heard of his recent gift to the Business School at Harvard. That great university had already schools for the old professions—Divinity, Medicine, Law, the Arts and Science. It needed a professional school for business and had made a beginning some years ago, which was promising but had not got much beyond the experimental stage.

"Mr. Baker was appealed to among many others to subscribe part of the sum necessary to endow this new Professional School.

"After thinking it over, he announced that he was not much interested in being one of a party to do this thing, but if they would allow him he would like to do it all himself. Thus, as you see, again doing his part—and more.

Finds Mr. Baker "Too Young."

"I have alluded to Mr. Baker's extraordinary quality of youthful-mindedness. I remember one occasion of a meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee, during the war, when we had all been anxiously facing the need for supplying the very large requirements of our Government. It had become evident that, as the public was rather overiocded with bonds, the banks would have to make subscriptions in very much larger amounts than they had hoped would be necessary.

"Mr. Baker had taken, as he generally did, the lead in suggesting that the assurance should be given to the Government that it would get the money that it needed from New York. After the meeting I was walking down the street with the head of one of the large banks in New York, when he said to me: 'Cannot you do anything about it?'

"In response to my question as to what it was that he wanted done, he said:

"'Mr. Baker is much too young for all the rest of us, and it is really dangerous to have him about; he makes us all do more, and more quickly, than we expect to—he really ought to be aged.'"

Tells of Mr. Baker's Career.

Mr. Mitchell's speech was a brief biography of Mr. Baker. It was listened to with the closest attention. Nearly everything in it was new. Other speakers described it as a masterpiece of historical research, in view of the genius of the guest of honor for reticence and for keeping himself out of the public eye. Mr. Baker is credited with having been interviewed only once in his life. Mr. Mitchell said that it had taken a Congressional investigation to make known the important position which he occupied in Wall Street.

The biographer, however, traced the career of Mr. Baker to his first earnings—the sum of $7, which he acquired by amassing the cranberries which others had overlooked until he filled a sleigh with them.

Mr. Baker's father worked on Horace Greeley's Tribune. Young Baker was once the champion sculler in the Upper Hudson. He resolved to be a banker at an early age when he contemplated an uncle who had retired and was living on "interest money." These were a few of the historical points brought to light by the toastmaster.

"The first ancestor of Mr. Baker," said Mr. Mitchell, "that we know as coming to the United States was a lad of 21, who arrived in Boston in 1635, having come as second in command of a Norse bark from Gravesend, England, making the trip in seventy-one days. Upon his arrival in Boston, or shortly thereafter, he settled in Dorchester, Mass., and for six generations the families lived there.

"George F. Baker was born on March 27, 1840, in Troy. When he was 8 years old the family moved to Brooklyn, and his father engaged in the shoe business in Maiden Lane, New York. Mr. Baker spent most of his boyhood at his grandmother's at Dedham or at his uncle Fischer's at Meadfield, eight miles from there.

"Mr. George F. Baker went to school in Williamsburg at first; but life in the country grew so beneficial to him that his parents decided to let him spend not only his Summers but most of his Winters with his grandparents at Dedham. Incidentally, he had an uncle by marriage whom he knew as "Uncle John," and he used to see Uncle John sitting up on the porch while others were at work; and he asked a boy and inquired how it was that Uncle John did not have to work; and he was told that Uncle John lived on interest money, and he thereupon, after some thought, declared to his fellows that some day he was going to live on interest money, too, and he made an early start.

"In 1877 he became President of the First National Bank. In 1882 he began his railroad career, first acquiring, with a group, the Richmond & Danville Railroad, which ultimately went in as a basis of the Southern Railway. Later, as you all know, he made his connections with the Jersey Central and with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western—always buying into these properties when they were down at the heel, and, as a great builder, building them to a point where their securities became of great value."

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon spoke as follows:

"If it were possible to express in figures Mr. Baker's contribution to his country's finance, it might convey some impression to say that since 1917 the subscriptions of his bank to Government obligations have reached the enormous total of over $3,364,000,000 of Government securities.

"We know in Washington that on every issue on the day the books are opened we will receive a subscription for $25,000,000 from the First National Bank of the City of New York. It is comforting to feel that we always have one friend who backs the Treasury, whatever its judgment of market conditions. It gives us confidence. It is not, however, in Mr. Baker's direct financial dealings, large as these have been, that he has so greatly served. There are certain outstanding features in his character which have had an incalculable influence in the forming of our country's ideals. There has been his real service to America.

"For over sixty years Mr. Baker directly or indirectly has been in close association with men in America who have been developing this country, shaping its policies, framing its ideals. Moral energy such as his does not cease with its exercise, but there is a persistence of the mental and moral forces which continues long after its original application. Like a stone dropped into a boundless pool, the ripples of courage, of helpfulness, of optimism reach far beyond the particular mind which these qualities have touched, and pass into and stimulate the minds of other men who may never have seen or had contact with him.

Praises Banker's Calmness.

"His calmness in crises stills panic in the crowd; his insistence upon sound principles compels their recognition elsewhere; his constructive touch upon a railroad, reaches to every community in its territory; his simple talk to a friend in the action it produces reacts among many. So Mr. Baker, in the long, active years which have been his, and which I think have been so much also his country's, has built, not in New York alone, nor in finance, nor industry alone, but in the hearts of all this nation, a firm belief in character. His spirit is a part of the foundation of America."

"It is difficult to separate these elements of character one from another; and in their fullness one cannot exist independently of others.

"Speaking first of his courage: When he has seen the right course, tenaciously he has held to it, however outnumbered, or at whatever costs.

"Another great quality of value to mankind is his constructive ability. He is primarily a builder and a believer that real success comes from making others successful. Then his confidence in the ultimate working out of right ideas cannot be shaken. No matter how black the financial or political sky may appear, he has always felt that the storm will clear and the house builded upon a rock will emerge unscathed. Through the bitterest days of railroad baiting, Mr. Baker did not lose his faith that the railroads would come again into their own as the most essential part of the industrial structure of America. Combined with these elements of his character and aided by his full life of experience, the soundness of his judgment is not surpassed.

"Now, the influence of a strong character throughout a long life is not simply upon what is done by him, his own work, the building up of his own bank, the constructive work of his own hand upon industry. It is far more than this.

Mr. Baker's Response.

Mr. Baker spoke as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, after such an overwhelming demonstration and kindness and thoughtfulness what shall I say to you! I am not an after-dinner talker, and what can I say! I could not put words together that would express my feeling, and all I can do is to thank you from the bottom of my heart.

"A few weeks ago I was the guest at a luncheon, and was asked to say a few words of encouragement, possibly, to the younger members, and what was then in my heart most I told them was to try to live and conduct their lives that they might gain the love and affection of their fellows. This has always been one of my ambitions, and if I was to believe to be a fact even a part of what you all have said here tonight, my ambition certainly would be gratified, and I am indeed well rewarded.

"I have had a long service, as you know, and after sixty years in an active career I have reached, of course, over the summit of life's hill and am rather wandering down on the downward slope.

"No day will ever pass that I can forget or fail to appreciate and give most grateful thanks to the devoted kindness and attention of this evening. And so I can only thank you again and again and say 'God bless you.'"

FORBIDS TREASURY TO HOLD UP TRAINS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Treasury Department must not attempt to hold up trains entering the United States from Canada between the hours of 5 P. M. and 8 A. M., according to a decree signed today by Justice Hoehling, in Equity Court, in behalf of eleven railroad companies, which refused to pay overtime wages to customs inspectors.

Because of this refusal, the Treasury Department attempted to collect from railroad companies whose trains entered this country after the regular working hours of the customs force. Threats were made to hold night trains at the border until the customs force came or duty the next morning at 8 o'clock.

It appears from the record that the department proceeded under the Act of Congress of Feb. 3, 1911, and the tariff laws of 1922, but both of these laws provide that only ship owners must pay overtime wages for services performed by customs employes at ports after regular working hours.

RUSSIA YIELDS TO JAPAN.

Agreement Between Two Countries May Be Signed Today.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Jan. 12.—The conclusion of the labors of the Japanese-Soviet conference is thought to be imminent. It is expected an agreement will be signed tomorrow.

The general pessimism has given way to a mild kind of jubilation about what is considered a victory for the Japanese over the Soviet representatives, who have given way.

The questions upon which it was most difficult to agree, namely, Nikolaievsk and Saghalien, are reported to have been settled entirely in favor of Japan. The conciliatory attitude adopted by the Soviet negotiators is considered here to be due to the hostility of Western Europe toward Soviet Russia.

20 ENGLISH ENTRIES MADE FOR FUTURITY

RECORD TOTAL NOW IS 1,707

Five Fillies From the Yorkshire Nursery Also Are Named for the 1926 Matron Stakes.

Twenty entries for the Futurity of 1927 and five for the Matron Stakes of 1926 have been received from Lady Sykes, whose Sledmere Stud, in Yorkshire, England, is famous the world over as a bloodstock breeding nursery. Announcement of the receipt of the entries was made yesterday by the Westchester Racing Association, at whose Belmont Park course these two stakes are run. These English nominations bring the total for the Futurity to 1,707—a record believed impossible a year ago.

The Sledmere Stud has long held a place at the top of English bloodstock breeding institutions. The yearlings from that establishment have as a rule topped the Doncaster and Newmarket sales and in some instances the average has been more than $15,000 per head. The mares comprising this stud have been gathered with the most scrupulous care and their produce has been eagerly sought after by buyers from all parts of the world.

The quality of the mares may best be judged by the fact that no allowance is claimed for a maiden sire or dam with the exception of Bay Maiden, which was bred to the young horse Captain Cuttle, for which a three-pound allowance was claimed.

Azacella, Cyllene	Son-in-Law
Allash, Simontault	Galloper Light
Bay Maiden, Bayardo	Captain Cuttle
Cup Tie, Radium	Buchan
Curia, Cicero	Hurry On
Fragonard, Isinglass	Phalaris
Fruition, St. Gris	Craig an Eran
Head Note, Orby	Prince Galahad
Honora, Gallinule	Friar Marcus
Lady Josephine, Sundridge	Swynford
Orcadia, Orby	Buchan
Orlass, Orby	Friar Marcus
Palatina, Prince Palatine	Phalaris
Parasita Light, Henry the First	Hurry On
Rectify, William the Third	Swynford
Saucy Girl, Polymelus	Galloper Light
Seaduna, Ayrshire	Son-in-Law
The Sphinx, Rol Herode	Hurry On
Tubbercurry, Captivation	Buchan
Watersmeet, Marco	Grand Parade

The entries for the Matron from the Sledmere Stud follow: Bay filly by Swynford out of Allash, bay filly by Phalaris out of Bay Maiden, bay filly by Friar Marcus out of Fruition, bay filly by Buchan out of Herself and gray filly by Tetratema out of Cup Tie.

HEMPLER GETS DECISION.

Outpoints Joe Schroeder in Brooklyn Amateur Tourney.

Harry Hempler of the Trinity Club got the decision over Joe Schroeder of the Educational Alliance in the 147-pound class of the special amateur bouts conducted by the Unity Club in Brooklyn last night. One knockout occurred in seven contests. Harry Martinsen of the Norwegian Turners' Society scored a knockout over Lawrence Ronard, unattached, in the first round of the 160-pound class when the referee stopped the bout. Jim Bacl of the Paulist A. C. got the decision over Stanley Cross of the Trinity Club after the judges had ordered an extra round in the 112-pound division.

In the 128-pound class Frank Anderson of the Norwegian Turners' Society outpointed Alfred Dyett, unattached. Jim Mendoza of the Paulist A. C. outpointed Sam Pisch of the Bronxdale A. C. in the 116-pound bout. In the two other bouts Moses Tucker of the Acme A. A. got the decision over Henry Hagen in the 120-pound class and John Killoran of the National A. C. won the decision over Lew Siegel of Rutgers Gymnasium in the 130-pound class.

Albano Will Box Shapiro.

A ten-round bout between Frankie Albano and Irving Shapiro, rival Brooklyn bantamweights, will be one of the contests to precede the clash between Vincent (Pepper) Martin and Ruby Stein, Brooklyn junior lightweights, at the Rink Arena, Brooklyn, Thursday night. In a third ten-round bout Eddie Burnbrook, Camp Holabird, Md., army welterweight, will engage Georgie Levine of Brooklyn.

Aaronson to Meet Guiotta.

Sammy Aaronson, East New York, and Paul Guiotta, Ridgewood favorite, who were ring rivals in the local amateur ranks, will clash in the main six-round bout Saturday night at the Ridgewood Grove S. C., Brooklyn. In four other six-round matches the principals will be: Dave Weber vs. Pete Scarano, Benny Tell vs. Sammy Bienfeld, Nick Laperuta vs. Sammy Goodman and Enrique Savsardo vs. Joey Abrams.

Test for Paul Doyle.

Paul Doyle, east side welterweight, who is struggling for recognition as a qualified contender for Mickey Walker's title, will seek to establish his claim Saturday night at the Commonwealth A. C., when he engages Sailor Friedman of Chicago in the principal twelve-round bout. Harry Getzel and Dode Jackson, flyweight rivals, are scheduled to clash in the semi-final of twelve rounds.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Berlin sporting circles are eagerly searching for some "white hope" capable of defending German honor against two young Indian students who are carrying all before them at a ping p[ong] tournament. This sport, long forgotten in America, recently was revived here and is attracting the attention of the leading tennis champions and other athletes. One of the most prominent contenders for the national championship is the sprint star Rau.

Sporting writers take ping pong seriously and declare it invaluable for keeping the tennis player's eye and arm in trim during the Winter.

The Wood, Named in Memory of Eugene D. Wood, to Be for Three-Year-Olds.

A new stake to be run at the Spring meeting at the Jamaica track is announced by the Metropolitan Jockey Club. It is to be known as the Wood Stakes, named to honor the memory of the late Eugene D. The new stake will be for three-year-olds and will have a value of $10,000, making it one of the richest stakes for horses of that age on the metropolitan tracks. Entries for this event and the other stakes to be run at the Spring meeting will close on Monday, Feb. 16, with Racing Secretary Fred Rehberger.

The Wood will replace the Stuyvesant Stakes on the Jamaica program, but will be richer by some $4,000 than its predecessor. The Wood will be over the course of a mile and seventy yards and geldings will not be eligible.

The other events that will close on Feb. 16 are seventeen in number. The Empire City Racing Association has sent out blanks to the horsemen for nominations for the sixteen stakes to be run during the Summer meeting at the Yonkers course. Entries for these will close on Monday, March 2.

For three-year-olds and upward there are seven stakes on the program, headed by the Empire City Handicap, a gallop of a mile and a quarter with $5,000 added. The others for the older division are the Yonkers Handicap, $4,000 added, one mile and a sixteenth; the Mount Vernon Handicap, $4,000 added, one mile and seventy yards; the Fleetwing Handicap, $3,000 added, about six furlongs; the Mount Kisco Stakes, $3,000 added, one mile and seventy yards; the Melrose Stakes (claiming), $3,000 guaranteed, one mile and a sixteenth, and the Arrow Stakes (claiming), $3,000 guaranteed, about six furlongs.

There are three events reserved for the three-year-olds. They are the Empire City Derby, $5,000 added, one mile and a quarter; the Knickerbocker Handicap, $3,000 added, one mile and a sixteenth, and the Tarrytown Stakes (claiming), $3,000 guaranteed, one mile and seventy yards.

Pitcher George of the York Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League was the leading hurler in that circuit during the 1924 season, according to the official averages issued yesterday. He won twenty-five games and lost eight for an average of .758 and thus led his nearest rival by eight points. The runner-up was Demarest of Williamsport, who won eighteen games and lost six for an average of .750. Only one hurler in the league worked in a greater number of games than George. The latter was on the mound in forty-four contests, whereas Humphreys of Scranton worked in forty-six. Humphrey pitched 298 innings and in this respect led the league.

The official fielding averages, also issued yesterday, show that York led the league in fielding and that the following players were the leaders at their respective positions: First basemen, Freeman, Utica, .989; second basemen, McConnell, Utica, 1.000; third basemen, Rice, Binghamton, .961; shortstops, Lightfoot, Binghamton, .963; outfielders (twenty or more games), Lindquist, Wilkes-Barre, .990; catchers, Lerian, York, .991; pitchers, Drake, Scranton, 1.000 for thirty-three games. Seven other hurlers also fielded for 1.000, but took part in fewer games than did Drake.

EVER BOLD FIRST AT FAIR GROUNDS

M'TAGUE RIDES 2 WINNERS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 12.—Ever Bold, H. C. Riddle's six-year-old gelding by Hesperus—Bella Mayes, scored his second consecutive victory when he captured the Carlton Purse, featured number on the card at the Fair Grounds this afternoon. Carrying top weight of 104 pounds in a field of four he ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:52 1-5 over a heavy track. Fields had the mount and the winner was the strong favorite at 4 to 5.

Track conditions show little improvement and the going was again heavy. Jockey J. McTague gained a double by winning with Gee in the first and with Clique in the sixth. The best Willie Harvey could do today was one winner —Jedburgh Abbey in the fourth. He was second twice and three times unplaced in his six mounts. Three favorites won, and two runaways helped to enliven the proceedings. In the opening number Patrick Sarsfield tossed off Jockey W. Long and ran away, being withdrawn. In the fourth In Love With Love jumped the fence on the way to the post and unseated McTague. She was also withdrawn.

Four in the Feature.

Only four ran for the Carlton Purse, and Ever Bold raced as if the best of the quartet. Fields had the gelding under wraps for half a mile, trailing the field. When called upon he moved into the lead and won easily with much in reserve. At the wire he was three lengths in front of the Greentree Stable's gelding Pirate Gold, which raced sluggishly and tired badly after taking the lead. The Valentino Inn Stable's Huon Pine and Mrs. A. Swenke's Al Boyd ran well until they both ran out. The former took third money.

C. F. Winfrey's Jedburgh Abbey easily won the six-furlong sprint restricted to the three-year-olds. The son of Sir John Johnson and Hilford had all the best of a bad start, showed plenty of speed and led his field all the way. It was his second straight victory and he was the odds-on favorite.

Mrs. A. Swenke's Clique won his second consecutive victory at the Fair Grounds when he easily beat seven other three-year-olds over the mile and seventy yards of the sixth. C. H. Knebelkamp's filly Donna Santa, the 9-to-5 favorite, made the early pace. She suffered some interference in the stretch, but she was a beaten filly at the time and Clique led her by a length and a half at the finish. J. T. Weaver's filly Sincere closed a good gap in the last quarter mile to take third money. Clique was held at 4 to 1 at post time.

Boy From Home Wins.

S. N. Holman's Boy from Home, six-year-old gelding by Helmet—May Bird, won his first start of the meeting when he beat ten others over the course of a mile and a sixteenth. He was one of the outsiders of the field, paying 20 to 1 and being backed to 8 to 1 at post time, but he raced into a long lead and held on well to outstay Bush Buck and win by a length. The Sycamore Stable's Pete Foy closed a tremendous gap to take third money. Permarco refused to break when the barrier rose and was left at the post.

RUSSIAN TO WRESTLE HERE.

Zaikin to Make U. S. Debut in Match With Evko on Monday.

Local wrestling followers will get a glimpse of a new Russian grappler in action on Monday night at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, according to an announcement made yesterday by Promoter Jack Curley. The newcomer to the mat game here is Ivan Zaikin, known as the "Colossus of the Volga," whose boast of strength is that without assistance he removed an 800-pound church bell from a barge to a truck in Russia.

Zaikin recently arrived here for the purpose of engaging in wrestling bouts against the foremost heavyweights of the country. He has confined his wrestling in the past to the Greco-Roman style, but is prepared to adapt himself to the catch-as-catch-can style in use here. Curley has matched Zaikin against John Evko, conqueror of Wladek Zbyszko, for the Russian's introductory bout. The contest will be held under the auspices of the Mayflower A. C. of which Curley is matchmaker.

EASTERN POLOISTS LEAVE FOR CHICAGO

NEW YORK TO FACE CHICAGO

Brooklyn Will Meet Cincinnati and Newark Will Oppose Detroit on Opening Day.

Polo delegations from three cities left here yesterday on their invasion of the West in quest of the national intercity championship, which tournament will start in the ring at the new Chicago Riding Club tomorrow afternoon. The group consisted of the horsemen chosen to carry the colors of New York, Brooklyn and Newark in the coming event, and the players, with their wives and families, occupied two special cars on the Twentieth Century Limited, which departed from Grand Central Terminal at 2:45 yesterday afternoon. George C. Sherman, President of the Indoor Polo Association, who is selected to referee the matches, was unable to accompany the three teams because of business, but he plans to follow the horsemen this afternoon.

The New York squad which made the trip consisted of Burgoyne Hamilton of the Riding Club, Paul Ladin, the sensational star of the Triangle Club; George Matthews Jr. and William L. Fanning of Squadron A. The team has been busily preparing for the approaching tournament for over a month and the combination has developed rapidly despite the fact that the players have been picked from three separate organizations. Only one game was lost during the practice series and New York's chances of bringing back the title are favorable.

The Brooklyn squad was made up of L. W. Mortensen of the 101st Cavalry, W. A. Sackman, H. C. Parsons and E. T. Munkenbeck, all of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club. This group also has been hard at work in preparation for the first title event of the indoor season and the combination of Sackman, Parsons and Mortensen has proved a formidable one.

Newark will be represented by J. D. Gessford, Anson Clough, E. F. Bryce and M. Hartdegen. The only other Eastern team entered in the tournament represents Philadelphia, whose players will make the trip themselves. The Western teams which will play are Chicago, Detroit Cincinnati and Cleveland.

This afternoon the players of all teams will have a short workout in the new ring, which measures 100 by 300 feet, and the tournament proper will start tomorrow. The first round matches all will provide intersectional contests, New York being drawn against the home team, Chicago; Brooklyn being scheduled to face Cincinnati, Newark meeting Detroit and Philadelphia facing Cleveland. The play will be staged tomorrow, Thursday and Saturday, with two games each afternoon and each night, except on the final day.

RUSSO DEFEATS SCHWARTZ.

Wins Decision in Fast 10-Round Bout at Lenox Club.

Jimmy Russo of Grand Rapids received the decision over Corporal Izzy Schwartz of the east side in ten fast rounds at the Lenox Sporting Club last night. Both men weighed 111½. It was a good fight all the way, with both men giving of their best. Referee Hyleas stopped the semi-final bout, also scheduled for ten rounds, in the eighth round, after Frankie Brown of the east side, 126 pounds, and Danny Lee of Harlem, 125 pounds, had put up a poor exhibition.

In the opening bout of ten rounds Benny Levine outpointed Jack Darcy. Each weighed 131 pounds. The boxers substituted for Al Plitt and Leo Wedo. Plitt complained of a twisted ankle, while Wedo was said to be suffering from a cold.

Chicagoans Want to See Nurmi So Scalpers Go Into Action

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Anxiety to witness the first Western appearance of the Finnish running marvel, Paavo Nurmi, has created such a demand for tickets to the third annual indoor handicap track and field games of the Illinois Athletic Club next Friday that for the first time scalpers have taken a hand in the distribution of tickets to a track meet here. Only 6,000 persons can attend the meet. At Nurmi's request the feature race, in which he will meet Joie Ray and Willie Ritola, will be at one and three-fourths miles. Nurmi desires to try for new indoor marks for the mile and a half and three-quarters, as well as a mile and a quarter, all of which are held by Ray.

EDDIE MARTIN WINS BOUT FROM MURRAY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, world's bantamweight champion, received the decision over Tommy Murray, a local boxer, at the close of their ten-round bout at the Arena here tonight before a crowd of more than 7,000 fans with whom the verdict, judging from the demonstration which it received, was far from popular. As both fighters seated over the bantamweight limit, Martin's title was not at stake, the champion weighing 118½ pounds and Murray 121. The decision was rendered by Referee Lew Bailey after the judges had disagreed.

There was much booing and hissing following the announcement of the verdict. To the surprise of almost everyone, Murray gave the champion a hard battle from the start, and in addition to outboxing him, had Martin bleeding during the middle of the fight. Prior to the bout, it had generally been expected here that Martin would be an easy winner.

In the semi-final, which went the limit of ten rounds, Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight, defeated Patsy Wallace, Philadelphia veteran. Wallace was floored for a count of eight in the sixth round. Joey Schwartz of Detroit and Andy Martin of Jersey, bantamweights, went ten rounds to a draw. Tommy Jordan of New York won the decision from Mike Schultz of Philadelphia in the opening ten-round bout. They are bantamweights.

A. A. U. UPHOLDS STUMPF.

Sustains His Action Against Three Boxers and De Forest.

The decision of Chairman Jacob W. Stumpf of the Metropolitan A. A. U. Boxing Committee, denying Jimmy DeForest, veteran trainer of boxers, the privilege of entering an amateur boxer's corner in the A. A. U. tournament competition for an indefinite period, and suspending Mike McNally, Dick Kenny and Joe Canamere, amateur boxers under the direction of DeForest, for a period of six months each, was upheld yesterday at a meeting of the A. A. U. Boxing Committee.

The decision of Chairman Stumpf was announced last week during the New York State amateur championship tournament in Madison Square Garden, when DeForest withdrew McNally, Kenny and Canamere from the tournament upon the refusal of the tournament committee to permit Jimmy Mendoza to compete in the 115-pound class when Mendoza arrived too late to be included in the draw.

The committee awarded the Brooklyn and Long Island championship tournament to the Long Island Council, Knights of Columbus, to be held in April. The Essex County championship tournament was awarded to the Newark A. C., Newark, N. J., to be held early in March, and the New Jersey championship tournament was awarded to the National Turn Verein, Newark, N. J., to be held late in March.

Will Clash With Goodrich at Pioneer A. C.—Other Club Contests.

Sid Terris, regarded as the most formidable contender for the world's lightweight title, now held by Benny Leonard, will attempt to demonstrate his qualifications for championship consideration tonight at the Pioneer A. C., where he is scheduled to box Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo in the main bout of twelve rounds. Because of his speed, cleverness and ability as an accurate and hard hitter, Terris will enter the ring a favorite. Harry Felix, the stablemate of Terris, and Al Valdo, New Rochelle junior lightweight, will clash in the semi-final bout.

Preliminary bouts in the Crescent A. C. amateur boxing tournament will be held tonight in the New Moon Club's gymnasium in Brooklyn. Bouts are scheduled at 112, 118, 128 and 138 pounds. The finals and a series of intercity bouts among boxers of this city, New Haven and Boston will be held Thursday night.

Jackie Gordon, east side bantamweight, and Petey Mack of Jersey City are scheduled to clash tonight in the main bout of twelve rounds at the Bayonne (N. J.) S. C. Murray Layton and Sammy Marino, bantamweights, are matched for the ten-round semi-final.

A ten-round bout between Joe Glick and Harry Sutton will feature the card tonight at the Twenty-seventh Division Train Armory, Brooklyn. Billy Knowles and Kid Rash will clash in the eight-round semi-final.

DELANEY SEEKS TITLE BOUT

Wants to Meet Greb if He Defeats Tiger Flowers on Friday.

A match against Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, will be sought by Jack Delaney, Bridgeport middleweight, in the event Delaney triumphs over Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro, in their twelve-round bout at Madison Square Garden on Friday night. Pete Reilly, manager of Delaney, yesterday disclosed that Greb had been offered a match against Delaney following the Bridgeport lad's triumph over Paul Berlenbach, but that the proffered match was rejected and Greb, who pleaded for more time, the action of Greb prompted Reilly to decide upon a ring campaign to force Greb into a title struggle with Delaney, and a victory over Flowers is expected by Reilly to place Delaney in the position of being the foremost challenger for the title.

Flowers, who arrived here last Saturday to complete his training, worked out before a large and admiring crowd yesterday in Madison Square Garden Gymnasium and appeared in excellent condition. Three bouts in the period of a week, matches in which he knocked out Joe Lohman, Billy Britton and Dan O'Dowd, have served to keep Flowers at the peak of his form and ready for the severe test promised when he faces Delaney.

Weinert Knocks Out Downey.

Fasano to Box Ryan Thursday.

Frankie Fasano and Tommy Ryan will meet in the ten-round feature bout of the second boxing show of the New Manhattan S. C., to be held Thursday night. Wilbur Cohen will engage Willie Darcy in the ten-round semi-final, and in the first ten-round bout Murray Elkins will box Tony Palmer.

PAAVO NURMI TO RUN 3 RACES IN 3 NIGHTS

TO TRY FOR NINE RECORDS

Distances Will Range from Mile to 3,000 Meters—Feat Also Will Set New Endurance Mark.

Paavo Nurmi, Finland's wonderful runner, is bent on shattering not only middle-distance and distance running records during his visit to this country, but, from developments of yesterday affecting the competitive activities of the world's greatest runner, is determined to establish a competitive endurance record as well. This was indicated when announcement was made by officials of the Fordham University indoor athletic meet to be held Saturday night in the 102d Engineers Regiment Armory, that Nurmi had accepted an invitation to compete in a special 2,000-meter run.

Acceptance of this invitation demands of the great runner that he compete in three races in as many nights between here and Chicago. In these three races, in addition to the endurance and traveling record he will establish, Nurmi will seek nine indoor running records.

The arrangement is unique in athletic history. No athlete heretofore ever attempted such a strenuous schedule of combined running and traveling in so short a period. The nearest approach to Nurmi's schedule is that made by Joie Ray. On one occasion Ray competed here at night, in Washington the following afternoon and in Boston the day after. Last year Ray occasioned surprise and admiration when he raced in Brooklyn and in Philadelphia on the same night. Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C. runner, engaged in a race in Brooklyn and another at the 102d Engineers on the same night last season

Non-College Athletic Rule Strengthened at Lafayette

EASTON, Pa., Jan. 12.—Action to discourage participation in non-college athletics by members of the Maroon athletic teams while still students has been taken by the Faculty at Lafayette College.

"The penalty for playing in a non-college game without permission of the Faculty Athletic Committee," reads the action of the Faculty, "shall be probation, and the student shall be debarred from holding any office in any college organization."

This is more stringent than the ruling previously in effect, which made ineligible for competition on Lafayette athletic teams students participating in unauthorized non-college games.

PURVES WINS MEDAL IN PINEHURST GOLF

Boston Player Has Card of 84 in Advertisers' Winter League Championship Tourney.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 12.—R. Murray Purves of Boston, twice winner of the Advertisers' Winter Golf League Championship, led the qualifying round of the tournament here today when he returned a card of 42, 39 out and 45 back. The handicaps did not figure in the qualifying round, but the match play in all divisions will depend on three-quarters of the difference between the two.

Purves was just one stroke better than C. N. Hartman of Chicago and two ahead of W. R. Barnhill of Des Moines, Iowa. Purves's outward trip in 39 was the only nine holes of the day under 40, as playing conditions were not of the best. He was putting exceptionally well but poor second shots gave him a 45 coming in. Purves never took more than two putts on any green.

There were six in the field who broke 90; 93 tied for fifth for a place in the first division. William T. Hamilton of Westchester-Biltmore, last year's champion, was among those who tied for the last place, and the luck of the draw threw him back into the second division.

The first net prize was won by N. R. Hotchkin of Montclair, N. J., with 96, 20—76. Second net was a tie between Clair Maxwell of New Rochelle with 88, 9—79, and W. E. Butler of Chicago with 99, 22—77. This will be played off later.

Mrs. George Wright of New York led the women players by scoring 51, 46—105. Mrs. Reginald Pelser of New York took the net honors with 113, 20—93. In the nine-hole contest Mrs. C. E. Johnson led at both gross and net with 61, 15—46.

Purves's card:

Out .....5 5 5 2 4 5 3 5 5—39
In .....4 5 5 4 5 5 4 5 5—45—84

In the first round tomorrow Purves will meet R. L. Smith of Poughkeepsie. Other pairings for the first round are: Lord-Conklyn, Maxwell-Hartman, Gardner-Barnhill, Williams-Finney, Maxwell-Rich, Dunn-Nye, Meigs-Bloch.

The summaries:

DALY NOT SELECTED AS HARVARD COACH

Official Denial Is Made That Former Army Star Has Been Chosen for 1925.

NO DECISION IS REACHED

Graduate Committee to Make Report to Athletic Body Tomorrow—Wendell Mentioned.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 12.—Published reports that Charles D. Daly, former Harvard and West Point quarterback, would become head coach at Harvard next season in succession to Bob Fisher were officially denied today by Fred W. Moore, graduate treasurer of the Harvard Athletic Committee. The reports followed a meeting of the Harvard Graduate Advisory Football Committee held last night in Boston, at which the coach situation was considered. The full committee, which consists of five active and four associate members, attended the meeting.

"The committee has not yet reached a decision," Mr. Moore said today. "The report that Daly has been appointed is not true. The committee does not expect to have Daly as head coach at Harvard next season."

The Graduate Advisory Committee is made up of Malcolm J. Logan, Brockton, Chairman, quarterback in 1913 and 1914; Gilbert G. Brown, New York, end in 1907-8; Charles C. Buell, quarterback and captain in 1922; Lothrop Withington, Boston, captain in 1910; Donald C. Watson, Milton, quarterback in 1914 and 1915, as regular members. The associate members are John W. Cutler, New York, quarterback in 1906 and 1909; Benjamin H. Dibble, San Francisco, captain in 1898; Dr. Thomas K. Richards, football squad physician, and Arthur C. Cable, Chicago, who played on the 1909 football team.

It was announced that the committee would make a report to the Harvard Athletic Committee on Wednesday embodying some of its recommendations with regard to the coaching problem.

Members of the committee refused to make any statement regarding the business of the meeting, but Robert T. Fisher, present coach, is quoted as saying that while he cannot resign because his contract has been from year to year only, he is anxious to relinquish his position in order to be able to devote more time to business.

Mr. Daly played quarter at Harvard in 1895, 1898 and 1900. It was he who piloted the Crimson team which beat Yale 17 to 0 in 1898. He was famed as a sensational running quarterback, winning additional glory and renown when he entered West Point after being graduated from Harvard. He played for the Army from 1901 to 1905, acting as player-coach during his last two years at West Point. He was Percy Haughton's assistant coach at Harvard in 1909 and head coach at West Point from 1919 to 1922.

The report that Percy Wendell, former All-America fullback, recently coach at Williams and now under contract with Lehigh University, would be sought as head coach for the 1925 season, was circulated late today and was denied that Daly had been selected for the position. Well-informed members of the Harvard Athletic Association admitted that there was a strong desire to obtain Wendell's services and that if he came to Harvard he would be surrounded with a graduate staff of unusual ability.

Leo Leary would head the strategic staff, it was said, with Charles Crowley, who assisted Percy Haughton at Columbia, directing the varsity ends. Plans for the back field and line coaches are incomplete, the report said, but will be decided within two weeks.

Wendell who made a record as coach during his four years at Williams, has signed a contract to coach Lehigh eleven for three years. This contract calls for $10,000 a year, it is understood. When Wendell accepted the offer it was with the understanding that he would be released if called by Harvard, according to reports published at the time.

Weinert Ready to Box Firpo In London; Cables His Terms

CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—Charley Weinert, heavyweight boxer, who will meet Joe Downey of Columbus here tomorrow night, announced he would go to England to fight Luis Angel Firpo. Upon his arrival here tonight Billy McCarney, Weinert's manager, received a long distance call from his New York office quoting a cablegram from Leon Britton stating that London promoters have despaired of securing Tommy Gibbons to meet Firpo, and are asking on what terms Weinert would box the South American. McCarney authorized his office to cable London that Weinert would meet Firpo for twice the sum Firpo was to receive. These, he said, were the terms demanded by Firpo in a previous encounter, in which the American was the victor.

N. Y. U. SEEKS ENTRY IN CHESS LEAGUE

New York University, winner of the championship of the Intercollegiate Chess League, made application yesterday for admission in the new H. Y. P. W. Chess League, consisting of Harvard, Yale, Princeton and West Point. In his application A. Frieman, the N. Y. U. chess manager, expressed his full sympathy with the aims of the new league and stated that N. Y. U. players were in complete accord with the eligibility rule, which will limit the annual competitions to under-graduates only.

L. Walter Stephens, Princeton representative on the graduate committee of the league, however, stated yesterday that, while there was a decided inclination to welcome N. Y. U. into the league, nothing definite could be done until after the appointment of a West Point member on the committee to make possible a full meeting to take action. It was stated that overtures also had been received from the University of Pennsylvania.

In order to celebrate the recent victory over City College, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Buffalo, New York University chess players will hold a dinner and theatre party on Jan. 24. They also have adopted a new policy and hereafter will play against college teams only. Consequently they will not participate in the Metropolitan Chess League competition. A challenge will be issued to Columbia, winner of the C. H. Y. P. League cup, An Eastern tour, within the next two or three months, also is planned.

Six sets will be played on Saturday and the Saturday following the play will be transferred to Philadelphia, where the second half of the match will be contested.

Both players have been practicing diligently in preparation for the coming event. It will be the first big match in court tennis in this city since the challenge match between Jay Gould and Hewitt Morgan at the Racquet and Tennis Club last year for the national amateur title.

PRINCETON VICTOR AGAIN AT SQUASH

The Princeton Club squash tennis team won its ninth consecutive victory in the Metropolitan Class C squash tennis championship yesterday and retained the lead in the tournament. The Tiger players defeated the Crescent A. C. on the Brooklyn club's courts by the score of 5 to 2. The Yale and Harvard Club teams still are tied for second place, both winning yesterday. The Elis won all seven matches with the Montclair A. C. at the Yale Club, while Harvard sent Columbia to fourth place by defeating the Blue and White representatives on the Crimson courts, 4 to 2. One of the matches was not played.

The match between the New York A. C. and the Whitehall Club was not completed. A decision was reached in five matches, every one of them going by default, while the two others were postponed, one until today and the other until tomorrow at noon, when John D. Rockefeller Jr. of the Whitehall Club will play Harold Thorne of the New York A. C. on the Whitehall courts. Three members of the New York A. C. put in an appearance yesterday and two members of the Whitehall Club. None of them found his opponent on hand and the five matches went by default, the New York A. C. taking the lead at 3 to 2.

The Heights Casino of Brooklyn and the Short Hills Club won the two remaining matches. The Casino won its third victory of the season, defeating the Gramercy Park Squash Club in Brooklyn, 4 to 3. The Short Hills players defeated the Fraternity Club on the Fraternity courts, 5 to 2. The victory of the New Jersey team put it in fifth place, ahead of the Crescents.

Yale's shutout victory over the Montclair A. C. was one of the finest performances of the season's play. Montclair, with several seasoned players in its line-up, has been looked upon as one of the strongest combinations in the tournament. Only one of the matches went to three games, although there were only two that could be called one-sided. Jesse Spalding and E. L. Winpenny met in the No. 1 match and the former won at 15—9, 15—13. A. G. Hardy was carried to three games by R. Messer, while R. W. Wolf defeated C. S. Moora at 18—14, 17—14.

COPULOS AGAIN TIES CANNEFAX FOR LEAD

TITLEHOLDER PLAYS TODAY

May Break Deadlock in Two Games Scheduled Here—Other Billiard News.

Both Cannefax of New York, the defending champion, and Gus Copulos of Detroit are back in a deadlock for first place in the National Championship Three Cushion League race, having displaced Tiff Denton of Kansas City, who was the leader last week. Cannefax and Copulos each has won 27 games and lost 9, while Denton is a full game behind, with a record of 26 won and 10 lost.

Cannefax hopes to break the deadlock in his double-header against Harry Wakefield of Cleveland, which will be played at the Strand Academy here this afternoon and tonight. Wakefield has failed to play up to the form he displayed last year, but in recent games he has showed signs of improved play.

The standings of the players, with the games won and lost, the high run and best game, follow:

	Won.	Lost.	H.R.	B.G.
Cannefax, New York	27	9	13	24
Copulos, Detroit	27	9	10	40
Denton, Kansas City	26	10	11	37
Reiselt, Philadelphia	19	14	9	39
Jackson, Buffalo	13	11	10	46
Layton, St. Louis	16	16	9	47
Kleckhefer, Chicago	16	14	10	51
Hall, Chicago	15	15	11	54
Panelist, Milwaukee	15	18	12	59
Lookabaugh, Boston	11	25	9	44
Greenwood, Pittsburgh	9	25	7	48
Wakefield, Cleveland	6	24	6	44

It was announced yesterday that the second three-cushion match between Cannefax and Willie Hoppe, which was scheduled to be played in the Bensinger Billiard Academy in Chicago starting the week of Jan. 26, would not be held there. The first match, best six out of eleven blocks, will start at the Strand Academy next Monday afternoon. The following message from L. A. Bensinger to T. A. Dwyer of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company here, follows:

"As President of the Three Cushion League and Chairman of the Pocket Billiard League I cannot do anything that will upset both league schedules as much as the proposed match here the week of Jan. 26 between Hoppe and Cannefax. I will consider such a match when the dates will not conflict with league schedules."

It was stated yesterday that Charles S. Kline of the Strand, who holds a contract with Cannefax's services here, had planned to take steps to prevent the second match being played in Chicago, but the action of L. A. Bensinger doubtless will end the controversy. There is a possibility now that the second match will be played in Chicago, which city is favored by Hoppe.

Tadao Suganuma, champion, and K. Suzuki, challenger, will hold a meeting this morning to select a referee for the national junior championship 18.2 balkline challenge match, which will start at the Strand Academy on Thursday night. The name of Edgar T. Appleby, holder of three amateur balkline championships, was proposed and it is known that his selection would be favorable to both players. The match will be at 1,200 points, played in three blocks of 400 points each.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Jolly Comedy.

HER NIGHT OF ROMANCE, with Constance Talmadge, Ronald Colman, Jean Hersholt, Albert Gran, Robert Rendel, Sidney Bracey, Templar Saxe and Emily Fitzroy; written by Hans Kraly, directed by Sidney Franklin; selections from "La Boheme," "Divertissements" Capitol Ballet Corps; "Roxy's Gang," at the Capitol this week.

A lively pictorial farce-comedy, with the fair and effervescent Constance Talmadge, is the principal attraction at the Capitol this week. It is called "Her Night of Romance," and is jolly enough to cause one to forget the Winter's snow and chilling blasts. Hans Kraly, who wrote the scenarios for "Deception" and "Passion," and was co-author of "Three Women" with Ernst Lubitsch, is responsible for the story.

In this vehicle Miss Talmadge is gay and charming, affectionate and coy, always making the most of her expressive eyes. Ronald Colman, who will be remembered for his clever work in "The White Sister," gives an easy and natural performance as a young English Lord, who is introduced as an impecunious caller on a money-lender, eager to borrow another one thousand pounds. Mr. Kraly frequently takes the line of least resistance in building up his situations. This may be pardonable in such a light entertainment. Nevertheless he succeeds in giving opportunities for many novel touches, which have been aptly and adroitly handled by the director, Sidney Franklin.

The narrative is similar to one of those novels that make easy reading, and although one may not be thrilled with suspense, one is always eager to learn how the idea has been worked out by the writer.

Miss Talmadge figures as Dorothy Adams, one of those fortunate young persons with $10,000,000, youth and beauty. To avoid fortune hunters, she sends a picture of herself, made up as a decidedly unprepossessing young woman, to the newspapers.

Lord Menford (Mr. Colman) is rather a giddy nobleman, who gets "tight as a lord" at night, but is bright and happy next morning. It is not surprising when he falls in love with Dorothy, little thinking that she is an heiress. Joe Diamond, the money lender, informs Menford that he can't borrow another penny until he has sold his home. Diamond further calls attention to the heiress who has arrived from America, who he believes is as ugly as her newspaper photograph. He nevertheless suggests to Menford that the latter ought to meet the heiress and give him, Diamond, 10 per cent. of the money he may receive. The young Lord hesitates to take this idea seriously, especially after he sees the girl's picture.

There is an amusing sequence where Menford poses as a famous physician. He informs Dorothy that her pulse is perfect, and when Dorothy's father enters the room he has reason to suppose that the physician is unusually attentive to the patient.

When the Menford country home is sold, the young Lord, after spending hours at his club, returns to the house, forgetting that it has been sold. He goes to a room without knowing that Dorothy is already occupying it. The sequence concerning this provoked hearty laughter yesterday afternoon, and it was all good, wholesome fun.

The settings and scenic effects in this picture are convincing, with reproductions of English railroad trains, the country home and the hotel rooms.

Jean Hersholt is splendid as the money lender. His ease of manner and his constantly changing expressions made the characterization quite natural and most interesting. Albert Gran is pleasing and amusing as the heiress's father.

The Daughter's Sacrifice.

Alma Rubens gives a creditable performance in a film entitled "The Price She Paid," which is to be seen this week at the Broadway. It is a mildly interesting entertainment concerned with a girl whose widowed mother suddenly finds herself in straitened circumstances, and therefore appeals to her daughter to marry a wealthy elderly man.

Just at the time the mother is endeavoring to stave off humiliating proceedings the emissary from the Sheriff's office reaches the house, and with a derby hat stuck on one side of his head and a cigar prominently displayed in his mouth, he loudly informs this Mrs. Elton Gower that he has come to take possession. General Siddal, the gray-haired bachelor, appears to think that the widow's plight will help him to marry the daughter, Mildred, played by Miss Rubens.

General Siddal is impersonated by William Welch, who by no means gives one the idea of being feeble or aged. The General's physician, Dr. Donald Keith, tells the old bachelor that he will have to curb his habits or the girl he is going to wed will be a widow in less than a year. An effort is made to show that the General is not exactly aristocratic in his demeanor, and Dr. Keith, when he discovers that the young bride is Mildred, becomes infatuated with her himself. Then we have Mrs. Gower trotting off and marrying a "social idler," and consequent adventures of the heroine.

STRAUSS TO ENTER VIENNA IN TRIUMPH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—As predicted several weeks ago, Richard Strauss is about to return in triumph to Vienna. Negotiations lasting a few weeks now appear to have resulted in the creation of a special post for him that may be described as Commander-in-Chief of Austrian Music.

Strauss will be next in command to the Minister of Education, who is the supreme authority of the State-owned Vienna Opera and the University of Music. Strauss will have control of both these institutions, and the final word in all question of production, also in the engagement of artists. Most likely Strauss will also be active as conductor.

This appears to be the end of a violent feud raging in the papers for months. The Viennese hope that the presence of Strauss at the opera will attract foreigners to Vienna.

PEGGY JOYCE IN FILMS.

Countess Morna Is to Star in Two Cosmopolitan Pictures.

Countess Morna, the former Peggy Hopkins Joyce, announced yesterday that she had signed a contract with the Cosmopolitan Productions to star in two pictures, both of which are to be made partly abroad. The interiors will be filmed in this country. The first production will be entitled "Borrowed Love" and the other "Without Mercy."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The following productions will have their premieres tonight: "Isabel" and "Shall We Join the Ladies?" at the Empire, "Two Masked Men" at the Longacre, "The Love Song" at the Century and "The Valley of Content" at the Apollo.

Five plays were transferred to new theatres last night—"Desire Under the Elms" from the Greenwich Village to the Earl Carroll, "Patience" from the Provincetown to the Greenwich Village, "They Knew What They Wanted" from the Garrick to the Klaw, "Badges" from the Forty-ninth Street to the Ambassador and "S. S. Glencairn" from the Punch and Judy to the Princess.

"The Emperor Jones" was again revived at the Punch and Judy Theatre last night for a two weeks' engagement.

"The Love Lady," by Sophie Treadwell, had its first performance last night at the Hecksher Theatre, at Fifth Avenue and 104th Street. It will be continued for a week.

Ethelbert Hales has been engaged for "Houses of Sand," which Michael Mindlin is producing.

I found John Howard Lawson's "Processional" always interesting, good or bad as the scene in progress might be. I found it exciting, sometimes violently original, and sometimes moving and beautiful to an immense degree. To produce such a play took courage on the part of the Theatre Guild; in "Processional" there are challenges to convention, there are fresh effects to be attempted, there are instances of antagonisms, bad taste and crass thinking, none of which make the task of the producers easy. The Theatre Guild's end of it comes off only passably. To produce such a new piece properly would require months of experiment. A new style of acting is often needed and new methods and resources must be found to express the exact key of the writing. But the play itself last night at the Garrick could at least be followed throughout, and sometimes very well, and the varying quality of it discerned. It provided a strange experience in the theatre, and one rich in possibilities and not to be forgotten.

The first act went off with a good speed and lively interest, the scenes following went less well, sometimes inexpertly and full of the amateur. The Ku Klux scene dropped into a poor tone indeed. The last act picked up and rose at length to deep and poetic tragedy. George Abbott as Dynamite Jim started off only so so; he improved for the scenes where the man returns after being strung to a tree and cut down and rescued. In this scene the blind man finds again his mother and the girl who is to bear him a child. Here Mr. Abbott was excellent, and June Walker as the girl equally good. Donald Macdonal played well the newspaper man, Blanche Frederici, from her first entrance to the last curtain, gave a strong, profound performance. She had a quietness and a certain brutal pathos such as are not often seen on the stage. And to me she was all the more remarkable for my having seen her once in a Northampton stock company do the best playing that I had ever seen in an Oscar Wilde comedy. The crowds last night were flat and without any quality of ensemble.

The style of the production, with Mr. Gorelick's satirical settings, and of the writing of the play must be encountered rather than described. It was a mixture of the serious, the vaudeville, the halls of jazz, a twisting and turning of the idea, great matter stirred up, passion and blood and revolution thrown into the air and brought down again to the rattle and sigh of drums and sliding horns, life stirred, shaken, dared, outraged, dreamed of and made beautiful, ending always in jazz. And in the course of it all America came in for a spanking, the land where thought cannot be followed to any conclusion, the land of idiotic, smug mottoes, of cheap ideals, flags, mother's day, mock freedom, hypocrisy and so on. Now and again the satire on our country was profound, as when the black man says that some day we may have a colored President, "a cultured nigger with a fine singing and speaking voice." Sometimes the theme was singularly imaginative, as when they speak of the jazz melody of a bad woman in a small town. It was America well spanked by a writer who seemed a poet, a genius, a college sophomore not yet grown up and a dramatic journalist by turns.

And yet it is out of this very rawness and jazz suddenness and nervous commotion in America that these best qualities in "Processional" arise and are propelled into such lively power. The story itself is out of America; these strikers in a coal mining town of Pennsylvania, this jazzing girl, daughter of a Jewish shop-keeper who lives off the miners and soldiers alike, this man hunt, this blood, this travesty of law, this hand of capitalism, the mother, the child to be born, and finally the general peace and easy-going, half-mocked spirit of forgiveness, and the jazz wedding: all these are taken from the American scene. And the characteristic action of mind on the author's part, the spasms of beauty and feeling, the relapses into irony and fooling, the nonsense, the silliness, the passion and poetry—all these are akin, pleasantly or spitefully, to the souls of our flags, jokes, ideals, raptures, pieties and half-spoken depths of feeling.

"Processional" marks an advance beyond Mr. Lawson's hotly debated "Roger Bloomer" two years ago; the new play is on the whole more sustained and more deeply cut. The best of "Processional" is in the last act. The love scene there between the blind man who has come to take his mother away with him and the girl who is going to have a child is beautiful, moving dramatic writing, as fine as any I have heard in many years.

"Processional" is uneven, not on the whole very well produced, and as a play conceived with varying degrees of taste, intelligence, insight and imagination. But it is a feather in the Theatre Guild's cap. As a drama it throws off astonishing suggestions of living stuff; it is full of strong, wounded, indomitable life. However unequal it may be, it is always creative and streaked with genius. It has thrusts of poetic power. It has, as "Roger Bloomer" had, a remarkable gift of pathos, a strange, fresh, young, robust, half brutal pathos unique in our drama. And whatever else it is, it is never anything but theatre.

ZIEGFELD CUTS SEAT RATE.

Reduction From $5 to $4 at "Annie Dear" and "Kid Boots."

Orchestra seats at two of Florenz Ziegfeld's three current productions were reduced from $5 to $4 with last night's performances. At "Annie Dear," recently presented at the Times Square, the price change included the entire orchestra, but at "Kid Boots," which now has been running with success for a year, only 300 orchestra seats are included in the new arrangement. The $5 scale will prevail as usual on Saturday nights.

Mr. Ziegfeld instituted the price change, he declared, in the belief that theatre prices are too high. No change in the price of seats for the Follies was announced.

Mrs. Graves to Be In Hospital Two Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Ralph H. Graves, editor of World's Work, and Mrs. Graves, who are in a hospital here suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident last night, are improving. Mr. Graves, who suffered cuts about the head, is expected to leave the hospital in a day or two, but Mrs. Graves, who suffered a fractured knee, will be detained there probably two weeks.

McAllister Charge Fails.

On the ground of insufficient evidence Magistrate Bernard J. Douras has discharged Joseph Dandio of 349 East 113th Street, accused of attempted grand larceny by "Flying Bob" McAllister, supended patrolman, who was acquitted some time ago of the murder of Vincent Fighera in connection with the same alleged attempted theft of an automobile belonging to J. Morton Mayer of 350 Manhattan Avenue. McAllister, who is still under suspension, is now doing a singing act in vaudeville.

OPERA

By OLIN DOWNES.

Mme. Galli-Curci Returns.

IL BARBIERE DI SIVIGLIA, opera in three acts; Book in Italian by Cesare Sterbini; music by Gioachino Rossini. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

The Count of Almaviva	Ralph Errolle
Dr. Bartolo	Pompilio Malatesta
Rosina	Amelita Galli-Curci
Figaro	Titta Ruffo
Don Basilio	Adamo Didur
Fiorello	Vincenzo Reschiglian
Berta	Marie Mattfeld
An Official	Giordano Paltrinieri
Conductor—Gennaro Papi.

The return of Mme. Galli-Curci and Titta Ruffo to the Metropolitan Opera House with last night's performance of "The Barber of Seville" was doubtless the principal reason for the brilliant audience and the packed and vociferous house. But the opera itself may well have had something to do with this. It was particularly diverting to hear it after the recent brilliant production of Verdi's "Falstaff" and to marvel the more at all that Rossini accomplished in an age when musico-dramatic technic was far less advanced than in Verdi's later years, and when an opera buffa usually meant a plank, a tune and an ensemble or two to amuse the public.

The sheer genius of the "Barber" grows upon the listener as he realizes the comparatively limited means that Rossini had at his disposal, and stirs to the wit, the vitality, the melody and humanity of this score.

Verdi himself wrote no more brilliant and admirably constructed ensembles. Nor was Rossini unalive, even in 1816, to the possibilities of orchestral commentary on the stage situation. He uses his orchestra with an instinctive dexterity and originality of manner which makes it nearly as important and amusing as the vocal parts of the opera. He was indeed a man of genius, whose like we will not see again.

The opera was given a spirited if not too finished performance. Mme. Galli-Curci appeared to be in unusually good voice. The tone had the liquid beauty which is one of its marked characteristics in most registers and under most circumstances. The musical phrase was mated well with the text, and there was not the effort to overdo the part which has marred more than one past performance of it. Once in a while, and usually in the upper part of the voice, there was deviation from pitch, but this was not a prevailing feature of the interpretation as it has sometimes been. The two airs for the lesson scene were the Polonaise from "Mignon" and "Home Sweet Home." The Polonaise was sung with lightness and charm. It can be given more of a virtuoso spirit, but the elegance of the singing more than compensated for carefulness rather than abandon in its execution. There was a lovely quality of tone in the too familiar song of the fireside, and it had real simplicity as it came from the singer's lips. All in all, this was one of the best performances Mme. Galli-Curci has given here in recent times.

The music of Figaro requires a more flexible voice than Mr. Ruffo's, and one lighter in its quality. But Mr. Ruffo pleased the audience greatly. He roared, sometimes loudly, sometimes gently as sing sucking dove. In a burly and lurching manner he gave the part humor, and Figaro's amusement or derision of his betters was suitably shown. Mr. Errolle's Almaviva improved rapidly as the evening went on. At first he was hesitant and the voice had not warmed. Later he sang with taste, with confidence and good quality of vocalism. The voice is a light one, which suits it to such a role and to the florid quality of much of Almaviva's music.

Mr. Didur's Basilio was sufficiently greasy and hypocritical and well sung so that the "Calumny" aria did not fall on deaf ears or fail of its proper effect upon the risibilities. One of the admirable features of the performance was Marie Mattfeld's singing of Bertha's air, which has seldom been given the interest and significance that she bestowed upon it. Mr. Malatesta's Bartolo was in place and a sufficient foil to the other parts. Mr. Papi was at his best in the interpretation of this score. The tendency to buffoonery instead of humor shown by different actors at certain moments is regrettable but a sign of the times. It is perhaps more effective than finer strokes of characterization would be in this great theatre. It is also true that Rossini's opera is so inspired and so much proof against any misrepresentation that while these details are important they do not suffice to mar such a representation.

JOSEF LHEVINNE PLAYS.

That fine artist, Josef Lhevinne, gave his last recital this season at Carnegie Hall last evening, a concert which appealed particularly to the pianists present. Mr. Lhevinne's contribution to the sum total of present-day pianism springs from an individuality which is far removed from the clangors of the market-place; he is an idealist, a dreamer, whose quests have led him in the direction of perfection, polish and refinement. He seems almost to have abjured the strenuous methods so beloved of many instrumentalists today and to have taken refuge in a contemplative philosophy.

This was his approach to Beethoven and to Schumann, it was even his attitude toward Chopin, where his most telling effects gave the impression of wonderful silver-point etchings in tone. In some places his pianos were almost imperceptible. Two more Chopin numbers were added to the group in a double encore.

Mr. Lhevinne gave two first times in America, an "Albumblatt," by Joseph Mar, which, in spite of its endless suspensions and dissonances, was quite harmlessly pleasing, and "Singing Fountains," by Walter Niemann, a descriptive piece not at all alarming in its modernity. Bartok's "Allegro Barbaro" completed the up-to-date group.

Mr. Lhevinne ended his program with two compositions by Liszt, which were applauded with great fervor. Throughout the evening the pianist had been recalled many times and had played several encores.

OPERA SINGERS ON TONIGHT

Shavitch Applauded in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Vladimir Shavitch, conductor of the Syracuse Symphony Orchestra, made his reappearance in London at Queen's Hall tonight when he conducted at a concert of the London Symphony Orchestra and was particularly successful with the C minor symphony of Brahms which brought him enthusiastic applause.

D. E. Porter to Detroit Symphony.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 12.—D. Edward Porter, assistant manager of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, will succeed William E. Walter as manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, May 1 next, according to an announcement made today by William H. Murphy, President of the Detroit Symphony Society. Mr. Walter will become a director of the Curtiss Institute of Music, Philadelphia, it was announced.

MRS. GOETZ PAWNED IRVING BERLIN'S GIFTS

Compelled, She Testifies, to Use Jewels Presented by Song Writer to Her Daughter.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Mary T. Goetz, on the witness stand in Equity Court in a continuation of her separation and alimony action against her husband, Edward H. Goetz, a nephew of Mayor Philip Becker of Buffalo, gave redirect testimony today combating charges of extravagance in her personal and home life.

The Goetz home at 481 Delaware Avenue was one of the largest private residences in Buffalo, Mrs. Goetz said, necessitating large servants' salaries and disbursements for upkeep. She declared that her husband had given her only two pieces of jewelry during forty years of married life—an engagement ring costing $60, which was stolen by burglars, and a diamond pin costing $128, that she had never had a car and that after her alleged abandonment by Mr. Goetz she rented the lower floor of the Delaware Avenue house to a doctor and on one occasion took a roomer.

The doctor, she testified, paid $200 a month for the lower floor, but, despite this, she could not have maintained the house except for the help of Ethel, a daughter, who had just started her career as a designer.

When the additional expense of caring for Coleman, a son, who was then ill, fell upon her, Mrs. Goetz testified, she pawned jewelry given to Ethel by Irving Berlin, the song writer, who married Dorothy, another daughter. She declared she had asked Mr. Goetz to redeem the jewelry, but the request had been ignored.

Mrs. Goetz denied having encouraged the marriage of Dorothy to Irving Berlin "because it was a good financial venture." Dorothy met Mr. Berlin, she said, while she and Ethel were on a visit to another son, E. Ray Goetz, in New York.

She testified that Mr. Berlin's income at that time was "around $75,000 a year" and that his future was "very bright." Asked if that had influenced her in regard to the marriage, Mrs. Goetz declared that she had "had nothing to do with it."

SEVEN ARTISTS IN CONCERT.

Beethoven Association Gives a Very Interesting Program.

The Beethoven Association gave one of its most interesting programs of the season last night in Aeolian Hall. Handel's sonata for two violins and piano; Mozart's "Panis Omnipotentia" for tenor; the Beethoven "Kreutzer Sonata"; songs for tenor by Hugo Wolf, and Mozart's string quintet in C major. Handel's sonata was played by Albert Spalding and Edwin Bachmann, violinists, and André Benoist, pianist.

The tenor was George Reader, and he gave admirable demonstrations of good singing and dramatic interpretation in Mozart's noble air and in the more modern idioms of Hugo Wolf. The Beethoven sonata was played by Ernest Hutcheson and Albert Spalding. It was a sane and well proportioned reading, which made much of the variations as well as the greater and more fiery movements which precede and follow them.

The concluding performance of the Mozart quintet was given by Albert Spalding, Edwin Bachmann, Nicholas Moldavana, Hugo Kortschak and Emmeran Stoeber. It was the worthy climax of the evening, and was warmly approved by the audience, which packed the hall.

NOT A NEW COOLIDGE.

The fact that the President had to accept important resignations and make significant appointments all in one week has led some imaginative Washington correspondents to picture a new CALVIN COOLIDGE, suddenly become masterful and assertive. But there is as yet no real evidence of a change in him. He has simply made critical decisions, quietly and promptly. But that is precisely what he has done ever since he succeeded to the Presidency. From the first he was modest and cautious and welcomed all the help he could get, but he never showed lack of poise or of confidence in his ability to discharge the duties of his great office. It is not possible in his case to put a finger on the time when he said to himself, as President ROOSEVELT said half jokingly, that he had "ceased to be an accident" and was entitled to exert the full power of the Presidency in his own right. Mr. COOLIDGE gives the impression of one who has steadily pursued the road which he had marked out for himself without break or pause.

That he has all along been firm in the intention to maintain every Presidential right unimpaired there is much evidence. When the Senate last year was proposing to demand that he dismiss his Secretary of the Navy, he let it be known that he would not tolerate any encroachment upon the constitutional privilege of the President. He is simply standing by that same principle when he makes two Cabinet appointments without consulting politicians and without heeding protests made by members of Congress. They go away from their vain conference with him to spread the report that he feels himself growing great upon the meat of popular approval. But there is nothing in his bearing or actions to warrant this. He has not changed in manner and there is no reason to suppose that he has changed in convictions or intentions. A remark of his made three years ago has recently been printed. He was asked what he thought of President HARDING. His reply was that he thought him an excellent President, but added, "I do not see that any one is afraid of him."

It is not to be supposed that Mr. COOLIDGE desires anybody to live in terror of him. But he is bound so to act as to strike fear into the hearts of any who would challenge the due authority of the President of the United States. This may be taken to mean "setting up for himself," but it is nothing new for Mr. COOLIDGE to do that.

OUR SHARE IN REPARATIONS.

Allocation to the United States of 2¼ per cent. of Germany's payments under the Dawes plan, in order to defray the cost of the American Army of Occupation and other claims against Germany, formally ties the interest of the United States with that of the Allies in seeing that Germany carries out the schedule. Henceforth America will share in proportion to the other Allies. It follows that any action on the part of Germany to stop paying will affect the United States as well as the Allies. To be sure, America's share is very small, and a German default would be less of a blow to America's finances than to those of France or Britain. But the principle has been definitely established.

Since the payments will be spread over a long terms of years—the Wadsworth agreement ran for twelve years only, whereas this one will continue until the total has been paid—the actual cash available for the Allies during the next few years will be greater than if the Wadsworth plan had been clung to. This is doubtless one of the motives which induced France to relinquish in favor of America 1¼ per cent. of the German payments to which she was entitled under the Spa agreement. Her financial position is such that she needs everything which she can get from Germany. It is estimated that under the present arrangement she will receive only about 500,000,000 gold marks from Germany during the first year or two.

Various details remain to be worked out. Percentages satisfactory to the small nations have to be adjusted and various accounts in connection with the occupation of the Ruhr must be untangled. Some of this work will undoubtedly be turned over to subcommittees. There has been much less disagreement among the Allies than had been feared, and the opposition to America's demands has been less formidable. It is clear that the combination of Messrs. KELLOGG, HERRICK, and LOGAN has been a happy one, and that by their intimate knowledge of individuals as well as of problems they have been able to eliminate much potential friction.

It will be interesting to see the attitude of this country toward the Reparation Commission in the future. American participation in the economic reconstruction of Europe has long been a fact, even though for the most part "unofficial." No political obligations were incurred by having an American, Mr. GILBERT, in the position of Agent General for Reparations, and the other Americans participating in the work of various committees hold no Government commissions, with the exception of Messrs. PERKINS and LOGAN, yet there is no doubt that America's interest in the special problems of German recuperation is steadily increasing. It may not be necessary to appoint further representatives in connection with the Dawes plan and the Paris agreements. So long as all goes well, there will be little for them to do. But should a new crisis arise, it may prove that America's percentage in the reparation receipts will place her once more by the side of her old Allies, and that together they will present a united front toward Germany.

THE HUDSON AUGUSTUS.

To Jersey commuters the Government dredger Raritan is an old acquaintance. She is always loafing about and often getting in the way. Who would have thought that she was an archaeological schooship, that Ostia, so to speak, lies under the clay 'twixt Communipaw and Downtown? On a Wednesday night her Quartermaster had a prophetic Roman dream "of being ordered to carry an object to the cemetery. I thought it "was a statue, but it came to life "to accuse me of killing it." On a Saturday a suction pipe of the Raritan "coughed up," minus neck and chin and therefore more persuasively antique, the marble bust of Divus AUGUSTUS, which was put on exhibition yesterday, after sculptors, students of classical art and dealers had declared it an original or copy by a contemporary artist — contemporary with AUGUSTUS—a master Augustan craftsman.

Preceded by a dream, it was accompanied with a portent. It was found in ten feet of clay off Rector Street—Ruler Street. One expert says that the bust is "the second finest of the many marbles of AUGUSTUS." We know little about those many marbles, except that, to one pair of eyes, the head of the famous Prima Porta statue looks like Mr. ELIHU ROOT. HENRY ADAMS never could or cared to learn whether his twelve-shilling drawing by RAFAEL was RAFAEL's. The wise layman is an agnostic. The Raritan Quartermaster needn't fear his new Pygmalion dream. Unless this imperial Caesar sucked from clay is luckier than some other specimens of the Hudson River school of ancient sculpture, more battles than he ever knew will be fought by the critics over his effigy.

Whether the Hudson AUGUSTUS be the second finest or only the third finest of Roman marbles, how did he get himself dumped into the North River? No one can be patient with a silly jester who pretends that he was on his way to Rome, N. Y. He seems to have been under water quite a while. He has a considerable collection of minute shellfish between the ridges of his hair. How long had he been waiting for the Raritan to dredge him up? Some say 100, some 200 years. As the demand for statuary here was not then strong, how did he come to make the voyage? A fascinating theory is propounded. He came over as ballast—to the amount of thirty pounds:

> I understand that many of the old sailing ships from the Mediterranean used to pick up architectural fragments lying about the harbors there for use as ballast. Until within fairly recent years a fine Roman statue might have been regarded as junk.

Such was the wealth of ancient art kicking about until within fairly recent times. How many little ships of the seventeenth and eighteenth century, having nothing to sell to a country that manufactured nothing, came over ballasted with specimens and fragments of the antique? Evidently, our navigable waters should be carefully dredged. There may be a marble Artemis in the Hudson opposite Vassar College. Even near Haverstraw there may be Roman bricks. Our AUGUSTUS is of "Carrara marble." Our Encyclopaedia Britannica, positive as usual, tells us that "stone from "this district was employed in Rome "for architectural purposes in the "time of AUGUSTUS, but the finer "varieties adapted to the need of the "sculptor were not discovered until "some time later."

Never mind the vehicle of the sculpter. How did the Emperor get from the Tiber or from Genoa, Calabria, Sicily, Africa, to Rector Street? Why was he made a river god? Did somebody make a "real find," evade the laws of Italy, bring AUGUSTUS here only to lose him while endeavoring to communicate with the shore? In that case, neither the shipper nor his customer would have any reason to talk. To be sure, this takes us away from the ballast theory, which is too good not to be true. Moreover, if AUGUSTUS so fell, it must have been in "very recent times." Wouldn't it be well for a Coroner's jury of scientists to determine how long AUGUSTUS was exposed to the water? After all, that is a trivial matter. The Princeps has come to visit the Mayor. Like life, art comes from the water.

RAILWAY LABOR.

On the first business day of the new year Representative BARKLEY gave notice that the promoters of his bill for the abolition of the Railway Labor Board intend to press it to passage. Mr. WALKER D. HINES has had experience as both a public and private administrator of railways on a national scale, and in The Journal of Commerce he ranges himself on the side of the public, the forgotten factor, which the Barkley bill would deprive of all representation. Mr. HINES makes it clear that protection of collective bargaining is not the real motive of the unions in wishing to eliminate the Labor Board. He says that "progress is being made "on many railroads in establishing "cordial and close relations and cooperation and understanding between "the management and the organizations of the employes." But he adds that much more progress is desirable. Nothing would more promote it than letting in the light on the negotiations between the companies and the men, but darkness rather than light is the aim of the abolition of the Labor Board.

That it has made mistakes Mr. HINES freely admits. Yet his criticisms are tempered by recognition of the difficulty of the problems encountered. He says that the board has "rendered exceedingly valuable service," bracketing it with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The railways now regard their regulators as their life preservers, and on their behalf he appeals to the public to strengthen their hands against the attacks of the national railway unions. In them are included only the aristocracy of the workers. Many classes of labor are not affiliated with the national unions, and need the protection of the board as much as the public needs it. The "only possible way for "the public interest to be adequately "protected is to have a permanent "expert tribunal prepared to investigate and report promptly upon any "substantial controversy." But the prevention of this is the aim of the Barkley bill. For open negotiations would be substituted covert bargaining with an uncopcealed club. Two of the strongest railways have recently submitted to strike threats.

Mr. HINES urges support of President COOLIDGE in raising the Labor Board to the judicial, non-political standard of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The matter is really economic, not partisan.

POWER AND RESPONSIBILITY.

Professor SHOTWELL outlined to the National Republican Club last Saturday an American foreign policy based upon the proposition that we cannot exist as the most powerful of nations without responsibility. We have at our disposal the "greatest single political force" in the world today. We may use any instrument to the extent we may ourselves determine. We may cooperate with international institutions outside our sphere of direct participation without committing ourselves beyond limits which we may ourselves fix. Clearly within those limits lie three specific steps that the United States can take.

The first is so generally recognized that any disinterested observer must wonder why we hesitate. War can be outlawed, as Mr. ROOT said nearly two years ago in comment on Senator BORAH'S resolution on this subject, only by arraying the moral force of the civilized world in support of definite rules of conduct which exclude war, and by supplying that moral force with institutions through which it may be applied to specific cases of attempted violation. One of these institutions is a court, so that the great multitude who desire the peace of justice may know what is just. Mr. ROOT had a guiding part with other American jurists in the framing of such a court. We should at once enter it.

The second and third steps are as necessary, though not so obvious. They would take us whole-heartedly, though independently, into international conferences and even into association with the work of the League of Nations. Even the most rabid American opponent of the League of Nations should be willing to have his country do this. The three steps do not carry us into the League. They may not even carry us toward it. If we hesitate about the second and the third, and say in the words of NEWMAN'S hymn, the compulsion is on us to take that one next step. It may bring us no immediate benefit, but it will be an earnest of our willingness to use our supreme influence to support the "peace of justice."

> I do not ask to see

Bishop BRENT, that valiant soldier of peace who was with General PERSHING at one of the headquarters of the World War and who has recently come back from Geneva, the headquarters of peace, said a few nights ago, after speaking of war as a judge without a conscience, "our quest is "for another judge which will base "all decisions upon the highest estimate of fearless righteousness and "the principles of peace and order. "I do not hesitate," he added, "to "put some such court as the Permanent Court of International Justice "as the key to the whole situation." In appealing for America's acceptance of the World Court we are, as he said, but asking adherence to "an ethic of common sense."

THE MERCHANT MARINE PROBLEM

The President's committee to solve the American merchant marine problem was set a task in which very little progress has been made since the World War ended. When Mr. COOLIDGE became President the Shipping Board took its worries to him. He was told that the conditions of marine transportation imposed "a fixed differential" of $5 a ton against American ships. It was explained to him that private owners could be damaged, perhaps ruined, by a policy that favored the Shipping Board's vessels. Mr. COOLIDGE in his message to Congress in December, 1923, recommended that the operation of vessels be turned over to the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the Shipping Board to take care of major policies and act generally in a supervisory and judicial capacity. Admiral LEIGH PALMER of the navy, who had been running a South American line by direction of the board, was put at the head of the Fleet Corporation.

Later on President COOLIDGE named the Secretaries of the Treasury, Commerce, War and Navy, Admiral PALMER and Chairman O'CONNOR of the Shipping Board a committee of inquiry and proposal. In its report, which was made last Friday, the committee said:

> The whole work of the committee has been based upon your instructions to keep definitely in view the determination to maintain our position on the seas through Government control until such time as it is possible to transfer the operation of these vessels to private hands.

It will readily appear that the recommendations of the committee are similar in intent to many of the decisions the Shipping Board came to in the resolution it adopted on Dec. 22, 1924. Thus the board and the committee agree that management, operation and maintenance of vessels should be the business of the Emergency Fleet Corporation; that it should administer docks, warehouses and terminals, and should sell ships on approved terms and conditions. The board wished to retain powers which the committee would have the Department of Commerce take over. "The "promotion, functions, economic investigations, &c., should be transferred," says the committee's report, "to the Department of Commerce." But it recommends that "administration of the construction "loan fund should remain in the "Shipping Board."

Mr. COOLIDGE, must be impressed by the conclusions of the able commission to which he sent the baffling puzzle. One of its recommendations will not please the private owners. It is to the effect that railway companies be allowed to engage in international shipping. The idea is associated with "probable consolidations of our railways." Congress must now act in a large way. The country is opposed to a Government-owned merchant marine. It becomes the duty of Congress to provide for the transfer of ships to private owners on reasonable terms.

CHEERS IN THE THEATRE.

Mr. H. G. WELLS, looking about for a specific example of the way in which the American male is being affected by his women teachers with their "sensuous and emotional state," might point to theatre audiences in New York. Only a few years ago an outburst of first-night cheers on Broadway was signalized as a phenomenon. The practice has since become common. On Saturday night Mr. HAMPDEN'S "Othello" was saluted after the second act with a vocal demonstration which one chronicler describes as verging on mild hysteria. A week earlier the Metropolitan Opera House was the scene of an extraordinary ovation to an American singer. Early in December cheers rang out at the first performance of "The Student Prince." On Sunday night another Metropolitan audience hailed ROSA and CARMELA PONSELLE.

Sometimes it is the actor, sometimes it is the play, frequently it is both. Mr. HAMPDEN has won a devoted following which has no hesitation in showing what it thinks of him. The Barrymore hold on the public heart is almost regularly attested by cheers. In the case of Mr. LAWRENCE TIBBETT it was merit plus special circumstances. In the case of the sisters PONSELLE it was heart throb in a genuine sense. Personality did not enter into the loud greeting accorded to the musical version of "Alt Heidelberg." There again it was specific merit heavily capitalizing an already existent emotional state; for RICHARD MANSFIELD'S student prince is still a warm memory to thousands.

Theatre audiences here have got over being ashamed to give voice to their emotions. Almost it is another alien peril here—the febrility of the Europeans eating away the stern Puritan reserve. The traditional self-restraint has not manifested itself in baseball and football stadia; but these, as Mr. WELLS might argue, are masculine exercises, and the shouts are exhortations to combat rather than guerdons of victory. To cheer an emotion or an idea is different. Two things are to be hoped. Cheers in the theatre should remain spontaneous and unstandardized without the intervention of that extraordinary apparition, the cheer leader. And we ought to have the cheers of approval without the European correlative of hissing and booing. American good nature will probably see to that.

Perhaps American audiences have refrained from cheering because they have lacked the vocabulary. We cannot, without blushing deeply, shout "Bis," "Bravo" or "Brava"! A native throat at a native public dinner simply cannot be imagined ejaculating "Hear, hear!" The only word at our disposal is "Attaboy," and that would be out of place after the second act of "Othello."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

For Once We Are Lucky.

Total eclipses of the sun not only are rare events, but they usually seem to have the inconvenient peculiarity of deigning to be visible only in out-of-the-way and remote parts of the world. Most of the eclipse expeditions that one can remember had to betake themselves and their instruments to some such place, and only too often the performance has occurred behind a veil of clouds, so that the long and expensive journey was useless.

Next week's eclipse of the sun has been better arranged, for the great shadow will pass over a particularly well-populated part of the United States, and New York City is one of the favored localities. If only we can have a fair day—two clear hours, one before 9 o'clock and one after it on the 24th would do—we shall be privileged to behold a spectacle which hardly ever is presented twice in the course of a long lifetime to stay-at-home folk. It always is an impressive one, perhaps, because even to those of us who know exactly what causes it such an eclipse is an apparent dislocation of what all our instincts tell us is not changed.

In every one of us lingers, probably, something of the old belief, once and not so long ago universal, that eclipses are "portentous"—linked with important events, commonly disastrous, or with the deaths of great men. Probably a majority of the world's inhabitants still are alarmed by eclipses, and most of all by total eclipses of the sun. Many an explorer of wild lands has been able to convince the natives that he possessed powers both magical and dangerous, simply because advance knowledge enabled him to threaten them with the putting out of the sun or moon, and then rewarding their submission to his wishes by the saving of those valuable luminaries.

Here and now that cannot be done, even in the Third Avenue fortune-telling belt or in the back parlors of Brooklyn, where the "mediums" are able to play on the credulous and the ignorant tricks not less absurd than those by which the genial savage could be fooled.

Not Afraid but Glad It Was Over.

One should not be too sure that, even here in the Western metropolis, next week's eclipse will be viewed with entire composure by everybody. Astrology still is taken seriously by some New Yorkers who are far from illiterate—who write for papers and magazines.

One of THE TIMES correspondents, a Brooklyn clergyman, in a letter printed on this page Sunday, recalled what he could remember of a total eclipse of the sun seen by him as a boy in Iowa, fifty-seven years ago. While nobody was really afraid, he distinctly recalled that while the darkness lasted the people stood in what seemed to be awed silence, and at its close burst into cheers and shouts of a sort that evidenced something very much like relief. They were glad the thing was over, and that is clear proof that they were not so sure it was not a dangerous proceeding.

In the South the eclipse of that same year caused not a little terror among the negroes, and there were whites, too, for whom it suggested talk about a possible ending of the world.

Though nothing could be more regular than eclipses, the regularity is not obvious except to those having something of astronomical knowledge, and that those who do not are many is shown by the frequency with which, in almost any circle, one can hear grave references to "wet" and "dry" moons, according to the inclination of the crescent and its supposed ability or inability to "hold water."

"Homeopathic magic" the folklore folk call that sort of divination, and the person who—truthfully—can declare himself free from the last atavistic trace of belief in it is a rarity.

We All Share Their Humiliation.

It does seem that State Governors, of late, have been—well, unlucky. Too many of them have fallen under either indictment or impeachment, and not always has the one failed or the other been dismissed.

To make the matter worse the charges against these important officials more often have concerned the getting of money in dishonest ways than those abuses of power for political ends which can be understood easily enough to be excused and almost forgiven as a natural working out of common human tendencies. Corruption—the outright selling of favors and privileges—is something different and baser.

In all these cases, however, and in the one now cutting a sorry figure on the first pages of the newspapers, it is well to remember that political animosities tend to develop harshness of language in the characterization of opponents and that between charge and conviction there is a large difference.

A Governor ought to be above suspicion—and most of them are—of anything worse than unwisdom, and when that is his only fault the blame for it is shared by those who elect him or her. Bribe-taking is about the limit of the disgraceful for a Governor, and it is so uncommon that the accusers have improbability to face the moment they speak. Unfortunately, once or twice they have overcome this handicap.

They See Light at Last!

The Republican leaders in this city, having realised sooner than their Democratic brothers that voting machines must come here soon, have issued a proclamation professing warm approval of those devices and telling, with both force and accuracy, just how much and why the machines are better than the pencil-marked paper ballots.

This is more than a little amusing, for these same Republican leaders have allowed a not inconsiderable number of years to pass without showing any more inclination than have the Democrats to bring about the change they now commend. As they have known so much about voting machines, why have they not spoken before? However, late is better than never, and certainly it is wiser to yield voluntarily, though belatedly, to the inevitable than to do it under compulsion and with loud protests.

Beyond reasonable question, the voting machine is a better device for ascertaining the popular will than the paper ballot. Not all politicians who oppose it are dishonest, but there is no doubt that every dishonest politician is against it.

Thanks From France.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would you be so kind as to publish in your columns the following letter of thanks from the inhabitants of the little French village of Somme-Py to their many benefactors in the United States, largely through whose generosity the reconstruction of their village has been made possible?

Somme-Py, Marne, France,
Nov. 26, 1924.

The Mayor of Somme-Py to Mr. Robert L. Buell, President of the American Students' Reconstruction Unit, New York, N. Y.

The Mayor of Somme-Py is pleased to inform Mr. Robert Buell that the installation of electricity, which was made possible by the large and generous gift of the "Somme-Py Fund" Committee in America, has just been completed.

In his name and on behalf of the inhabitants of Somme-Py he wishes that Mr. Buell would kindly express to the American committee and to all those who so generously contributed to its fund the unanimous feeling of gratitude and of profound appreciation of the entire population of Somme-Py.

He would like also to express his sincere thanks for the particularly welcome offer made by the American Students' Reconstruction Association to provide funds for the decoration of the Memorial Hall in the new school and Town Hall, which was designed by American architectural students in 1921 and recently completed in accordance with their plans.

GAILLET LESAGE,
Mayor of Somme-Py.

Somme-Py is a village near Rheims, which was the scene of frightful atrocities during the war and totally destroyed. The population is now larger than before the war, more land is under cultivation than ever before, and 90 per cent. of the homes and public buildings are completely rebuilt. Furthermore, this village and several others near by have electricity for the first time, and water supply and sewage systems are about to be installed. To these latter improvements the major portion of the American fund of about $50,000 was principally devoted.

It was the American Students' Reconstruction Association which in 1921 sent to France a reconstruction unit composed of architectural and engineering students, who worked under the French Ministry of Reconstruction at Soissons, Rheims, Somme-Py and Verdun. In addition to rendering valuable service to France and affording useful training and experience to the American students, these units helped to promote understanding and good-will between our two countries.

All who have visited devastated France since the war have seen the remarkable bravery and industry displayed by those whose homes and lands were laid waste. People who continue to show the same courageous spirit in time of peace as they did in time of war, and who are always able to overcome the most discouraging and overwhelming obstacles, are not the type of people who would ever seek to evade their just debts to their great ally, friend and benefactor, the United States.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As to "Sam Hill," my grandfather's brother, Wesley Brown of Homer, N. Y., married a woman named Luces Hill, whose family home was in South America. Fifty years ago, when visiting at Uncle Wesley's, the expression "run like Sam Hill" was mentioned, and I was told that this turn of language derived itself from the great running powers of a real Sam Hill, a relative of my Aunt Luces.

BOLTON BROWN.

FROISSART ON A WINTER NIGHT.

Four walls, four windows, mirror and a door;
A low lamp burning, one unwary moth,
A hush of velvet on the oaken floor.

Whisper—this room has voices of its own,
Undying passions from these pages cry.
All down the centuries come, thin and high,
Youth's laughter light and age's deeper tone.

Come, make your choice, for blackest night sets in;
Draw to the fire and lose the wind and rain.
Lose, too, yourself, your handful of thin pain,
Let magery its timeless spell begin.

Four walls—they widen out to fields of France,
Four windows—through them now are bugles blowing.
Down through the mirror, silver knights are going;

The end is death, but what are mere ends worth?
We can but read, and then a little know
The bravery of life that, come or go
In sorrow, is the briefest thing on earth.

Then close the door on drafty thought of ends,
And let us blow the dust off time, the while
These eager blades of long ago beguile
Us to the immortality their valor lends.

A MARTYR TO SERVICE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Today, in the little American Church in the Rue Dr. Alfred Vincent, under a covering of flowers and beneath the Stars and Stripes, his friends in the Secretariat of the League of Nations and in the American colony of Geneva made their farewell to Dr. Otto E. Eichel of Albany, N. Y., Chief of the Division of Epidemological Intelligence of the League of Nations. He died in Geneva on the morning before Christmas Day, after an illness of nearly a month which began with an attack of influenza and developed into double-pneumonia. His lungs had cleared and his temperature returned to normal; but his never-too-robust vitality was not sufficient to round the turn.

Otto Eichel is as much a martyr to the cause of the League of Nations—the cause of international cooperation for the welfare of mankind—as Woodrow Wilson. Like him, he gave to that cause beyond his strength.

Had he lived he would have become—perhaps one may say he was already—one of the most distinguished, as he certainly was one of the most efficient and unselfish, of the world's warriors for public health. More to him than perhaps to any other one person is due the advanced position of the State of New York in the creation of the county institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis, and in the systematic correlation of information and statistics for the guidance of the warfare against disease.

Born forty-one years ago in Buffalo, N. Y., he was educated in the schools there and in the University of Buffalo, and got his medical training in the Buffalo Medical School and under Dr. Fronzak, Health Commissioner of Buffalo, himself a health officer of the highest reputation. Under Dr. Fronzak Dr. Eichel began his anti-tuberculosis work as an inspector.

He practiced medicine personally but a short time. As one who knows him best said to me today: "He could not stand the strain upon his sympathies. He was a doctor of that temperament that made him 'sicker than his patient.'" Personal sympathy and tenderness were in the fibre of his character.

He was the first Superintendent of the tuberculosis hospital established by the late Mayor J. N. Adam of Buffalo; he equipped and opened it. He was even then already an active and prominent factor in the war upon tuberculosis and attracted the attention of Dr. Herman Biggs, State Health Commissioner, who gave him a temporary appointment as district health officer, which became permanent upon his gaining by examination a civil-service status, in which, as upon several later occasions, he stood highest. Assigned first to the fighting of smallpox in an epidemic in the western part of the State, he soon returned to the tuberculosis work, and at the outbreak of the war took a leading part in the campaign for the "mandatory county tuberculosis law," requiring the establishment of tuberculosis hospitals in the counties, so that tuberculous soldiers returning could be treated in their own localities.

Later he became head of the Division of Vital Statistics in the State Health Department and built up an ideal statistical system, to which students flocked from all over the world to study the registration and statistical aspects of public health. He was the United States census officer in that field. For the past few years he had been advisory statistician for the Milbank Memorial health demonstrations, guiding that enterprise in the selection of localities for their work. There was pending at the time of his death a proposal that he join permanently the staff of the Milbank Memorial.

He came to the League of Nations on six months' leave of absence from the State Health Department in February, 1923, succeeding Mr. Sydenstricker of the United States Public Health Service as head of the Division of Epidemological Intelligence. So brilliant was his work that the League asked and got an extension of his leave, and desired him to remain indefinitely. But he loved America and Albany and his work there and wanted to return. So eager was he to leave his work here well done that he overtaxed his energy. He and Mrs. Eichel had engaged passage for Dec. 18, when his fatal illness began.

Although plainly an outstanding man, sure to make a great name for himself, he was modest and simple. At the brief service held this morning over his body in the American Church there were present Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League of Nations; Sir Herbert Ames, its financial director; Dr. L. Rajchman, director of the health section, and his staff, as well as many others prominent in the League and in the American colony of Geneva. The League building was officially closed today as a mark of sorrow and respect. And in the Secretariat there are many men and women in the most humble positions, even those who sweep and clean, who sorrow for the loss of a great-hearted friend.

Peasants and Communism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning (Monday), in your interesting editorial, "Raditch on Trial," appeared the following: "Certainly a peasant population offers little promise for the Soviet idea." May I respectfully dissent from that part of your editorial? If Russia, the present unhappy home of Sovietism, is not a peasant population, what is it? If Bulgaria, the European State closest to following Russia's calamitous lead, is not a peasant population, what is it? And now comes Yugoslavia, the "peasant kingdom," whose population is almost entirely made up of peasant farmers. That kingdom, one of the best products of the Versailles mapmakers, now finds itself endangered by the Red menace in its most agricultural part, Croatia. During the last two years I have studied the political machinery of Bolshevism in every European country except Russia (really the westmost of Asian States), and can testify that for efficiency that machinery is far ahead of the worst political ring in any American city.

Unfortunately, most unfortunately, the press everywhere has come to use the words Bolshevism and Soviet as if they described some new phenomenon, and novelty has its charms. Bolshevism is nothing more nor less than socialistic-communism in control of government. It is exactly in farming communities that socialistic ideas are the most easily spread. It is only lately that those two splendid farmer States of North and South Dakota have repudiated the socialism of Townley's so-called "Non-Partisan League," which cost those States so many millions for unprofitable socialistic grain-elevators, &c.

Land for State Parks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial on Eastern national parks contains good advice to every State east of the Mississippi River. Land for State parks should be bought now before it increases in price and before it is denuded of the natural forests. Get the land now and improve and beautify it from time to time in the future. West Virginia lands in price now are where prices in older States were fifty years ago, but they are rapidly being occupied and advancing in value. The West Virginia Legislature is about to assemble and should not neglect to take some definite action for securing State parks. We have mountain lands and views where pure air and mineral waters will impart health and vigor to all and in that way repay to the taxpayers all the cost.

GRAVES FOR SERVICE AS COLLEGE POLICY

SAYS ALL ARE NOT EQUAL

Only Persons Willing to Study and Serve Public Should Enter College, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 12.—An "aristocracy of service" was urged as the proper goal of university training by Dr. Frank P. Graves, President of the University of the State of New York and State Commissioner of Education, in an address at the Founder's Day ceremonies in Bailey Hall today.

Such a goal, the Commissioner said, was clearly the underlying motive of the founder of the university, Ezra Cornell.

That, rather than an aristocracy of brains, should be made the basis for limiting admission to college, Commissioner Graves declared, citing Ezra Cornell's words:

"I would found an institution where any person can find instruction in any study."

Commissioner Graves spoke in part as follows:

"It is unfortunate, however, that we Americans seem so often to accompany our generous conception of universal education with the absurd implication that all persons are born with equal ability and possibilities and should be given exactly the same training as well as the same opportunities. No such want of discrimination can be read into Cornell's desire to furnish instruction to every person in any study.

"A change, however, is taking place. In addition to having grave doubts concerning our educational theory, the accumulated after-the-war load, the wide distribution of wealth and the obvious material advantages of higher training have collectively brought such vast hordes to our college gates as to make the reception of them all a physical impossibility. This has brought about the realization of the necessity of limiting college admission to those who are able to get the most out of the training, and has resulted in the application of the phrase 'An aristocracy of brains' by certain college executives.

"This attempt to limit higher education to those who make it of some real profit to themselves and society is a healthful tendency, if it is but broadly construed. However, in selecting the few to be trained for leadership, there are other characteristics to be considered besides the intellectual. The moral qualities that should be especially stressed are the capacity for industry and for perseverance, since leadership cannot be sustained by the indolent and weak-willed, however intellectual they may be. * * *

"The brilliant student will be of little value to the world if he fails to make the most of his opportunities or to use them in the service of the society that has granted him special privileges. Even the most gifted youth has no natural right to the advantages of a college education. * * *

"There is still a wide range of superstitions and abuses to be overcome, and it should be both the function and the privilege of university trained leaders to struggle to their utmost to further the control of society. Ever aware and to contribute continually toward the abolition of ignorance, poverty, disease and crime."

DECLARES CITY IS LAX.

Prison Association Says It Has Been Doing Municipal Work.

E. R. Cass, General Secretary of the Prison Association of New York, discussing yesterday the decision of the Catholic Charities to establish a model probation system for Catholic offenders in the Court of General Sessions, charged that the city had not fulfilled its responsibility and that for thirty years the association had been doing the probation work in that court.

"For the past thirty years," Mr. Cass said, "the Prison Association has been doing the probation work in the Court of General Sessions and for the past fifteen years it has strongly urged that the city perform its obligation as it has in the Children's Court, the Magistrates' Courts and the Court of Special Sessions. It has been our feeling all along that voluntary effort was woefully inadequate. The work is too heavy for private, outside organizations to carry on and the city properly should take over the responsibility. There has been opposition to our suggestion and the counter suggestion that instead of being taken over by the city the work should be done along denominational lines. We feel, however, that it would be better for the city to do the work and take care of the denominational requirements, providing the necessary quota of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish workers, just as in the other courts."

LIKES WORLD COURT DRIVE.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—Thomas R. Marshall today declared himself heartily in favor of the appeal of the State to recommend American adherence to the World Court.

"If a man libels me, it is regarded as entirely consonant with a keen sense of personal honor that I should seek redress in the courts instead of going and beating him up," he said. "What is true of individuals is true of nations. "Some opponents of the World Court have alleged that it would be impracticable to find impartial judges. Such a statement is preposterous. I know I'd like to try a case before the World Court."

Opposition to the proposed child labor amendment was expressed by Mr. Marshall. He said it was a question for the States to decide.

THIS ALREADY PROVIDED

Prominent Stage Folk Named on One Committee Preparing to Get Contributions.

All the contributions received in the public campaign to complete the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, which will begin next Sunday evening with a mass meeting at Madison Square Garden, will be used for the actual work itself, without deductions for expenses. This was announced yesterday by Bishop William T. Manning at a meeting of the chairmen of divisions in the Committee on Community Cooperation, held in the board room of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building, 1 Madison Avenue. Bishop Manning said that the expenses of the campaign had already been provided for.

Bishop Manning cited two letters he had received recently as examples of the widespread interest in the Cathedral building project. One was from Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, and the other from a French Roman Catholic priest, who enclosed a contribution to the fund.

Chairmen of the divisions reported to Bishop Manning that their committees were ready for the drive. Haley Fiske, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, as Chairman of the Business Men's Division, said that nineteen trade group Chairmen were preparing a canvass of the industrial and commercial interests of the city. General Charles H. Sherrill, Chairman of the division of historical and patriotic societies, said that his division had been expanded to include foreign language groups.

Mrs. Hamilton H. Fairfax, Chairman of the women's division, reported that every woman in the city will be asked to contribute. Colonel George W. Burleigh, Chairman of the division of military and naval organizations, said that there soon would be a committee in every military and naval group in this district.

Alfred Harding, for the division of the arts, said that Frank Gillmore, Chairman of the stage group, had named a committee including Helen MacKellar, Maclyn Arbuckle, George Arliss, Grant Mitchell, John Emerson, Doris Keane, Edith Wynne Matthison, Grant Stewart, John Drew, Elsie Ferguson, Julia Sanderson, Florence Reed, Laurette Taylor, Jane Cowl, Elsie Janis, Cissie Loftus, Julius Tannen, Robert Emmett Keane, and George MacFarlane. Lecture Litchfield announced that his group would ask all the architects in the city to help.

Church committees which will work in Westchester County for the Cathedral campaign held a luncheon and conference at the Hotel Commodore yesterday afternoon. The Right Rev. Herbert Shipman, Suffragan Bishop of New York, and the Rev. H. Adye Prichard, Acting Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, made short addresses. Joseph C. Baldwin 3d of Mount Kisco, Chairman of the Central Westchester group, instructed those present in the work to canvass which will begin next Monday.

Thomas M. Emory, sixteen-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Emory of Morristown, N. J., presented to Bishop Manning yesterday a large architectural model of the cathedral as it will look when complete. The model, after its acceptance by the Bishop, was placed in the old Synod Hall, where the offices of the campaign fund are situated. During the campaign it probably will be shown in a downtown shop window.

The model is on a scale of 1 inch for 2-3 feet. It is eight feet long. Young Emory used 3,400 pins and 200 square feet of cardboard in its construction. It has ninety-seven windows, paned with colored tissue so that the miniature church may be lighted from within.

Emory worked on the model for a month. He is a high school student and intends to study architecture.

J. L. LIVERMORE COLLAPSED.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 12.—Jesse L. Livermore, who returned Saturday from a fishing trip to the Florida Keys aboard his yacht the Godfly, is recuperating from a slight sunstroke suffered last Wednesday.

Mr. Livermore, with his wife and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McNeil, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krumdick and Mr. and Mrs. George Reynard, were fishing just after noon on Wednesday. Mr. Livermore had hooked a big amberjack and was trying to land it when he collapsed. He was carried into the cabin of the yacht and for two days was confined to his berth.

The party caught 246 fish in all, the largest a giant whipray, which they harpooned while cruising in the Gulf Stream. The fish towed the boat for five miles before it was finally brought alongside. It weighed 800 pounds, had a spread of 22 feet and measured 30 feet from nose to tip.

Meanwhile the Former Lasky Director Is Expected to Join United Artists.

The announcement last Saturday that Cecil B. De Mille had severed his connection with Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, of which he was Director General, gave rise to a report yesterday that David Wark Griffith would take over the responsibilities and the title relinquished by Mr. De Mille. This report was denied, and it was understood that there would no longer be any such office as Director General. Actually Jesse L. Lasky has always been the guiding genius of the production departments, although Mr. De Mille carried out his own ideas independently.

Mr. Griffith signed a contract to direct pictures for Famous Players some months ago, and because of a contract with the United Artists Corporation, through which all his pictures were and are distributed, it was finally agreed that if Mr. Griffith made one more picture for the latter concern he could afterward begin work for Famous Players. Mr. Griffith now is producing his last production for the United Artists, and it is understood that in a few weeks he will begin work in the Astoria studios on "The Sorrows of Satan."

It is now reported that Mr. De Mille may join the United Artists Corporation. Mr. De Mille would give no information regarding this, but it was said he might make a statement later. He has given up the idea of going to Europe and will stay in the East until he has made new affiliations.

The former Ambassador has been asked to make several addresses here, but he has declined all invitations. However, he will make many calls upon old friends and officials.

"I think if there is any man who can ask to be excused from speaking," he said today to THE NEW YORK TIMES, "it is I. After all I had to do in the campaign I can hardly be expected to want to speak now. I have just been having the best and longest holiday I have ever had in my life. I have been resting completely for the last two months, and now I am on my way back, going into harness again.

Mr. Davis declined to discuss politics. He had been too long away from home, he said, to keep in touch with the latest events.

SCULPTURED CAESAR MYSTIFIES EXPERTS

BISHOP MANNING SEES RELIC

Art Dealer Says That Marble Must Have Been Under Water for 70 or 80 Years.

The marble head of Augustus Caesar, which was picked up from the bed of the Hudson River by the War Department dredger Raritan, was on exhibition yesterday at the Kleinberger Galleries at 725 Fifth Avenue.

Bishop Manning was one of those who inspected the battered work of art. Joseph Brummer, an art dealer who specializes in classic sculpture, examined it carefully and agreed with other sculptors and students that it was a genuine work of Roman sculpture of the time of Augustus. Mr. Brummer said that he did not regard it as the work of a great sculptor.

"It is no modern copy," he said. "It is easy to tell that it has been in water, but it is impossible to tell the how long a time it has been there. There are a great number of heads of Augustus by his contemporaries and many of them are finer artistically than this specimen. It was probably brought here by a sailor or some one else at a time before such things were appreciated and was thrown overboard because he could not sell it. It might have got into the Hudson River in a thousand ways."

E. M. Sperling, a partner in the Kleinberger firm, said that there could be no doubt that the work belonged to the Augustan age.

"It could not possibly have been done by a modern," he said. "No modern artist could copy it without leaving traces of his own style. No modern sculptor could reproduce anatomical detail with such skill.

"It is a fine piece of work by a good artist, but with the nose and chin broken its value is much impaired. The great interest that attaches to it is the fact that it came out of the Hudson River. It is very extraordinary that it should be at last there and recovered in this way. I think it must have been thrown overboard seventy or eighty years ago by some sailor who was disappointed in efforts to sell it.

"The cars have attracted much attention from sculptors. They are examples of remarkably fine work.

"It is impossible to set a money value on it. It is to be valued not only as the relic of a work of art but as a curiosity because of the mystery connected with its history."

WANTS INQUIRY ON HARVARD

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 12. Whether "true culture is being crushed by big business at Harvard University" is a subject which Arthur P. Blanchard of Cambridge wants investigated by the Legislature. Blanchard, who is a graduate of Harvard, has introduced a bill for the inquiry.

Blanchard says the resolution is inspired by a recent magazine article by John Jay Chapman entitled "A Plea for the Emancipation of Our Culture from Well-Meaning Commercialism."

The State Constitution is quoted as not only giving authority for such investigation but in fact making such supervision a duty of the Legislature.

EGYPT AND THE HOLY LA

REFUSES TO ENJOIN NEGRO MOOSE ORDER

Supreme Court Justice Wagner denied yesterday an application by the Supreme Lodge of the World, Loyal Order of Moose, and New York Lodge, No. 10, for an injunction against the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Moose, and the Empire State Lodge, No. 8, negro organizations, restraining the defendants from calling themselves "Moose" pending the trial of the suit.

The papers state that among the members of the plaintiff order are James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, who is Director General of the Supreme Lodge; Charles M. Schwab, ex-Vice President Marshall, the majority of the members of the United States Senate, several Governors, and Mayors of a number of leading cities, including the present Mayor of Philadelphia, where the organization has 28,000 members. The late President Harding was also a member.

The plaintiff alleges that misrepresentations have been made by persons acting in behalf of the defendant organizations, to the effect that the negro children cared for by the Loyal Order of Moose at Moosehead were sent there by the defendant lodge and that the defendant was a branch of the plaintiff.

From the Founder's Writings

It was quite an intelligent man who spoke up to a lady these very words:

"Personally, I never buy anything that's advertised if I can help it, for after I get it, I generally feel I have been taken in."

To which the lady replied:

"I think it is women who are more often taken in by 'the firecrackers' of advertising than men."

Even as far back as when George W. Childs began the publication of the Ledger, advertising was looked upon unfavorably by large numbers of the citizens of Philadelphia, some of whom shrugged their shoulders when they read and discussed our small, daily, straight-from-the-shoulder advertisements.

The records of sixty years' constant presentations of what we are doing are matters of history, and these two great buildings, where we are housed, are one of the results of the methods we have employed.

Our words in our advertisements are the same as our bond, errors always excepted. There are counterfeits though, as we all know, of even the bank notes of National Banks of the United States.

(Signed)

John Wanamaker

COOLIDGE OUTLINES CONTRACTORS' PATH

Warns Them Against Practices That Tend Toward Exorbitant Prices.

ALSO HITS "CONSPIRACIES"

He Urges Washington Convention to Study Plans for All-Year Employment.

SEES ECONOMIES IN IT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—President Coolidge told the Associated General Contractors of America, in convention here, today that trade associations could accomplish much good by helping put into effect, as far as possible, plans suggested in the report of the conference recently held with Secretary Hoover for providing employment in periods of stagnation. He said the Government could do much in this regard with public works, such as buildings, highways, public utilities and the like.

The President warned against practices that tend toward exorbitant prices and conspiracies against the public.

Mr. Coolidge received the contractors in the East Room of the White House at noon. His speech was as follows:

There are certain particular reasons why I have been glad to avail myself of the opportunity afforded by your presence here today to make some remarks to the members of this association. The importance of construction among the country's industries hardly needs any testimony. A recent analysis reached the conclusion that the national income in 1924 was $53,000,000,000, of which approximately $6,000,000,000 was expended for construction—that is, more than 11 per cent. of the income. Constructions of one kind and another largely represent the accumulated wealth of a community, and it is therefore important that they be erected at the lowest feasible expense consistent with a high standard of permanence and usefulness.

During the war, owing to more instant demands upon producing capacity, construction was neglected, and an enormous construction deficit resulted. The necessity of restoring the balance was realized when peace returned, and we have had an era of high construction activity in recent years.

Construction as a Balance Wheel.

At the unemployment conference called by President Harding, and held here in Washington in 1921, the importance of construction as a balance wheel in the industrial scheme was strongly emphasized. The suggestion, of course, was not new. The idea of utilizing construction, particularly of public works, as a stabilizing factor in the business and employment situation has long been a counsel of perfection among students of these problems.

If in periods of great business activity the work of construction might be somewhat relaxed, and if in periods of business depression and slack employment these works might be expanded to provide occupation for workers otherwise idle, the result would be a stabilization and equalization which would moderate the alternations of employment and unemployment. This in turn would tend to favorable modification of the economic cycle. It is something to be greatly desired, but its accomplishment is attended by much difficulty.

As a practical proposition it is not easy to convince a man whose factory is idle or running on part time that he ought to construct an addition to it because at some future time it will be needed, or easy to recognize good times until they are passed. Also, if Government withdraws from the market others are likely to follow. Nevertheless, the first and easiest application of such a regulation is in connection with public works; the construction program which involves public buildings, highways, public utilities and the like.

Most forms of Government construction could be handled in conformity to such a policy, once it was definitely established. Certainly in time of depression the Government can start building. This applies not only to the construction activities of the Federal Government but to those of States, counties and cities.

Important Economies Possible.

More than this, the economies possible under such a plan are apparent. When everybody wants to do the same thing at the same time it becomes unduly expensive. Every element of costs, in every direction, tends to expand. These conditions reverse themselves in times of slack employment and subnormal activity, with the result that important economies are possible.

I am convinced that if the governmental units would generally adopt such a policy and if, having adopted it, they would give the fullest publicity to the resultant savings, the showing would have a compelling influence upon business generally. Quasi-public utilities and the great corporations whose requirements can be quite accurately anticipated and charted would be impressed that their interest could be served by a like procedure.

The tendency at present times is undoubtedly toward conservatism in turning out articles intended for current consumption. The merchandising community is chary of laying in great stocks against a future market because of the many uncertainties that still remain as a heritage from the war period. It is true that these uncertainties are far less acute in our country than in most others; but their existence in other parts of the world inevitably has a certain effect here.

On the whole, then, our search for a factor of balance and stabilization brings us back to this business of construction which is represented here today.

It is found by those governmental agencies which maintain touch with these matters that notable progress has been made in efforts to lessen the seasonal element in employment for the construction industries. They report that employment is better spread through the year than ever before and that in the last two or three years the proportion of wintertime employment has been considerably increased. This is entirely to the good, although much remains to be desired in this regard.

Some Possibilities of Usefulness.

Organizations such as your own represent possibilities of much good usefulness in dealing with all these problems. To the extent that they are devoted to such useful ends, they are entitled to all encouragement. In the construction industries the movements to develop uniform contract forms promise much as an assurance of fair treatment to all competitors and securing the best work. It is always recognized, of course, that such organizations may be made the means of an undesirable limitation of competition and to the unjustifiable increase of profits.

If trade associations could be so conducted that the public might be assured of all their potential advantages and at the same time safeguarded against the disadvantages incident to restricted competition and the exaction of too liberal profits they could render a large service to the community and would be assured of a corresponding measure of confidence and support. A very wise man, Adam Smith, writing some century and a half ago, made an observation which suggests how uniform are the processes of human nature through the generations. He said:

"People of the same trade seldom meet together, even for a merriment and diversion, but the conversation ends in a conspiracy against the public, or in some contrivance to raise prices."

We have had a good deal of evidence in our own time that this dictum of the wise old Scotchman is quite as applicable in one generation as in another. It is this trait of human nature which has in more recent years compelled society to adopt regulative measures to protect itself. I am sure we can all agree that organizations of this kind will command the greater public confidence, and be the more capable of lasting usefulness, if they recognize the danger of falling into such practices.

There is ample opportunity for good and useful results through organization without overstepping the boundaries of public interest, honest competition and fair dealing. To such a program every trade association may well be recommended. By punctilious observance of such aims and limitations, they will best serve themselves and win the commendation of the community.

Later in the day Secretary Hoover addressed the contractors in convention, declaring his opposition to construction work by the Government without the services of contractors.

"My own belief as an engineer is that construction of public works by contracts, makes for national accomplishment, Mr. Hoover remarked.

In discussing a general code to adopt a code of ethics as between contractors and their clients, Leonard A. Mason of Boston declared his belief that wages in the building construction industry would not change in the next few months.

LUTHER MAKES GAIN IN CABINET QUEST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Finance Minister Luther's week-end attempt to form a new Government had led late tonight to no final result, despite an entire day and evening of political backing and filling.

He had, however, succeeded in breaking down the Centrist opposition to his plan to such an extent that the Centrists looked with favor on his idea of forming a Cabinet with a pronounced leaning to the Right—a tendency which a few days ago the Centrists insisted they would not sanction—and it is thought tonight that Foreign Minister Stresemann's endeavors not only to get the Nationalists into the Government but to make them the predominant influence therein are in a fair way to succeed.

Following his first failure Dr. Luther set out to form a Cabinet with one Minister each from the Centrist Party, People's Party and Nationalists, the other portfolios to be given to experts in the respective Government departments standing close to the aforesaid parties. The Centrists at first opposed this idea, but this evening their opposition seemed to have been overcome. The Centrists acquiesced in the retention of the Ministry of Labor by the Centrist Dr. Brauns and made the condition that Herr Gessler should continue as War Minister. Herr Gessler is not officially a member of the Democratic Party, but practically belongs thereto.

The Centrists asked Dr. Luther several searching questions, among them what foreign policy he contemplated; whether the members of the parties of the Right, whom he had in mind as possible government timber, would uphold the German Republican Constitution and whether they would respect the Republican flag.

At first Herr Luther's answer did not satisfy the Centrists. Later, however, he seemingly satisfied them and performed the difficult feat of persuading the Centrists that his Nationalist friends who had campaigned violently against the Dawes plan would henceforth honestly try to assure its success.

STRIKES AT EBERT JUDGE.

Democrat in Prussian Diet Bases Interpellation on Jurist's Words.

MAGDEBURG, Germany, Jan. 12.—Judge Bewersdorf, who drafted the decision in President Ebert's recent suit for libel against Editor Rothardt, has been made the subject of a formal interpellation in the Prussian Diet by a Democratic Deputy. The Judge's decision against the editor also found that Ebert had urged the munition workers to hold out during a 1918 strike, and hence "had committed high treason."

The Deputy in the Diet alleges that he has evidence that Judge Bewersdorf previously had declared:

"Ludendorff is the only suitable man to be President of Germany; that harnessmaker's apprentice [Ebert] must disappear from his position in the Government."

The present interpellation demands the Government's reply as to whether the Prussian Ministry of Justice was acquainted with Judge Bewersdorf's alleged political sentiments. The court's ruling that President Ebert had been guilty of treason continues to be exploited liberally by the Nationalist organs in an attempt to effect his removal or dispose of him as a candidate for re-election next May.

Promise to Mother Keeps Man in Europe 48 Years

Leib Kolko, 55 years old, of Lomza, Poland, promised his mother forty-eight years ago that he would never leave her to come to America. He kept his promise. She died two years ago. On Sunday Kolko arrived here on the steamship Cleveland and for the first time in forty-eight years he saw his six sisters who were brought to this country as children.

The occasion was also a happy reunion for Kolko's five daughters and his son, for they left Poland twenty years ago and came to this country.

There was a reunion yesterday of 250 relatives and near-relatives of Kolko at 548 Bedford Avenue. Just before the war Kolko left his wife and mother in Poland and went to Germany to seek work. The war separated them, and they were reunited through the instrumentality of a relative in the German army. The American Red Cross located Kolko in Germany for his children, who had not heard from him during the conflict.

MUSSOLINI AIMS BLOW AT MASONRY

CHAMBER SESSION IS QUIET

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 12.—The reopening of the Chamber today after the fever of excitement into which parliamentary circles had been cast by speculation as to whether the Aventine Opposition Deputies would continue their boycott or again participate in the sittings was an anti-climax. There was no trace of the Aventine Deputies and the sitting was suspended after a generally listless session of only an hour.

Premier Mussolini was in the Chamber for only about ten minutes altogether. One point of interest was his reply to the Fascist Deputy Maffei, who asked whether the Government was aware of the activities of General Peppino Garibaldi, who was involved in the shooting that took place during the Armistice Day celebrations in Rome. Deputy Maffei declared that General Garibaldi is reported to be in Nice, organizing Italian Communists for eventual action against the Fascist Government.

Mussolini's reply was quite brief.

"Deputy Maffei," he said, "can rest in peace, as the Government is fully aware of the attempts to which he refers. Up to the present, however, there is nothing to cause any anxiety. If these machinations should ever pass from theoretical to practical ground, the Government would be quite ready to face any situation."

Prison Terms Await Communists.

The Under Secretary of State for Internal Affairs then answered another question by Deputy Maffei, who asked for information as to what steps the Government had taken against the Italian Communists who were expelled from France for organizing armed bands. Deputy Maffei recalled that one of these Communists had been sentenced to a long term of imprisonment by an Italian court for arson.

The Under Secretary replied that all of the Italian Communists expelled from France had been arrested at the frontier and that they would be detained by the police until their identity had been completely established. Then all of those who have old accounts to settle with Italian justice will be kept in prison.

Of far greater interest than the formal opening of the Chamber was the council of ministers held this morning. The Cabinet unanimously decided to submit to Parliament a bill making it obligatory for all associations, societies and institutions in the Kingdom of Italy to submit to the police authorities their by-laws and other internal regulations and a list of their officers and members. This bill, in other words, makes all secret societies and organizations illegal, and is thought to be aimed especially against Freemasonry, which in Italy, has been waging a bitter war against Fascism.

To Revise the Penal Code.

The Council of Ministers also decided to submit to Parliament a bill conferring upon the Government the right to introduce certain changes in the penal and the civil codes, in penal procedure and in the law on public safety which regulates the activities of the police. Although it is not yet known exactly what the changes are that the Government has in mind, it is believed that it intends to confer much more power on the police authorities and to increase materially the penalties contemplated by that section of the penal code which refers to attempts against the safety of the State.

In addition to the law making secret societies and organizations illegal, which provides for penalties and imprisonment varying from three months to a year and fines of up to 30,000 lire for giving false information, Premier Mussolini also presented a bill to the Chamber prohibiting all employes of the Government or of the Provinces from belonging to any secret society or any organization which requires them to take an oath. Those newspapers which most accurately reflect the opinion of the Government frankly state that this measure also is intended to eradicate Freemasonry from Italian life.

The Government meanwhile shows no symptoms of relaxing its energy in applying measures which were used after Mussolini's last strong speech in the Chamber. Two of Rome's great newspapers which have not been molested in any way during the last few days were seized again today. The police also show the greatest activity in carrying out numerous raids daily on subversive elements. Today some thirty Communists who were discovered baptizing the red flag of one of their new sections which has just been inaugurated in Rome amidst streams of subversive oratory were all arrested. Similar raids are reported from many other points throughout Italy.

Text of the Anti-Masonry Bill.

ROME, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—Although the eagerly awaited session of the Chamber of Deputies proved a disappointment to crowds of sensation seekers who filled the galleries, the sitting today was not without importance in that it again revealed Mussolini in the characteristic rôle of aggressor. He presented a bill destined to deal a death-blow to Freemasonry in Italy.

Article 1—Associations, clubs and secret organizations active in the Kingdom must submit to the police their constitutions and by-laws, lists of officers and members and any information concerning their activities. This duty applies to all those having directive functions or representative functions in said organizations. Whoever violates these rules will be punished by imprisonment for not less than three months and a fine of from 2,000 to 6,000 lire. If the information given to the police proves to be false or incomplete, the penalty will be imprisonment for not less than one year and a fine of from 5,000 to 30,000 lire, besides interdiction from holding public office for five years.

Article 2—Officials, clerks and agents of any kind in the employment of the State, Provinces or Communes, or institutions responsible by law to the State, Provinces or Communes, cannot belong even as simple members to associations, clubs or organizations working in a secret way. Whoever disregards this ruling will be discharged from the service; those who belong to such organizations and are now serving under the State, Provinces or Communes must resign their membership.

Article 3—The present law will take effect from the moment of its publication in the official gazette.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The burning of the premises of a Catholic newspaper and other alleged Fascist excesses at Pisa, Italy, have drawn a violent protest from the clergy, according to a dispatch from Rome to The Daily Telegraph.

A manifesto signed by Cardinal Maffi has been issued, according to the dispatch, deploring the violence, especially the fact that it was directed against a Catholic newspaper which has always held aloof from partisan strife. The manifesto expresses the hope that the distressing disturbances will cease and that peace will return to the nation.

Three-Inch Snowfall Turns Into Rain While City Is Gathering Its Shovelmen

Rain that began late yesterday afternoon and continued through the evening relieved the anxieties of the snow removal bureau of the Street Cleaning Department. Early in the day the bureau officials feared a heavy snowfall might be at hand, to add to the remnants of last week's storm, not yet fully cleaned from the streets. Ten thousand extra shovelers were said by the bureau to be working on the streets yesterday after the emergency call went out at 6 A. M.

The Weather Bureau said at 10 o'clock last night that locally the rain would continue, and there would be no more snow. The forecast for the eastern part of New York State was rain in the south, snow or rain in the northern portion; Tuesday, slightly warmer; Wednesday fair, slightly colder, with fresh to strong east winds, shifting to southerly.

Several persons called up THE NEW YORK TIMES last evening to say they saw flashes of blue light in the sky somewhere over Central Park. Weather Bureau officials said they had not observed these lights and could offer no explanation for them.

Two deaths due to the storm were reported in New York City. About James Tracy of 21 East Seventh Street, a taxicab starter at the Imperial Theatre in West Forty-fifth Street, was killed when he fell from the slippery running board of a taxicab and suffered a fractured skull. Two deaths occurring the night before from storm conditions in New Jersey towns were reported yesterday.

The first flurry of snow struck the city shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning. By 10 o'clock two or three inches had fallen. Early forecasts promised a continuance of the snow through the day and night and emergency calls were sent out for extra shovelers. Early in the morning the Interborough shortened its trains to allow more frequent operation to keep the tracks clear. The B. M. T. ran empty trains for the same purpose.

One car of a Ninth Avenue elevated train which was being run without passengers to help keep the line open, caught fire about 10 o'clock last night from a short-circuit. A pedestrian at Fifty-first Street, where the train had stopped, turned in a fire alarm and engines put out the fire with sand and water. The train proceeded.

The storm was swept by northeast winds that at times reached the force of a gale. Staten Island ferries were delayed.

MANILA DESTROYERS HURRY TO SHANGHAI

CHI PLANS CITY'S DEFENSE

Will Send Troops North to Check Lu's Expected Advance From Nanking.

MANILA, Jan. 13 (Associated Press).—The destroyers Tracy, Smith Thompson and John D. Edwards of the Asiatic Fleet left for Shanghai today as a result of the fighting reported there between rival Chinese factions.

Other warships are under orders to proceed to the Chinese port in the event of their services being required there.

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12.—The Shanghai district today experienced greater disorder as a result of the present factional fighting than the city went through during the whole forty days of hostilities which began in September, largely because the foreign forces here were caught entirely unawares by the outbreak yesterday.

For several hours, from the time in the morning when the crowds were going to church until 2 at night, bullets fell freely among the foreign houses in the French concession. The Shanghai American School, with several hundred pupils, was struck by stray bullets. The house of C. L. Boynton, the Principal, formerly of Los Angeles, was in the direct line of fire and his young son, who was playing in the yard, had a narrow escape.

Hanyang College, a Chinese school with an American Faculty, was struck by bullets and the pupils were forced to flee inside the settlement for safety. The Siccawei Institute, a French Catholic school, also were forced to do so for protection again firing and looters.

Tonight, although the worst fighting is over, the entire Chinese area is given over to looters. Barricades have been erected across the streets, which are guarded by foreign volunteers. The streets are jammed with refugees, while the defeated soldiers are trying to get into the two foreign settlements.

Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan, who organized the coup, tonight said he will advance north along the Shanghai-Nanking Railway to prevent an advance by General Lu Yung-hsiang from Nanking. Serious looting and disorder also is reported from Soochow and the towns along the railway and canal portation along the railway and canal has been stopped.

FOG TIES UP PARIS; LONDON ALSO SUFFERS

Many Traffic Collisions and Other Accidents Result, but No Fatalities Are Reported.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Three rear-end train collisions occurred in the Paris railroad yards this morning during one of the heaviest fogs France has ever experienced, extending in a broad strip from Calais to Pau, with Paris included in the wide territory covered. Nine persons were slightly hurt in one of the collisions.

In the streets of Paris traffic proceeded all morning at a crawl, with many jams. Toward noon the visibility range increased somewhat.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—The worst fog in many years smothered London and its suburbs yesterday, causing several street accidents and some deaths. Traffic was scanty and difficult. Early in the day it stopped almost entirely, and later scores of omnibuses, unable to reach their garages, parked along the curbs.

There were numerous collisions between buses in which passengers were injured. One omnibus was overturned, while others and several private cars ran upon the sidewalks or collided in the streets. The tram service also suffered, and several fires were reported through sparks engendered by sudden application of the brakes. All, however, were extinguished.

The only effective means of transit was by way of the subways, which were congested. Crossing of streets by pedestrians was extremely perilous. The fog in some places was impenetrable for more than two yards and lamps or flares were of little use. Railroad traffic entering the city was greatly delayed.

TAKE ROME COMMUNISTS CHRISTENING RED FLAG

Legend on the Soviet Emblem Said: 'Although Struck by Lightning, the Future Is Ours.'

ROME, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—The police today surprised and arrested thirty-three Communists who, after incendiary speeches, were christening and decorating a red flag with the Soviet emblem of the Hammer and Sickle. The Communists had gathered in an old garage in the outskirts of Rome, placing sentinels around the building.

The meeting reached its climax when the wife of one of the Communists, Maria Piccioni, presented with champagne bottle in one hand and flowers in the other, was about to christen the flag, which bore the inscription:

"Although struck by lightning, the future is ours."

At this moment a police official, followed by a squad of detectives carrying revolvers in hand, jumped into the garage, shouting:

"Hands up—in the name of the law. You are all under arrest."

Signora Piccioni dropped the bouquet and the bottle of wine, which was shattered on the floor. The policemen seized the flag and handcuffed all persons present. The prisoners were taken in motor trucks first to the Central Police Station and then to the Regina Coeli Prison. Of those taken into custody eleven were women.

SADOUL SAYS SOVIET SOUGHT TO PUSH WAR

THIS IS BASIS OF DEFENSE

French Captain Argues That It Disproves the Charge That He Deserted to "the Enemy."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ORLEANS, Jan. 12.—The first session of the retrial of Captain Jacques Sadoul, ex-French army officer, who was sentenced to death in 1919 for deserting to the Bolsheviki while a member of the French military mission to Russia, produced sensational declarations by Captain Sadoul today. He charged M. Clemenceau with being responsible when Premier for the signing of the Brest-Litovsk treaty by refusing to heed the appeal made to him by the Bolsheviki to aid them in resuming military operations against Germany.

"It is fantastic to realize that it is yet unknown," he said, "that after they came into power Lenin and Trotsky never ceased to appeal to France for military support that would enable them to resume the war against Germany."

Captain Sadoul declared that Lenin, foreseeing the impossibility of not signing the Brest-Litovsk treaty, sought through him to ascertain whether the French military mission would not take charge of the Russian army and launch it into action. According to Sadoul, M. Noulens, at that time French Ambassador to Russia, believing the Bolsheviki could not stay in power, flatly refused to assist them as they demanded the Brest-Litovsk treaty had to be signed.

"It is M. Clemenceau who was responsible for the Brest-Litovsk peace and the death of several hundred thousands of our soldiers," declared Captain Sadoul. The return of Captain Sadoul to France and his retrial on a charge of desertion are accompanied by intense repercussion in French public opinion, resulting in a controversy which rages over Captain Sadoul's good faith. The sentiment of the country largely regards him as nothing but the instrument of Bolshevist propaganda, and the whole tenor of his declarations on the first day of the trial tends to confirm that conclusion. He and his supporters are determined to capitalize the dramatic possibilities of his trial as a means of developing anti-Nationalist agitation by throwing the onus of the Brest-Litovsk treaty onto M. Clemenceau."

By this particular line of attack Captain Sadoul lays the technical basis of his own defense against the charge of desertion, for in establishing that Bolsheviki were trying to resume the war against Germany he proposes to nullify the charge that he deserted to "the enemy," the political police till the last day of the old régime. This process not only astonishes one with the extraordinary length of the time of the activities of a person condemned to death but also his own amazing personality.

A semi-literate peasant, Okladsky rose to become a companion in arms with the late Prince Kropotkin and all the other famous Anarchists with whom he took trial for his attempts to kill the Czar, he made a speech to the Czarist Judges, saying:

"I do not ask and I do not need your leniency. On the contrary, if you show me mercy, I shall regard this as a personal insult."

His sentence to death was commuted almost immediately. A year later he was elevated from the peasantry to personal nobility and afterward to the rank of hereditary nobleman. He drew from the political police the highest salary paid for an ordinary official, managing to get his last payment on the very eve of the revolution of 1917, thus living a double life for almost forty years.

Such a transformation under sentence of death could be well understood, even if his story of fortune were not believed, and his extraordinary will power and strong character are acknowledged.

It is unvertain whether Okladsky will be executed, although he may be formmally condemned to death. It is believed that after his trial he will get an opportunity to write his reminiscences in order to supplement the revolutionary history of Russia.

GERMAN TARIFF WALL UP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—All attempts by M. Raynaldy, the French Minister of Commerce, to come to a belated agreement with the German delegation for a commercial modus vivendi pending the establishment of a treaty of commerce broke down today.

That they would break down was expected, though on Saturday both parties agreed to withhold all news until today's last attempt had been made. Herr Trendelenberg was summoned to Berlin and returned more intransigeant than ever.

The French say that from the start they have been trying to meet the German demands and frame a project which would be acceptable. It is their belief that the Germans intend a tariff war, and precede possibly even against the Saare. The German agriculturists have been most active in their refusal to grant any concessions to the French wine growers, but on practically every point in the negotiations it has been impossible for the French to obtain any satisfactory arrangement for the entry of their products into Germany.

Alsace-Lorraine and the Saare will be particularly injured by the application, which began yesterday, of maximum tariffs on their goods. On Saturday, before the end of the old Versailles Treaty, 25,000,000 francs worth of merchandise was shipped through Strasbourg eastward. The Lorraine iron ore producers will find great difficulty in getting rid of their product and the situation in the east of France generally is likely to suffer seriously.

SAYS TORTURE FORCED ACT

Three Generations of Rebels Gaze Upon Okladsky, Who Served Czarist Police Till 1917.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—The most gruesome pages of early revolutionary history, especially the terroristic activities against Czar Alexander II. and his régime, are being unfolded at the trial of Ivan Okladsky, himself a revolutionary in the '80s, who afterward turned traitor, remaining in the service of the Czarist political police for more than thirty-seven years.

The Red tribunal is convened in the largest and finest assembly chamber in Moscow, the ancient Hall of Nobles, where Lenin's body lay in state. The glittering light from the numerous royal chandeliers falls upon an audience of thousands in which are represented three generations of uncompromising rebels.

Some of them have come to this extraordinary trial to live again in their old age the thrilling experiences of their youths; others to seek inspiration from the story of the heroic deeds of their forerunners, whom they learned to admire from Revolutionary books.

The big stage of this marble hall was hurriedly turned into a court platform. Seated at the tables covered with red cloth there is only one judge and two jurymen, all members of the Communist Party but none of whom ever studied law. On one side of them is Krylenko, the shrewd State Prosecutor, and on the other defense counsel.

Prisoner Objects to Prominence.

But all eyes are turned on the accused. Okladsky is a short and rather stout man of 65, with long gray whiskers. He stands motionless, poorly dressed in an old leather coat and peasant boots, wondering why he is being subjected to such prominence.

"I am not a great man," he said to his counsel when he was brought into the hall and lights were turned upon him for filming. "Why such a parade of glittering lights? I won't be filmed!"

When the Judge asked him whether he admits his guilt in being instrumental in the liquidation of the entire revolutionary organization which had the effect of postponing the liberation of the whole nation from the hands of the monarchical dynasty, he replied, acknowledging his guilt only in part, saying that the authorities credit him with too great honor by attributing to him such powers.

Step by step he related how he manufactured dynamite bombs for the assassination of Alexander II. He told the court of all his attempts to kill the Czar, how he mined the Winter Palace in 1875, the railway track at Alexanderovsk in 1879 when the Czar was traveling from the Crimea, and one bridge in Petrograd in 1880. These attempts were futile.

He said he did not participate in the actual assassination of the Czar, who was arrested prior to that date. He told how he was tried, sentenced to death and, under the inhuman torture to which he was subjected while awaiting execution, consented to betray several addresses where the plotters made their abode in Petrograd.

Three Hours to Read Indictment.

For more than three hours the Court Secretary read the indictment amid breathless silence.

The prosecution is anxious to ascertain whether Okladsky did not turn traitor long before his arrest in 1881 and attempts are being made to explain the failures of his earlier attempts to assassinate the Czar by the fact that Okladsky figured in all of them as the principal executor.

An effort is also being made to trace Okladsky's activities during the long period of his service with the political police till the last day of the old régime. This process not only astonishes one with the extraordinary length of the time of the activities of a person condemned to death but also his own amazing personality.

A semi-literate peasant, Okladsky rose to become a companion in arms with the late Prince Kropotkin and all the other famous Anarchists with whom he took trial for his attempts to kill the Czar, he made a speech to the Czarist Judges, saying:

"I do not ask and I do not need your leniency. On the contrary, if you show me mercy, I shall regard this as a personal insult."

His sentence to death was commuted almost immediately. A year later he was elevated from the peasantry to personal nobility and afterward to the rank of hereditary nobleman. He drew from the political police the highest salary paid for an ordinary official, managing to get his last payment on the very eve of the revolution of 1917, thus living a double life for almost forty years.

Such a transformation under sentence of death could be well understood, even if his story of fortune were not believed, and his extraordinary will power and strong character are acknowledged.

It is unvertain whether Okladsky will be executed, although he may be formmally condemned to death. It is believed that after his trial he will get an opportunity to write his reminiscences in order to supplement the revolutionary history of Russia.

RIGA, Jan. 12.—After a week of deliberation the conference held in Moscow for the purpose of planning the reconstruction of the Soviet provincial organization, which assumed the character of a sort of peasant parliament consisting of fifty-six rural members, has closed after passing a resolution to the effect that in order to strengthen the hold of revolutionary law and order among the peasantry it is necessary to issue instructions for elections to rural Soviets.

These instructions, the resolution explains, must be such as to allow the election not only of candidates on the list proposed by the Communists, but also of individuals outside the list, if proposed by the peasants, provided always that such candidates do not clash with the Soviet Government's general policy.

SIFT LAW COVERING 15-CENT TAXI RATE

ALBANY DECISION IS CITED

The legal departments of transit and taxicab companies are making exhaustive studies of the Transportation Corporations law to determine whether taxicabs in New York City are violating the law by operating on a 15-cent initial rate. The legal experts have arrived at no definite conclusion.

Another important development affecting the taxicabs came yesterday when the Local Laws Committee of the Municipal Assembly reported favorably on the proposed transfer of jurisdiction over taxicabs to the Police Department.

The taxicab and subway interests began a study of the Transportation Corporations law after Controller Charles L. Craig pointed out last Friday the possible application of Section 26 of that statute to taxicabs operating on the 15-cent rate, according to Harry Weiss, head of the Mogul-Checkers Cab Company and Vice President of the Empire State Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Albany Decision Cited.

The statute in substance provides that motor vehicles operating on a fare of 15 cents or less in competition with traction companies must first get the consent of the local authorities and comply with other requirements. The provision fixes no penalty for its violation. But the penal law says that violation of a statute having no provision for punishment constitutes a misdemeanor, and the penal law further provides that a misdemeanor is punishable by a year's imprisonment or a $500 fine, or both.

The United Traction Company of Albany invoked the statute successfully in an injunction suit against John Smith, a bus operator who started a line out of Albany in the course of a trolley strike in 1921. He charged passengers 20 cents each, so did not come within the 15-cent rate provision. But Supreme Court Justice Hinman, in granting the application for a temporary injunction, held that Smith had violated other provisions of Section 26, Transportation Corporations law.

Justice Hinman further ruled that while Smith operated only one motor vehicle with a capacity of six passengers, Smith nevertheless operated a motor bus line or route within the meaning of the law. Justice Hinman later granted a writ of mandamus against Mayor Watt of Albany to compel the Mayor to enforce the provisions of the Transportation Act as applied at the time of the strike.

Objects to Change in Rates.

Frank Hedley, President and General Manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, admitted yesterday that the legal department of that corporation was studying the law. Mr. Weiss said the experts of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce also were studying the law.

"This was all news to me," said Mr. Weiss, "until Controller Craig called attention to the provision at the meeting before the Board of Estimate last Friday. We are looking it up, but as yet we haven't had any definite opinion from our counsel. If the provision applies to us it might mean that taxicabs would be under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission if they operated on a rate of 15 cents or less.

"No reputable taxicab operator will object to being under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission. We object to changing our rates. More than ever we are convinced that the new 15-cent rate is equitable to the public concerned, and that if taxicab companies operate properly they can operate also profitably and make regular declaration of dividends."

Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson said that Section 26 of the Transportation Corporations law had not been referred to him for interpretation.

TO PAY IN GOLD JULY 1.

South African Government Will Resume Specie Payments.

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, Jan. 12.—As an outcome of recommendations made by Dr. G. Vissering, President of the Netherlands Bank of Amsterdam, and Professor E. W. Kemmerer of Princeton University, the Government has decided to resume gold payments.

The two commissioners recommended a resumption of gold payments on July 1, and, with a view to assisting in the restoration of the gold standard and its maintenance when restored, they have recommended that the South African Reserve Bank henceforth should operate in the open market more actively than hitherto.

Accordingly, the Government has decided that it will not introduce legislation postponing resumption of gold payments beyond June 30, and specie payments will be resumed on July 1, or at such earlier date as may be necessary under the existing legislation.

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—The dispute over Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb has now been settled amicably, it is reported, and an agreement between the Egyptian Government and Howard Carter is to be signed tomorrow.

The settlement, which is due to a more reasonable attitude shown by the Egyptian authorities, it is said, satisfactorily meets all the desires of both sides. According to the latest information, Mr. Carter is going to Luxor almost immediately to reopen the tomb and to resume work.

TOWN HALL BURNS $800,000 MORTGAGES

3,000 HELPED TO PAY

Inception of the Institution by League of Political Education Is Retold.

PRAISES MRS. W. H. BLISS

Robert Erskine Ely Declares She Conceived Idea and Inspired Its Execution.

Mortgages for $800,000 on the Town Hall were burned on the stage of the auditorium yesterday morning while 1,500 men and women applauded.

Papers representing the $500,000 first mortgage and the second mortgage of $300,000 were placed in a large brass censer by Robert E. Simon, Chairman of the Building Committee, who recited the sacrifices that had gone into the work of building the Town Hall. A match was then applied.

Donations came from 3,000 men and women in all walks of life, said Mr. Simon, and ranged in amount from 50 cents to one anonymous gift of $500,000. The destruction of the mortgages leaves the Town Hall unencumbered with the exception of a small floating debt in connection with the completion of the two upper floors.

The celebration fell upon the fourth anniversary of the building. Mr. Simon and Robert Erskine Ely paid a tribute to the zeal of Mrs. William H. Bliss, Mrs. Eleanor Britten Saunders, Christine Munger, Evelyn Sheldon, Mary Cleveland and others who were interested in having a home for the League for Political Education.

Tells of Its Inception.

Mr. Ely said: "It is not generally known how the Town Hall came into being. One morning over twelve years ago at the close of a lecture of the League for Political Education in the little Berkeley Theatre, which formerly stood on Forty-fourth Street, a lady, one of our members, said to your director: 'This is not a good place for our lectures. Why should the league not have a hall of its own some day? I would like to help a little more toward that end.' She did, the next day, and this was the foundation stone of the Town Hall. During the years which followed this lady was our good angel. She not only gave the first definite suggestion for this building but took the first step toward carrying it out, but she had faith it would be accomplished. There served little to justify this faith in the size and strength of our organization, and that was what made her foresight so fine. She believed in us when at times we found it difficult to believe in ourselves.

"But in spite of every failure we have progress toward the goal until just four years ago today this hall was opened, but there rested upon it an almost crushing burden of debt, $1,000,000 and even more, and for the next two years it were still unfinished. This day, after four years, the mortgage indebtedness is extinguished and the upper part of the building is finished.

Tribute to Mrs. Bliss.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Generally Advance in Active Trading—Another Two-Million-Share Day.

The outstanding characteristic of practically all markets yesterday was their firmness and ability to advance under the usual amount of profit-taking which crops up at the first of each week. On the Stock Exchange another two-million-share day was established, the twentieth in the series of big market days since the election. In the commodities, too, trading was on a large scale and most of them were able to close the day with net advances. Probably the most significant development of the day was the entire absence of anything which might be termed nervousness or apprehension in any of the markets. Many times during the past two months Monday has been selected as "reaction day," on which sales for profit-taking purposes outweighed the new buying orders which have come in. Yesterday, however, the buying orders, not only in stocks but in commodities as well, appeared to more than balance the orders to sell. As a result firmness was the feature of most markets and prices generally closed the day with comfortable advances.

On the Stock Exchange there was, in fact, very vigorous buying of a few selected stocks, mainly securities which had been selected by banking interests for favorable market attention. These included one of the well-known motor companies, an oil stock, two or three of the specialty issues, three or four railroad securities and one of the coppers. These favored issues were advanced in bold fashion and led the way for the entire market, which followed more or less meekly. Probably the most significant development in the day's trading was that so few stocks were for sale and that orders for moderate blocks of stock had the effect of advancing prices two or three points. The over-Sunday news had been flavored by the particularly constructive statement of the United States Steel Corporation, issued on Saturday afternoon, showing the largest monthly increase in tonnage in approximately five years. Outside of this development, the market had little to work on. Such movements as appeared, therefore, were of Wall Street origin rather than the result of outside buying of stocks, which has accounted for many of the "Monday markets" of the last few weeks.

In other directions the news was hardly of a kind to attract either buying or selling. The rapid rise in sterling exchange during the last month naturally drew attention to the British foreign trade statement for the last month of 1924, issued yesterday. Exports from Great Britain rose £1,200,000, as compared with the previous month, while imports increased £13,300,000. The net result was that the country had an unfavorable trade balance of £50,250,000, as against £38,270,000 in November and £34,678,000 a year ago. It is difficult to reconcile these figures with the rapid advance which has taken place in sterling during the last month. Possibly, the "invisible balance" would give some clue to the enigma. At any rate, it may be said that the actual trade figures evidently are cutting but a small figure in the calculations of those who anticipate "par for sterling" during 1925.

In summing up the day's markets, it may be said that the buyers were in control and possibly had most to say about prices. In almost every direction at the present time it is a "buyer's market" and quotations are regulated accordingly. This has been apparent not alone in the stock market but in the commodities and in the foreign exchanges, as well. Just how long this situation will exist is, of course, problematical.

ACTION IS DELAYED ON SUGAR COMBINE

MINORITY FIGHTING HARD

Committee Cites Stone's Letter as Argument Against the Consolidation.

The meeting of stockholders of the National Sugar Refining Company, called for yesterday to approve the proposed sale of the company's properties and other assets to the American Sugar Refining Company, was postponed until Jan. 28. The adjournment was taken in order to give counsel of the American Company an opportunity to apply for modification of the United States District Court's decree of 1922 restraining the American from obtaining a controlling interest in the National property.

Under the terms of the option held by the American Sugar Refining Company, which expires March 31, the company agreed to pay $16,500,000 in cash for the National properties. American Sugar, however, already owns about 25 per cent. of the National stock, so that the actual cash transfer would amount to only about $12,000,000. The Proxy Committee of the National Sugar Company already has in hand proxies covering about 80 per cent. of the outstanding capital stock, while only a two-thirds vote of the stockholders is necessary to ratify the deal.

The committee representing the minority Stockholders Protective Committee, Refining Company, however, intends to oppose the proposed consolidation to the very end. Harold G. Aron, counsel for the stockholders' protective committee, of which De Witt Clinton Noyes of Tefft, Halsey & Co. is Chairman, has sent another letter to stockholders which says in part:

"This committee desires to call the attention of the stockholders to the letter of Harlan F. Stone, Attorney General of the United States, recently appearing in the press, in which he states that the Attorney General's office has decided to withhold its consent to a modification of the decree of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York entered against the American Sugar Refining Company in 1922, which would have permitted the acquisition by the American Sugar Refining Company of the property and assets of your company. This statement was made by the Attorney General after a full investigation and after a formal hearing when counsel for the American Sugar Refining Company presented arguments for a modification of the decree, and counsel for this committee opposed such modification.

"In the event that an application is made by the American Sugar Refining Company to the United States District Court for a modification of the decree, this committee believes the Attorney General will continue actively his opposition to this application. The committee proposes to petition the court for permission to intervene, and if its request is granted will oppose the application as vigorously in the courts as it has done before the Attorney General."

After pointing out that the committee will represent the minority stockholders at all meetings, and adjourned meetings of National Sugar Refining Company stockholders, Mr. Aron further says: "We feel that the decision of the Attorney General should be a source of satisfaction to the many stockholders who have cooperated with this committee in its efforts to preserve the integrity of the National Sugar Refining Company and to conserve its assets for the stockholders."

CHASE NATIONAL BUYS 3 FOREIGN BRANCHES

The Chase National Bank has purchased from the American Foreign Banking Corporation its banks and banking business in Havana, Panama and Cristobal. The corporation's deposit banking business in New York also passed to the Chase institution.

According to A. H. Wiggin, Chairman of the Chase National Bank, the New York institution considered the acquisition advisable because of the volume of American commerce being done in the cities involved. He said also that it marked the first time that the Chase National Bank had ever operated branches outside of New York City. As for the purchase price, he said that it was not large or important enough to mention.

The significant feature of the acquisition, according to other bankers, lay in the fact that the Chase National Bank, like the National City Bank and a number of other large New York institutions, is broadening its banking service. This, according to the bankers, is in anticipation of a new era in American commerce. Not since 1919, when many banks were branching out into foreign countries, has there been so broad a trend in that direction as at present.

Staffs of officers and employes which have heretofore represented the American Foreign Banking Corporation will have charge of the same offices under Chase National Bank control.

BONDS FOR SAARBRUECKEN.

Issue Soon to Be Offered Here is for Improvements.

Marshall Forrest of Ames, Emerich & Co. said yesterday that the proceeds of the new $3,000,000 Saarbruecken loan soon to be offered by that firm would be used for improvements. These, he said, would consist of "expansions of utility and harbor facilities necessitated by the rapid industrial developments of the territory due to its unusual political stability and the fact that taxation is much lower here than in either France or Germany."

Leading industrial companies in the City of Saarbruecken, he said, are owned jointly by French and German interests. The new loan will be in the form of 7 per cent. bonds maturing in ten years. The syndicate will be headed by Ames Emerich & Co. and Strupp & Co.

ESTIMATES RAIL EARNINGS.

William H. Williams Discusses Wabash and Missouri Pacific.

While the figures on the earnings of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and the Wabash Railway for 1924 are not complete, William H. Williams, Chairman of the Board of Directors of both properties, made estimates of their earnings yesterday.

He figured that the Missouri Pacific would earn about $9 a share on its preferred stock. At the same time he estimated that the earnings on the Wabash property would be within $100,000 of the 1923 figures, which would make them between $7.75 and $9 a share on the preferred A stock.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL BUYS ELECTRICITY

As a sequel to the announcement by the Illinois Central of plans to electrify the lines entering the Chicago Terminal District, the railroad has contracted with the Commonwealth Edison Company of that city for its power supply. The contract is for an initial term of ten years, commencing Jan. 1, 1927, or earlier if necessary, and provision is made in the agreement, which is reported in the current issue of The Electric Railway Journal, for four contract extension periods of five years each.

The estimated power load calls for an initial capacity of 40,500 kilowatts. This will be converted in seven sub-stations owned and operated by the power company, to be constructed upon property owned or leased by it, or on the right of way of the railroad. When a substation is located on the right of way a nominal rental will be charged the power company, providing that 80 per cent. of the sub-station's capacity is used for the railroad.

The Illinois Central is the first railroad to accept the proposal to electrify roads entering Chicago. Under the agreement the railroad is required to protect the power company from loss of its investment in sub-station apparatus for supplying direct current for traction service if the initial ten-year term is not extended for more than one five-year period.

Rates to be charged for power are on a sliding scale. The railroad is required to give at least twelve months' notice of any substantial increase in traffic necessitating additional equipment. It may get a reduction of rates if the power company supplies energy to another railroad at lower rates.

MARLAND OIL RUMORS.

Stock Advancing, Morgan Option Is Discussed.

In connection with the sharp advance in Marland Oil stock to 44 on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, reports were current that J. P. Morgan & Co. would soon exercise an option to take over 335,000 shares of the company's stock at $39 a share. The option, which expires on Feb. 10 next, costs the firm $1 a share. Inquiry brought the information from J. P. Morgan & Co. that the option had not yet been exercised and the partner questioned said that he could not say whether it would be taken up before the time limit.

Mariand is now selling at its highest price in more than a year. Many rumors were in circulation yesterday when the stock was advancing. These had it that a group of prominent Stock Exchange firms, including F. S. Smithers & Co. and Potter & Co., would take over the option held by J. P. Morgan & Co. These rumors were not confirmed.

Brokers Employ Copper Expert.

H. T. Carey & Co. announced yesterday the addition to their service of Arthur Notman, a copper mining engineer. The firm stated that it wished to obtain "expert advice on copper properties and their management and to avoid relying on distinctly Wall Street information, which has proved so often in the past to be colored by the point of view of those interests associated with a company's management."

OPPOSES PRICE LIMITATION.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—A tendency in some Government reports toward limitation of price range on exchanges was noted by Frank L. Carey, President of the Chicago Board of Trade, in a statement to the members at their annual meeting today. Such a movement would be unsound, he said.

"The intention may be good and undoubtedly only a phase of the Government's desire to help in the more orderly marketing of farm products," he explained. "But the fact remains that such a policy strikes at the very fundamentals of the exchange. For as is well known, without unlimited action, we would restrict the free operation of the law of supply and demand."

The McNary-Haugen bill will be referred to as "the most socialistic measure of recent years," and said that "the grain trade is to be congratulated upon its success in opposing this destructive legislation."

Total grain receipts for 1924, exclusive of flour, were 272,500,000 bushels, as against 294,315,000 bushels in 1923, with shipments of 167,141,000 in 1924 and 157,360,000 bushels in 1923.

Jewel Tea Company Report.

The Jewel Tea Company reports gross sales of $13,542,950 for 1924, an increase of $1,074,189 or 8.6 per cent. over 1923.

The Brooklyn City Railroad Company

(ISSUED UNDER PHILADELPHIA PLAN)

Dated January 15, 1925 — Due serially, as below

Bearer certificates in interchangeable denominations of $1,000 and $500 each with provision for registration of principal. Principal and warrants for semi-annual dividends payable January 15 and July 15 in New York City and at the office of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., in Chicago, without deduction for Federal Income Taxes now or hereafter deductible at the source, not in excess of 2%. The issuance of these certificates has been approved by the Transit Commission of the State of New York.

Guaranteed unconditionally as to principal and dividends by endorsement by The Brooklyn City Railroad Company

The following is summarized from a letter of Mr. H. Hobart Porter, President of The Brooklyn City Railroad Company:

Security: These certificates will be issued under an equipment trust agreement and lease to the Brooklyn Trust Company, Trustee, whereby the Trustee will, in the opinion of counsel, hold the free and unencumbered title to new electric car equipment consisting of 335 modern steel frame cars with complete safety-type control, and costing in excess of $5,000,000, or more than 133⅓% of the principal amount of this issue. The equipment will be leased to The Brooklyn City Railroad Company at a rental sufficient in amount to provide for the annual installments of maturing principal and dividends on the certificates. The title to all the equipment will remain with the Trustee until final payment of principal and dividends on the entire issue.

The Company: The Brooklyn City Railroad Company was incorporated in 1853, and from 1893 to 1919 its properties were operated under lease by a subsidiary of the present Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation. Since October 19, 1919 the Company has been independently operated. The Brooklyn City Railroad Company owns approximately 210 miles of track or more than 40% of the entire surface trackage in the Borough of Brooklyn, New York City.

Valuation: The Company has outstanding in the hands of the public only $4,898,000 principal amount of bonds, whereas the real estate alone owned by the Company is assessed by the City of New York at over $7,300,000. The Valuation Bureau of the Transit Commission valued the Company's property and found its reproduction cost new, based on 1921 prices, to be in excess of $40,000,000.

Earnings: For the year ended June 30, 1924, gross earnings of the Company were $12,226,259 and net earnings, $2,519,456. Interest and rentals for this period amounted to $517,736. The maximum annual dividend requirements on these certificates will be $187,500.

Dividends: The Company has an uninterrupted dividend record since 1855 except for the period from October, 1919, to September, 1922. A stock dividend of 33⅓% was paid September 30, 1924, which substantially offset the absence of dividends from 1919 to 1922. A quarterly dividend of 2% and an extra dividend of one-half of 1% was paid December 1, 1924, upon the increased capital stock.

How Much Richer Are You Today Than Your Widow May Be Tomorrow?

A $400,000 estate taxed $152,000
A $100,000 estate taxed $ 24,300

THESE are a few actual results of failure to provide against the inheritance taxes now levied by forty-six States. Those estates contained securities which were taxable by many different States, aside from the State of residence and the Federal estate tax.

How heavily will these taxes fall upon the fortune that your own efforts and sacrifice have built up? Will they come at a time when it is impossible to raise cash to meet them without danger to your entire estate?

There is only one way to find out. Have your security holdings analyzed as soon as possible by a competent legal authority or by a bank or investment house which offers an inheritance tax service. Delay may be costly.

The William R. Compton Company recently suggested a rearrangement of security holdings for one of its clients, whereby his inheritance taxes will be reduced by $34,000. Upon our recommendation, he exchanged certain security holdings which would be heavily taxed in three or more States, to other investments taxable only by the Federal Government and by his State of residence. And his present holdings combine greater safety and a higher net yield than those which he exchanged for them.

If you wish to know the extent to which your own estate may suffer through inheritance taxes, we will gladly place our inheritance tax facilities at your disposal, without charge, for a complete analysis of your holdings. We consider this an essential part of the service which we give to investors.

An interesting survey of this important subject is contained in the recent booklet, "Investing to Conserve Your Estate." Let us mail you a copy, without obligation to yourself. Kindly write for Booklet J-3.

There Are Very Good Reasons for the high investment standing of Public Utility Securities issued by companies supplying electric light and power to the large cities of the country.

I know of no other industry whose services are so indispensable and whose securities are more justly entitled to the favorable consideration of conservative investors. The bond named below is one which has my unqualified recommendation.

Examining Your Investments
NUMBER FIVE
Suitability of the Security to the Needs of the Investor

There is a form of security which best meets the requirements of each class of investor. We often find an investor holding tax exempt or legal bonds which command a relatively high price because of features from which he derives no benefit. It is obvious therefore, that an increase in income is obtainable by exchanging such securities for investments of equal merit but better adapted to the individual's needs.

Your list should be regularly reviewed that such a condition may be revealed and corrected, so as to obtain the maximum earning power from your investments.

MEXICO CUTS OFF STATE SUBSIDIES

Calles Has Initiated Economy Era, Says Government's Financial Agency.

REDUCTION IN EMPLOYES

Progress on Third Railroad Line From North to South of Country Reported.

All subsidies or loans heretofore advanced by the Federal Government of Mexico to the individual States have been stopped, it was learned yesterday. Effective last Jan. 1, according to cabled advices received by the Financial Agency of the Mexican Government, all aid of this kind was ordered discontinued under direction of the new President, Plutarco Calles.

"Not only is General Calles determined to put into effect a rigid plan of economics in the Treasury Department," according to the transcript, "but also he will endeavor to induce the State Governors to do likewise."

Full cooperation on this point was forecast. The State Governors have been acquainted with the problems facing the Government of the United States of Mexico, and all have indicated their desire to adopt economy measures. Indicative of this determination, according to the Financial Agency, was the following announcement received from Mexico City: "The newly appointed Controller General Mr. Luis Montes de Oca, has taken office, and his first measure was to reduce the personnel of the Controller's Department from 1,162 to 675 employes, thus effecting an economy of 360,000 pesos ($190,000) a month."

The report also stated that the "Chief Engineer of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico, Mr. Sloan, announces that already 40 per cent. of the 100-mile gap between Tepic and La Quemade has been completed, so that by Jan. 1, 1926, it will be possible to run the first direct train from Nogales, Sonora, to Mexico City."

The Southern Pacific began its work of construction on the unfinished part of its new line into Mexico well in advance of formal recognition of the Obregon Government by the United States Government. For about ten years work had been held up.

"When this line is completed there will be three trunk lines running practically from north to south of Mexico, one from Laredo, Texas, to Mexico City, another from El Paso, Texas, to Mexico City, and the third, the Southern Pacific line, down the Pacific Coast. This last will make possible a direct trip from San Francisco to Mexico City," says the statement.

ELECTRIC OUTPUT MOUNTS.

North American Co. Set New High Record for Week Ended Dec. 18.

Frank L. Dame, President of the North American Company, made public yesterday the company's weekly electric output figures to show that the business depression has definitely ended.

The consolidated weekly report of all subsidiaries of the company shows that the low point of the 1924 depression came in July. During the week of July 31, the best week of the month, the kilowatt-hour output totaled 38,340,000 or only 2.35 per cent. above the corresponding week in 1923. Since then the weekly output has steadily mounted.

Beginning the week after election, the gains over the corresponding weeks in the previous year were remarkable, Mr. Dame said. Whereas the percentage of weekly gain over 1923 was 6.55 for the last week in October, the increase was 12.68 per cent. the first week after election. By the week ended Dec. 18 output had reached 52,800,000 kilowatt hours, a new high weekly record and nearly twice that during the low point of July. By Christmas week the ratio of gain over 1923 had reached 20.25 per cent.

Wickwire Meeting Put Off.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 12.—The adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Wickwire-Spencer Steel Corporation called for this morning at the office on Hammond Street, was adjourned to Feb. 9 at 11 A. M. The meeting is a continuance of that which voted to carry through a plan of reorganization, the fulfillment of which is now in process.

Gain in Wage Payments.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Jan. 12.—The December wage disbursement here through banks was $6,696,297, compared with $6,205,318 the previous month and $6,881,366 the corresponding 1923 period. Total payment for 1924 was $76,594,190, compared with $78,126,000 in 1923 and $54,046,000 in 1922.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Quotations Steady, Except Guilders, Which Continue Last Saturday's Decline.

Sterling touched its high price of $4.79½, reached last Saturday, in yesterday's market, which generally was little changed from last week. After spirited buying in the early half of the session, which carried sterling up to its best level of last week, some selling appeared. This forced the quotation down to $4.78½, where it steadied, closing just one-eighth cent below the previous closing level.

RAPID RISE IN BONDS OF COLORADO ROAD

PREFERRED SHARES SOAR

Officials Silent on Report That Interest on Sinking Fund Bonds May Be Paid Soon.

On trading of more than $618,000 the 5 per cent. sinking fund bonds of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad yesterday reached 66⅝, an advance of almost eight points within a week. During the same time the preferred shares have advanced from 42½ to 60, the high price yesterday.

These price increases in the securities of the newly reorganized company are said to be due to the progress made by the directors and the reorganization managers at recent meetings in working out policies for the road, which will be operated by J. S. Pyeatt, favorably known for his record as head of the Gulf Coast Lines.

A report was current in the financial district that the directors in the near future might pay the interest on the sinking fund bonds. This interest became cumulative on Feb. 1, 1924, but will not be a fixed charge until Feb. 1, 1929. Those in touch with the corporation declined to discuss the possibility of an interest payment at this time. They admitted, however, that the whole outlook had improved greatly.

Directors of the Western Pacific Railroad Corporation, which owns half of the control of the Denver & Rio Grande Western, met yesterday to consider action on the extra dividend declared four years ago, but held up pending the reorganization of the Denver & Rio Grande Western. They did not decide on a time for the distribution of the dividend, which amounts to one share of the preferred stock and one share of the common for every share now held. Another meeting may be held soon to decide upon the date for paying the extra dividend.

VALUE OF JERSEY CENTRAL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Property owned and used by the Central Railroad of New Jersey on June 30, 1918, was tentatively valued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission at $103,464,600. The corporation, which owns 1,101 miles of main line, has outstanding capital stock and bonds of a par value of $76,357,631, while the book value of its holdings and investments is given as $103,014,267.

Jersey Central officials declined yesterday to comment on the Interstate Commerce Commission's valuation of their road because they did not have an official copy.

This is the second valuation which the commission has handed down within a week. The other was on the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway. Representatives of that company are still making a study of the report.

REAFFIRMS COAL CAR RULE.

Commission Forbids Special Supplies to Mines Furnishing Rail Fuel.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today reaffirmed a decision issued in 1923 forbidding railroads giving special car supplies to bituminous coal mines which furnish railroad fuel. March 1 was fixed as the effective date of the decision. Commissioners Potter, Hall and Cox dissented.

Mine operators charged that the practice constituted a discrimination, while the railroads argued that even in times of shortage of coal carrying equipment the need for fuel to maintain transportation was paramount.

INDEPENDENT OIL PROFITS.

Net Earnings for 1924 More Than Double Those of 1923.

The preliminary statement of earnings of the Independent Oil and Gas Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1924, shows gross earnings of $2,620,934 against $1,423,462 in the previous year. The net income, after all expenses, including taxes, dry holes, interest and other charges, were deducted, amounted to $1,786,164 against $747,846 in 1923.

For the last quarter of 1924 the company reports gross earnings of $648,163 against $505,873 in the September quarter, and the net income amounted to $418,236 against $307,607.

Unconditionally Guaranteed

When you buy the 5½% First Mortgage Gold Bonds of The Mortgage-Bond Company of New York, you are doing more than merely making a good investment. You are buying unequalled five-fold safety, including the strongest guarantee attaching to any real estate securities. Consider these facts:

Ratio of Security: The property securing the mortgages behind these bonds has been conservatively appraised at approximately two and one-half times the face value of the mortgages.

Proved Valuation: The actual value of this property, as determined by selling prices over a period of nineteen years, has averaged 5% above appraisals.

Diversification: The property securing the mortgages behind these bonds is always widely diversified. Loans are made in twenty-three cities of the South and West (none less than 40,000 population). No local depression in property values can impair the security of the bonds.

Guarantee: The bonds are the direct obligation of the company and are unconditionally guaranteed by its entire capital and surplus which can never be less than one-fifteenth of the amount of all bonds outstanding.

Record: During the nineteen years of its existence, the company has made 10,000 loans in Southern and Western cities without loss. No investor has ever lost a dollar of principal or interest from the purchase of these bonds nor could lose in any case until the company's entire capital and surplus had been absorbed.

The 5½% First Mortgage Gold Bonds of The Mortgage-Bond Company of New York are fully described in our booklet "Creating the Safeguards of a Guaranteed Investment." This interesting booklet will be sent you on request. Simply fill out the coupon below.

$22,000,000 RADIO SALES IN 2 MONTHS

FIGURES YET INCOMPLETE

Total Sales of All Companies in 1924 About $350,000,000 Against $120,000,000 in 1923.

Sales of radio sets and parts by the Radio Corporation of America reached the record-breaking total of $22,000,000 for the two months of November and December, according to estimates based yesterday on figures available for that period, but upon which company officials refused to comment. The two months' total as estimated may be compared with the gross income from sales, communications and other income for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1924, which was $11,183,379. The figures are nearly as large as the $23,000,000 gross income from sales of radio apparatus reported for the entire year 1923, and approximately as large as the company's sales for the previous ten months.

In other words, the popular demand for wireless receiving apparatus, as well as station demand for broadcasting paraphernalia is expected to show for the Radio Corporation in 1924 a total gross income exceeding $45,000,000, or virtually double that of 1923, which itself set a record. The last quarterly report of the corporation for 1924 has yet to be issued. Until the stock was listed on the New York Stock Exchange last October no quarterly earning statements were available, and only the September quarter's report has been issued in conformity with the rules of the Exchange.

Total radio sales by all companies for 1924 have been estimated by David Sarnoff, Vice President and general manager of the Radio Corporation, as $350,000,000. This would compare with total sales of $120,000,000 for 1923, $60,000,000 for 1922 and $5,000,000 for 1921. In 1920 the sales of all companies amounted to $2,000,000. Mr. Sarnoff has predicted that sales in 1925 will reach $450,000,000, based on the rate of increased demand in the preceding five years.

The Radio Corporation's report for the September quarter showed estimated surplus profits for that period of $1,360,284.

Stockholders of the Dubilier Condenser and Radio Corporation, at a special meeting held yesterday, approved the proposal of the management calling for an increase in the company's no par value common stock from 100,000 to 500,000 shares. The company will sell part of the increased common stock to shareholders at $50 a share on the basis of one share of the new stock for each ten shares now held. The proceeds from the sale of this stock will be used to retire all outstanding preferred stock at $105 a share.

Following the sale of the common stock and completion of the retirement of all the preferred stock, the common stockholders will then be given the privilege of exchanging their present holdings of stock on the basis of one share of old stock for two shares of new stock.

Stockholders of record Jan. 2 have been given warrants evidencing their privilege to subscribe to the new stock at $50 a share. These warrants expire on Jan. 15. Application will be made to have the new stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Announcement by Charles Freshman that a dividend would be paid on that stock within a short time caused an advance of 1¾ points net yesterday. The stock sold at a high of 26¾ and closed at 24¾, at which point it was up 1¾ points from the previous close.

Trading started yesterday on the Curb Market in the shares of David Grimes Radio and Cameo Record Corporation. The stock sold at a high of 19⅝ and closed at 19¼.

A Typical Forman Bond
Yielding 6½%

A First Mortgage Real Estate Bond issue recently purchased by George M. Forman & Co., furnishes, we think, an unusually clear example of how Forman applies safeguards to investments.

Forman issues, because of unusual safeguards, are regarded as a standard of investment excellence and have been so regarded by careful investors for 40 years.

The issue referred to is protected by:

1. Two independent appraisers value the property which secure these bonds as worth 50% more than the amount of all the bonds issued.
2. Net annual earnings from the property are approximately three times highest annual interest charges.
3. Serial maturities will liquidate the entire issue of bonds in ten years.

These protections by no means include all the provisions of the mortgage which contribute to the safety of the issue. No factor of stability is overlooked by Forman in the choice of any bonds offered to customers.

We will be glad to send you a complete description of the particular bond referred to.

RAIL EARNINGS BIG, CAR LOADINGS SHOW

Results of December Operations Indicated by Reports for Three Weeks.

GAINS IN THE SOUTHWEST

Twenty Roads Reveal Large Increases in Traffic Over the Same Month a Year Ago.

Eased on the car loadings for the first three weeks in December, it is expected that the earning statements of the railroads for that month, which will be made public within the next few days, will be much improved, compared with the same month of last year. It is expected that the group of Southern railroads and those in the Southwest will have the most favorable showing for the month when the earnings are made public.

Outstanding in the traffic increases during the first three weeks of December this year compared with a year ago are those of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, 13.6 per cent.; the Louisville & Nashville, 14.7 per cent.; the Atlantic Coast Line, 12.4 per cent.; the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, 27.6 per cent.; the Missouri Pacific, 15.7 per cent., and the St. Louis & San Francisco, 15.1 per cent.

The following table compiled by Dow, Jones & Co. shows the car loadings on thirty representative railroads in the first three weeks of December compared with the same period the previous year:

Live Stock Markets at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Receipts of 70,000 hogs here today were the smallest for a Monday in about two months and 53,000 less than the record run of Dec. 15, 1924. The smallest receipts and big shipping orders, combined with good buying by yards traders and small packers, advanced prices 15 to 30 cents, to a top of $11.05. The general average was $10.50. Today's top was within 10 cents of the best figure since Oct. 18. Shippers took 23,000 of the fresh receipts. Best lambs sold at steady prices, while others were 15 to 25 cents lower. The top was $18.50 to shippers. Feeding lambs were steady, with fifty-six-pound Montanas at $17.25, a new high for the season. Cattle declined 25 to 50 cents on receipts of 32,000, which were considerably in excess of trade requirements. Few choice yearlings were offered, while best steers sold up to $11.75. The bulk of the arrivals were of medium grade.

RAW SILK EXCHANGE HERE IS PROPOSED

TO HELP MANUFACTURERS

Transactions in Japanese Material Now Made Through Yokohama—Trading Would Be Expedited.

The establishment of a raw silk exchange here, primarily to benefit silk manufacturers, and serving the same purpose as the Cotton Exchange for cotton manufacturers and spinners, is being discussed by local silk merchants and importers. Although interested factors in the silk business explained last night that no plan had yet been evolved for such an exchange and that only informal discussions had been held, it was admitted that the matter was being actively considered as a step which, if sufficiently supported, would prove advantageous for the trade.

There has never been a raw silk exchange here, and all trading is done indirectly by cable with Yokohama. It is with the Yokohama exchange that all transactions in the Japanese raw material at this port have to be made at present, through Japanese establishments in this city, such as Mitsui & Co. Transactions through the present channels would continue, it was said last night, regardless of whether the silk trade here decided finally to set up an exchange to facilitate trading.

It was learned yesterday that an informal discussion regarding the setting up of a silk exchange was recently participated in by officials of the New York Cotton Exchange, whose facilities the silk trade was said to be desirous of using for their exchange, and prominent silk importers and jobbers. Officials of the Cotton Exchange declined yesterday to discuss the results of the conference.

Among those who discussed the possibility of a silk exchange and the availability of the Cotton Exchange's facilities for this purpose were Charles Miller of Suizer, Rudolph & Co., 384 Fourth Avenue; George A. Post of the Silk Association of America, and H. Gerli of E. Gerli & Co., Inc., one of the largest silk importing concerns in the country.

As an adjunct of the Cotton Exchange, the raw silk exchange would meet a growing need because of the growth of the silk business in the United States. It would not only make for better price and other market information, of value to importers, jobbers and manufacturers, but would expedite the purchase and sale of the raw material in the world that is not possible at present without an organized medium for transactions.

It was said last night that a canvass would probably be made of the silk industry to learn if sufficient demand for it existed to warrant the setting up of the exchange at this time. One question is whether it would meet a sufficiently response to warrant the expense. Further discussions would be held, one authority said, before any definite plan would be evolved.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 12.—The business of the Van Bergh Silver Plate Company, for thirty-two years manufacturer of silver plate ware in this city, has been purchased by the Oneida Community, Ltd., according to announcement today. Oct. 31	1,780,930,000	2,496,625

The 1,941,440,000 reichsmarks outstanding Dec. 31 is the high point of the bank's note circulation since the war. It stood at 2,496,625,000 on July 31, 1914, when the war began, and reached 5,082,890,000 at the end of 1914, when the mark was not yet heavily depreciated.

Railroad Meets Expenses.

Based on estimated earnings, it was reported that the Chicago & Alton Railway virtually covered its charges for 1924. But for the unfavorable conditions in the last three months of the year, including the heavy snow and sleet storms in December, which interfered with the service and added materially to the cost of operation, the road might have made a surplus of $300,000.

Estimates of the gross business were $30,583,000, or $2,738,194 less than 1923, but it was pointed out that this decline was offset in part by the reduction in the operating expenses, amounting to more than $1,500,000.

WHEAT $2 OR MORE AT 4 GRAIN CENTRES

MAY IS $1.85 AT CHICAGO

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Cash wheat sold at $2 a bushel and more at St. Louis, Omaha, Minneapolis and Toledo today, and the May delivery in all markets advanced to a new high for the season, touching $1.85 here and $1.92¼ at Winnipeg, and closing with a net gain of 4 cents here and 3⅝ in the Canadian market. Deferred deliveries were influenced by the action of the May and advanced 1¼ to 2 cents.

The continued good domestic demand, with a decrease of 4,559,000 bushels in the visible supply, gave bulls increased confidence and, with stop loss orders uncovered, the close was at the top.

There was persistent buying by commission houses, with some that looked like short covering for foreign account, and, while profit-taking was comparatively heavy at times, the offerings were quickly absorbed. Russia took a line of cash wheat at Hamburg, Germany, for immediate shipment and, with seaboard buying, the price here was ⅞ to 2 cents higher at last.

Flour demand, both new business and shipping orders on old orders, was better, and a scarcity of choice grain has apparently developed, especially in red Winter, which sold up to $2.06 at St. Louis, with No. 4 dark Northern Spring at Omaha at $2.02.

It is estimated that 60,000,000 bushels of the Australian surplus of around 100,000,000 have already been sold, but the world's market has not been affected in the slightest, and France paid $1.96 c. i. f. for a cargo of Argentine wheat that had been offered earlier in the day at 1½ cents per bushel under that figure.

Export demand is relatively slow, with sales of around 600,000 bushels in all positions, including 200,000 bushels via the Gulf Saturday and not previously reported.

There is a little congestion of grain on track here, with several of the elevators embargoed; storage room is scarce, and the inability to make sales of consequence to the East prevents turning over the grain.

Primary arrivals today were 1,387,000 bushels; week ago, 997,000; last year, 825,000. Shipments were 707,000 bushels; week ago, 755,000; last year, 503,000.

Trading in corn and oats was almost colorless and the markets were influenced largely by the action of wheat. Corn gained 1¼ to 2⅝ cents, while oats were ⅛ to ⅛ cent lower, with May oats at a fractional discount under July. Cash corn was one to two cents lower, as compared with May on low grades, with No. 5 selling at 12 to 20 cents under the May and No. 6 grade at 21 to 23½ cents under. Country offerings were small.

The visible supply of corn increased 2,289,000 bushels for the week and is 20,862,000 bushels, against 18,573,000 bushels the previous week and 9,335,000 bushels last year.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 2,054,000 bushels; week ago, 1,521,000; last year, 1,524,000, and shipments, 481,000 bushels; week ago, 494,000; last year, 814,000.

FAVOR FEDERAL OIL BOARD.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 12.—In a resolution passed here today the Board of Directors of the American Petroleum Institute, representing the entire oil industry of the nation, approved the creation by President Coolidge of a Federal Oil Conservation Board, and gave assurance of "cordial cooperation" with such a board. The institute is holding its annual meeting in the Hotel Traymore. Representatives of all of the oil companies are attending.

In the resolution the institute declares that a full and intelligent discussion of the oil industry problems necessitates an exhaustive investigation to avoid "immature recommendations or unwise experiments." The President of the institute will name a committee of eleven members to study the problems and make recommendations.

COTTON PRICES RISE, ASSISTED BY GRAINS

INDIAN CROP IS A FACTOR

When compared with the limited volume of business last week, trading in cotton developed considerable activity yesterday at an advance of 17 to 23 points in prices. A rise in May wheat in Chicago to $1.85 and a further advance in securities stimulated cotton. An estimate by a Memphis agency of 500,000 to 510,000 as the probable domestic consumption during December, compared with 462,000 last year, and private reports that heavy rains the past six weeks had reduced the East Indian crop, influenced sentiment, a British Board of Trade figures received late in the day showed larger exports of yarns since June, 1924, while exports of cloths last month were the largest since May, 1923.

Early trading reflected an easier tone abroad, where quotations declined about 10 English points on the day. Cotton was for sale the first hour to an extent that carried May within 5 points of the 24-cent level, but, as on recessions last week, the quantity of contracts wanted to fill trade buying orders furnished resistance. A slow recovery occurred until all the early loss had been regained about midday. Throughout the morning New Orleans proved stronger than New York, with the March position there selling around New York quotations for the same month. Increased strength in both wheat and securities, with private estimates on December domestic consumption in excess of last year, served to attract commission house buying. When rumors circulated that estimates on the Indian crop were being reduced, covering developed with a degree of activity not witnessed in some time. Heaviest trading of the session occurred during the afternoon, when all the March contracts for sale at 24 cents were absorbed and that month advanced another 10 points to 24.10. Demand for October proved the feature, with October changing hands 7 points over March and not only advancing above the 24-cent level but showing a greater gain at the close than current crop positions.

According to a report from New Orleans, Government figures on Texas rainfall for December averaged 1.60 inches, which would make 8.23 inches for the six months from July 1 to Dec. 31. This was only about 50 per cent. of the normal for that State and compares with 7.83 inches during the corresponding period of 1917, the smallest since 1885. Though showers occurred in Eastern sections over Sunday, very little rainfall was reported west of the Rives.

Detroit News Again First in America

Los Angeles Times Sends Congratulations

Greatest Total in History of Journalism

THE telegram above has been received from the Los Angeles Times after printing the advertising lineage figures carried by the leading newspapers of America on the first page of its New Year's Day Edition—an annual feature of this paper.

The Detroit News is shown to be the largest carrier of advertising in America, its lineage for the year 1924 being 30,604,518. The Chicago Tribune is second with 28,181,121. Los Angeles Times, third with 27,893,726 lines. New York Times, fourth with 26,283,924 lines. Washington Star, fifth with 25,313,753 lines. Baltimore Sun, sixth with 24,480,275 lines and Pittsburgh Press, seventh with 23,469,516.

First rank is not new to The Detroit News. Three times before it had outdistanced every other American newspaper, but never before has The News or any other newspaper reached the hitherto unprecedented total of 30,604,518 lines. During the last ten years The News has consistently held first, second or third place among all American newspapers. Such a signal honor is not a matter of chance; it is the result of a combination of fundamental factors which advertisers recognize and which make The Detroit News such a uniquely valuable medium.

The News has more than 285,000 circulation both weekdays and Sundays, delivering a copy to practically every home in the Detroit field. No other city of Detroit's size is so thoroughly covered by one newspaper as Detroit is by The News, and no other Detroit newspaper enjoys such intimate home contact as The News.

It is this thoroughness of coverage among all classes of Detroit's population, plus the remarkable prosperity which this field has enjoyed for years, that has made The Detroit News the favored medium of national, classified and local advertisers.

Novel Jiffy Safety Bag.

A hand or shopping bag having several novel features is being offered by a wholesaler here. It has a sliding catch similar to that used on tobacco pouches which prevents the contents from falling out or the bag opening without the knowledge of the owner when it is carried. In addition the bag has an "invisible, collapsible" frame, so constructed that it cannot break. The sides of the bag are gathered at the lower portion of the frame, and, acting as gussets, give additional support and eliminate pulling and sagging. The bag comes in sizes from seven to fourteen inches wide. Depending on quality, it is lined with spingle or flamelette. It is made in jacquard silks, moires or taperies and pin seal, suede, walrus and India leathers. A mirror and coin purse are accessories. Prices range from $24 to $60 per dozen.

Two-Inch Belts for Spring.

A further spurt in the demand for leather belts for women's wear during the Spring is awaited by manufacturers here. The fancy perforated belt, of a width of from two to two and a half inches, it was said yesterday, has been receiving the greater share of attention thus far. White leather is favored for belts for sports wear, it was added, with those of suede and patent leather leading for regular wear. Many varieties of colored belts, to match the high shades of ready-to-wear for Spring, are also being shown.

Duplicate Orders for Skirts.

A fair amount of duplicating on Spring skirts is already being received, say skirt manufacturers. This immediate delivery business is coming mostly from the better grade stores here, and in some instances the orders are quite sizable. Cashmere and flannels rule in preference, the wrap-around model retaining its popularity. Wide box pleats are being stressed, as are "peasant" or very narrow pleats. Some silk skirts are moving for the Palm Beach trade, but the real seasonal business in these is a matter of several weeks yet. Success is reported with the merchandising of "suspender" skirts, which are cut so that they have a suspender-like arrangement at each shoulder. These are shown in cashmeres, flannels and fancy patterned materials, solid colors being featured.

See Demand for Twill Coats.

Coat manufacturers here look for a substantial demand for twill coats as the Spring season advances. These coats are fashioned of the higher grade twill weaves, run to three-quarter lengths and are fur trimmed. The high shades rule in the coats, reflecting the swing away from the staple colors in the twills as in other fabrics. Buyers who have seen lines of this merchandise are said to have expressed confidence in them for March and April sale. Prices in the wholesale market range from $29.75 up.

Buying Pace Must Speed Up.

While in some ways the Spring season in ready-to-wear has gotten off to a fair start in the local showrooms, the opinion was concurred in yesterday by a number of wholesalers that the buying pace will have to be more rapid than at present for the season to turn out satisfactorily. This is qualified, however, by recognition of the fact that the season, according to present buying practice, is still in its early stages and that the tendency of many buyers at this time seems more to look than to buy. The belief is widespread that this week and next will be more active periods, with more real orders placed, particularly during the week of Jan. 19. Despite yesterday's snowstorm there was a fair sprinkling of buyers in many of the showrooms.

Printcloths led in the rather active business done in gray goods here yesterday, many of the sales being made in the afternoon at prices higher than those paid in the morning. Nearby deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 60-48s were sold in the latter half of the day at 10⅝ and 8¼ cents, respectively, but it was reported that bids of an eighth less brought both constructions out in the forepart of the morning. Most of the sales of sheetings were confined to the lightweight goods. These included 36-inch 5-yard sheetings at 9⅝ cents; 36-inch 5.50s at 8 cents, and 36-inch 6.15s at 7¾ cents. Sales of 64.60 pajama checks were made at 8⅝ cents.

Wide Bracelets Taking Well.

Steadily growing success is being met here by flexible platinum bracelets set with graduated stones and, in cases where the major gem is colored, decorated with small diamonds. The most popular of these bracelets are set with cabochon emeralds and, being biggest at the middle, taper to the ends. One such bracelet is half an inch wide in its broadest part. Wide bracelets set with certain semi-precious stones are also in favor. The general use of emeralds in the more expensive bracelets has reduced local stocks of the better grades of these gems to famine proportions, yet stones of this type are said to be easier to purchase here than abroad. Large emeralds of quality are especially scarce, and those weighing over five carats are said to be almost literally jumped at by buyers.

Teamwork Boosted Sales Sharply.

Teamwork in selling, the object of which was the linking of one department up with another with the idea of increasing sales, was said here yesterday to have worked so well in the case of a certain up-State store recently that the gain in business during the period in which it was tried exceeded the mark aimed at by about 31 per cent. The basic idea of the plan was to have every salesman and saleswoman in the store acquainted each day with certain merchandise in each department that was being emphasized, and considerable effort was made to determine the source of the business in these articles. In many cases the sales impetus was the suggestion of a salesman or woman that the customer would be interested in the merchandise, which was just what the plan aimed to accomplish. Teams were formed to awaken a competitive spirit and suitable prizes were awarded members of the winning team at the end of the trial period.

Need Not Increase Profit Margin.

The fallacy of a ready-to-wear manufacturer trying to increase his profits nowadays by increasing his margin of profit was pointed out yesterday by an authority on matters pertaining to the garment field. "The secret of increased net profits in the face of modern competition," he said, "does not lie in increasing the profit margin, but in reducing losses. It often happens that a manufacturer who plans to do a million-dollar business and make a profit of 10 per cent. finds that his net is only about half that amount. The losses that cut into his profits come from his laxness in granting credit and, figuratively speaking, from winking at various unethical trade practices of the retailers. How much more satisfactory his business would be, and how much more favorably he would appear as a man from whom to buy, if he would do a business of $500,000, or at most $750,000, and make the 10 per cent. profit to which he feels he is entitled."

More Bad-Check Passers at Work.

Passers of bad checks are again at work in this city, according to the bulletin of the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc., which tells of the operations of six of these frauds. Each has his or her (one of them is a woman) own little game, but the most elaborate one is being worked in various cities by a former employe of a well-known newspaper syndicate. This man has had checks printed similar to those of the syndicate in appearance but differing slightly in the form of the name. The address is different, both in the number of the street and building, but not so much so that it will be detected by casual observation. However, the checks are drawn on a local bank that is not in existence. Last April the same man was reported to be passing "not sufficient funds" checks, but was not apprehended.

SOFT COLLAR FIGHT ENDS OUT OF COURT

TO MAKE 2-PIECE PRODUCT

The legal controversy over the alleged infringement by nine collar manufacturers on the basic patents to the Van Heusen collar owned by the Phillips-Jones Company of New York was settled out of court yesterday when the defendants, it was announced, paid a "substantial" sum to the Phillips-Jones Company for damages.

The litigation began a year and a half ago, and last July Judge Hand sustained the plaintiff's charges of infringement. The sum paid to the company owning the patents was not made public, in accordance with an agreement between the parties to the action.

It was recalled yesterday that during the action the inventor, Van Heusen, testified that he had been paid $1,000,000 in royalties. At that time it was said that when the defendant companies whose business had been seriously affected by the new soft collar practically admitted the charges, it was unofficially estimated that the Phillips-Jones Company had placed its losses at $4,000,000, due to the infringement.

Under the terms of the agreement as announced by D. H. Phillips for the plaintiff, licenses are granted to the defendants to continue making the two-piece collar on a royalty basis, while the plaintiff holds the exclusive right to make the one-piece collar.

In a statement Mr. Phillips said that the litigation involving the validity of the patents under which the Van Heusen collar has been manufactured has been satisfactorily ended, that nine manufacturers who represent the great bulk of the production of collars in this country acquiesced in the decree by Judge Hand that the validity of the patents is acknowledged and that a substantial payment has been made for damages. "This is a gratifying outcome of a serious controversy," he said.

The principal firms named as defendants were Cluett, Peabody & Co., Earl & Wilson, Manhattan Shirt Company, Hall Hartwell Company, George P. Ide Company, Van Zandt Inc., and Lion Shirt Company.

Counsel for the plaintiff were Louis Marshall of Untermyer, Guggenheimer & Marshall, and Charles Neave of Fish, Richardson & Neave. Counsel for the defendants were Odin Roberts and Drury Cooper.

CHECKING A SWINDLER.

Prompt Action Stopped Conversion of Goods Got by Fraud.

That the credit department of trade association, through the fact that its exchange of information is constant and its members in contact with each other, is often the first to discover fraud is shown by an incident reported yesterday by the United Women's Wear League of America. It concerned the discovery of the operations of a man who gave orders and received merchandise under a fictitious name.

The man in question had chosen the name of a thoroughly reliable mercha , and the address was a similar number in the avenue next to that in which the latter's place of business was located. He was prepared to receive and dispose of a quantity of merchandise when his game was discovered.

The way in which he was f nd out was through the sudden rush of inquiries concerning his credit that were received by the credit bureau of the league the first day of his operations. The name he used was listed in the league's records as that of one who pa l his bills promptly. Executives of the league took these inquiries to mean that something was wrong. A consultation of the telephone book showed the apparently slight difference in the addresses. The indiscriminate and extensive placing of large orders also pointed to fraud.

"We immediately investigated," said M. Mosessohn, Executive Chairman of the league, in relating the incident. "We first warned our members not to fill these orders, and then took the matter up with the New York Credit Men's Association. As a result of our pro t action a. l the activities of the credit association, the secnd day of the fraudulent attempt found the place closed and the schemer absconded."

Mr. Mosessohn cited the incident as one typical of those in which time is the most important factor in the success of the fraud. "It was inevitable that this man would be caught," he said, "but it would have been small consolation to his creditors if he had been found out after he had had time to receive thousands of dollars' worth of goods, carry them off and dispose of them.

"In order to make a 'clean-up' only a few days are necessary. A short business life and a merry one is the slogan of such fraudulent operators. They count on a few days before the facts can be brought t the attention of the average credit agency. The faker in this case lost those days of grace, and, even though he failed, he was lucky to get away."

TRADE BAZAAR IS PLANNED.

Permanent Exhibit at New Orleans to Promote Latin-American Business.

C. L. Wallace of New Orleans, President of the International Trade Exhibition, Inc., yesterday at the Biltmore Hotel described a proposal to establish at New Orleans, with the cooperation of the United States Government, a permanent bazaar to house trade exhibits and promote American trade in Latin America.

The exhibit will be housed in the former United States Army Quartermaster Intermediate Depot 2, a six-story building valued at $5,000,000, with 500,000 square feet of floor space. The New Orleans Chamber of Commerce, and other Southern business interests promoting this experiment, with a capitalization of $150,000, obtained the building from the War Department, through act of Congress, at an annual rental of $1 a year.

Consular representatives of twenty-two foreign Governments, principally from Latin America, have promised to enlist the active cooperation of their nations, in sending exhibits. Fifteen thousand American firms, each with capitalization of $300,000 or more, have been canvassed, and several, notably the United States Steel Corporation, have already expressed a desire to exhibit when the building becomes available next April. Foreign firms, competing with Americans in South America, will be permitted to exhibit, and several British firms have already applied for floor space.

Oil Refineries Increase 138%.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Daily capacity of petroleum refineries, including eight being erected, was estimated today by the Bureau of Mines at 2,832,532 barrels, an increase of nearly 138 per cent. in seven years. There are 548 refineries, as compared with 176 listed on Jan. 1, 1914. Texas, with 123 refineries of 831,780 barrels daily capacity, has more plants than any other State, but California with 67 refineries of a capacity of 676,720 barrels leads in operations.

AGAINST TRADE EVILS.

Dress Industry's Attention Called to Certain Practices.

In the hope of helping to make 1925 a banner year in the dress industry, not only in the volume of business done but in the way it is done, David N. Mosessohn, Executive Director of the Associated Dress Industries of America, yesterday made several interesting and important suggestions to manufacturers.

"The first thing I want to impress upon manufacturers," said Mr. Mosessohn, "is the fallacy of the memorandum practice. A manufacturer is foolish to let himself believe that he is making money simply because some of the retailers to whom he sends goods on memorandum keep them. Whatever profit is made on the goods retained is wiped out by the losses sustained on those returned.

"As a usual thing, most of the memorandum shipments come back with their incident double carrying charges. The manufacturer who resorts to memorandum business reveals a real weakness and opens up immediately a wonderful opportunity for buyers to rush in upon him with all kinds of offers to buy his goods—but at a great sacrifice. There is no profit in it, and it usually takes but a short time to put this manufacturer out of business. If he does not fail he becomes a target for 'sharp-shooting' buyers. He throws away his chance to become important as a manufacturer.

"Our members are further urged to take the returns evil more seriously. As far as I can see, most of the manufacturers take them seriously only in that they bewail their fate when goods come back and take occasion to call the retailer all sorts of things that would not look good in print. As a matter of fact, a great deal of the fault lies with the manufacturer himself for putting up with the evil. If his goods are right, according to sample, delivery is made as promised and there are no undue defects in the garments, the manufacturer is doing himself a great injustice to take them back. The industry is also made to suffer. I want to recommend strongly to every one of our members, and all others who will accept it, that they refuse to take back merchandise sold and delivered in accordance with contract, unless a retailer has a reason for returning it that is satisfactory to the manufacturer.

"It will be found that losses will be materially reduced by cutting out the return privilege because, as a matter of fact, it has come to be looked upon as a privilege by many retailers. By cutting out these losses the profit on merchandise really sold will be worth while, regardless of whether a few undesirable retailers may be lost as customers. There are many others who would like to do business with a dress manufacturer who can be relied upon.

"I also want to recommend that manufacturers tighten their credit reins and get a little better control of this phase of their business. There is evidence every day that manufacturers are very lax in their handling of credits. They extend credit where th y should not, just to open an account. They are too lenient with certain retailers who play upon their willingness to wait. They jeopardize their own credit standing in the market and with their banks because they carry the burden of so many retailers who are slow pay. By watching the credit situation more closely losses can be further averted which will reflect in more substantial profits."

TOQUE RETURNS TO FAVOR.

Appears Strongly in Showings of Paris Milliners.

The toque is in favor once more in millinery circles. This fact is attested to by the early Spring showings of the leading milliners of Paris. Radiogram information received by the New Millinery Bulletin, the "official" publication of the Retail Millinery Association of America, describes the rebirth of the toque this way:

"The change from round to square and from square to pointed crowns has brought to favor once more the toque. Many of the new Spring hats are toques made altogether of flowers or of flowers and straw, a combination that appears often in bright colors. Such hats will doubtless prove popular for the Riviera and for Springtime Paris since they introduce a gay note in the severe tailleur effect that will be smart this season.

"One of the most 'dashing' of these toques comes from Flora & Marguerite. It is fitted closely to the head and rises to a ridge with folds in front and back, just like the peaked roof of a cottage. At the top of each side of the ridge two black wings are placed, meeting and ascending to a high peak at the centre. The hat is entirely covered with small blue and green velvet flowers.

"Lewis has made a very interesting version of the peaked toque for Cecile Sorel, which she was wearing when interviewed recently in her apartment on the Ile St. Louis. It is a black satin canotier with the top soft and folded over to the left side. A long jade green plume is hung from this fold, which the great French actress throws around her neck and over the right shoulder so that it frames her face charmingly."

"Greater Barney's" Now Open.

With more than ninety-two years behind it, the H. S. Barney Company, Schenectady, N. Y., began the new year with the slogan, "Greater Barney's." The slogan is based on the fact that within a year the size of the company's store has not only been increased by more than 20,000 square feet, but that the entire interior has undergone a transformation which is said to have made it one of the most attractive in the country. With a new uniform front and façade, three store buildings occupied by the company have been made into one at a cost of more than $250,000. Many improvements have been installed and others, the work on which was interrupted by the holiday season, are now being completed. The Vice President, Treasurer and general manager of the company, which maintains a local office at 518 Fourth Avenue, is John F. Horman.

Operators Buy Seven-Story Business Building in East Forty-second Street.

UNDER LONG-TERM LEASE

An important transaction in the Grand Central zone was closed yesterday when the seven-story building at 13 East Forty-second Street was resold by Adolph Lewisohn and Sons, Inc., to Max N. Natanson and Mandelbaum and Lewine, operators.

The building occupies a lot 22 by 100.5 feet located between Fifth and Madison Avenues, and adjoins the National City Bank Building, the former Manhattan Hotel, occupying the block front on Madison Avenue, from Forty-second to Forty-third Street.

The property, which was sold through L. J. Phillips & Co., is under a new lease until 1937 to the National City Company, which caused the present building to be erected about four years ago, as an annex to their bank building at Madison Avenue.

This is the third of the property negotiated by L. J. Phillips & Co. They sold it in 1916 to the Henry Morgenthau Company, and subsequently resold it for the Morgenthau Company to Mr. Lewisohn. In 1920 the same firm arranged a cancellation of a lease held by John McE. Bowman, and the present lease to the National City Company.

Bowery Business Corner Sold.

Benenson Realty Company purchased from Charles Salamon the southwest corner of Kenmare Street and Bowery, known as 168 Bowery. The property is a four-story business building on an irregular plot about 40 by 100 feet. The brokers in the transaction were Amos S. Lamphear and A. Saffir.

Frank LaBarbera, banana dealer, has purchased from the Bank of New York and Trust Company, as trustees, the six-story brick and stone building on a plot 44 by 51 feet at 288 and 290 Washington Street, northwest corner of Chambers Street. J. Louis VanZelm, Vice President of the Trust Company, represented the seller, and Walter F. Sherwood was the broker.

Hugo S. Mack sold the business building at 31 East Twentieth Street to an investor. The lot measures 21.4 by 92 feet and has been held at $45,000.

Deal in Hardware and Rubber District.

Broadway John Street Corporation, Elias A. Cohen, President, has bought from Nathan Straus & Sons, 116 Chambers Street and 44 Warren Street, partly fee and partly leasehold, which was formerly occupied by Lazarus Straus & Sons for their crockery business for many years.

The old firm has been succeeded by a new firm known as Nathan Straus & Sons, who moved into the corner owned by the Broadway John Street Corporation, at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth Street, where they have taken a twenty-year lease.

The brokers in the sale of the Chambers Street property were Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co., who have also acted as brokers in the extension of the leasehold property with Trinity Church for a further term of forty-two years.

The premises will be offered for rent or for resale, together or separately. It is now the centre of the hardware and the rubber district.

The New Steinway Building as an address carries with it the background of an architecturally distinguished building, practically planned, and the prestige of a noteworthy name. Its location on 57th Street fixes its accessibility.

Suites of varying size, suitable for Doctors and Dentists, are still available. The equipment and facilities of the office units have been considered and carried out with the special needs of professional men in mind.

Leases are being made for occupancy during the Spring of 1925. We invite you to see the plans, and learn the details of the New Steinway Building.

SALESMEN OF PRINCIPLE.

Gradually a group of the best men in our business have been gathered together and their number increased by others from the specialty sales field. These men, our sales force, form what we believe is the most effective salesman real estate selling organization in New York, which in turn is the greatest real estate asset of the week. Our business is that of home financing, building and land distribution. Our method leads to the ultimate home and not the mere purchase of land. The appeal is to those of moderate or small means. This organization is one that can point to substantial accomplishment—satisfied and happy families now living in their own homes in communities created by our plan.

The work of a field man is steady throughout the year. It is as permanent as a man is able to make it by his capacity for obtaining results. Opportunity for increased responsibility will be immediately created by the proper man. The staff is compensated by a liberal commission rate with increased percentage to men using their own cars in the work. We are specifically interested in men of basic cleanness and straightforward character who can express the truth in an interesting fashion. Harry L. Green, The Homeland Co., street floor, National American Bank Building, 8 West 40th St.

WOULD END PAROLE TO CURB GUNMEN

General Sessions Judges Ask Taxpayers' Committee to Have Law Changed.

PAROLE BOARD CRITICIZED

Five of the nine General Sessions Judges yesterday afternoon told a committee of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, representing 5,000 members, that they were willing to cooperate with the committee in the suppression of crimes of violence and advised that the association send a delegation to Albany to obtain legislation preventing the State Prisons Parole Board from reducing sentences imposed by the courts.

The association had requested a conference with the Judges "with a view to putting an end, if possible, to the constantly increasing number of hold-ups in this city." Judges Talley, Mancus, Nott, Rosalsky and Collins and District Attorney Banton met the committee behind closed doors in Judge Talley's chambers.

Mr. Banton informed the committee that his office would aid the association in framing legislation to cope with bandits.

The committee, which was composed of Ignatz Reich, President of the association; Herman Bauman, Vice President; Isidor Burger, manager; Hyman Meshkowitz, and a former President, who did not want his name made public because of his fear of vengeance by gunmen, said the association had reached the conclusion that the laws against crimes of violence should be strengthened to strike fear into the hearts of offenders.

The Judges informed the committee that under the law they were forced, in most instances, to impose sentences with maximum and minimum limits, but that it was not an uncommon practice for the State Parole Board to lessen the minimum term. The Judges wanted the Legislature to take away this power of the Parole Board.

Luxury in Sing Sing.

Judge Talley displayed a journal issued by the Welfare League at Sing Sing, revealing that most of the best patronized Broadway plays had been produced for that prison's convicts. This and other amusements, he said, made prison life so easy that criminals had little fear of imprisonment.

Judge Rosalsky advocated a police secret service to obtain information about the activities of individual criminals and also of gangs. Judge Talley, who backed him up, said that Commissioner Enright proposed a body of the kind two years ago, but that opposition arose.

One jurist told of the ease with which criminals could obtain bail in high amounts, whereby opportunity to commit other crimes before their trials was afforded.

Judge Nott deplored the fact that little attention was paid to notorious crimes when heavy sentences were imposed.

One of the Judges called attention to the rapidity with which robberies and other crimes of violence are being disposed of in the courts. He said that yesterday there were but 979 indictments awaiting trial in General Sessions as against 917 a year ago. District Attorney Banton said there were but seventy-eight complaints under investigation by his office yesterday as against 167.

Fully Registers Conditions.

Commenting after the conference on the crime situation in the city, Judge Talley said:

"Something must be done to make criminals fear the law. In my boyhood it was not uncommon to see a slip of a girl on lower Broadway carrying a bank book from the leaves of which protruded banknotes which she was about to deposit. You don't see that today.

There are also Tricks to the Housewife's Trade and here is one worth knowing

THOUSANDS of housewives now know how to select the very juiciest and most delicious oranges and grapefruit—and the most economical, too. Here is how it's done!

Completely disregard both color and shape. Be sure they are heavy for their size. For weight means juice!

Moreover, "rusty" or misshapely oranges and grapefruit are very often much sweeter and juicier than those which merely please your eye. In fact, all these shades and shapes frequently come from the selfsame orange or grapefruit tree.

Such knowledge as this has led increasing thousands of housewives to demand Sealdsweet Oranges and Grapefruit every time. They have learned that, compared size for size with ordinary oranges and grapefruit, they cost less, because
